A tin utensil should never be put over the fire without something in it as tin melts at a low temperature. Neither should acid fruits be cooked in it.

Trampled grass, with coal ground into it, is seldom healthy afterward. If coal must be carried across the lawn, lay down planks for the carriers to walk on.

BUILT-IN CUPBOARDS

Too many cupboards are almost an impossibility in the dining room, and the built-in ones are so much more attractive and satisfactory that due consideration should be given them when the dining room is being planned. When there is a fireplace it is natural to tuck cupboards and closets of one sort and another about it. The glass-doored china closet between the fireplace and the wall is a decorative as well as a useful bit of furniture, and the capacious closet at the end of the fireplace offers ample space for the larger supply of china or for linen storage.

Many of these built-in pieces can be bought ready constructed and are used to good effect in newly built houses as well as in remodeled rooms.

POTS AND PANS

If your kitchen lacks shelf space, build shelves across the corner, making the lower shelf twice as broad as those above it. Drape a gingham curtain from this lower shelf and hang the pots behind it. The open shelves can be filled with platters, bowls and brasses.

STATIONARY TUBS

Stationary tubs may be mounted on gas pipe legs cut to the proper length rather than on the molded legs sold with the tubs, which are generally too short.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Each child in the family should have a quart of whole milk each day, either to drink, or used in foods.

Where a patient has to be moved from one bed to another, have the bed well aired and warmed a little even in summer.

Burns will occur in the kitchen, so it is well to remember that a raw potato is a good remedy. Scrape it.

The various salts of iron stain the teeth, but unless given in an acid form do not attack them and the stain can be subsequently removed.

Gums that are inclined to be spongy are much benefited by brisk rubbing with the fingers, and astringents may at the same time be rubbed in, such as tannin and myrrh.

TO KEEP EYEGLASSES BRIGHT.

It is always annoying when eyeglasses become dimmed with moisture. This may happen when the wearer passes from one place to another where there is a difference in temperature; also when working in a kitchen full of steam. To prevent this the glasses should be gently rubbed with a mixture of glycerine and methylated spirits. Put about a teaspoonful of glycerine into a small bottle and add five times the amount of spirits. Shake up from time to time and rub a little on both sides of the glasses. The good effect will last for a few days.

The same preparation also will prevent mirrors and windows from becoming blurred when sudden changes of temperature take place. For this use, of course, a large quantity of the mixture will be needed but the proportion of the ingredients should be the same.

IT SAVES FATIGUE.

A knee pad to slip under the knees when it is necessary to get down makes the position more comfortable and not so tiresome. Use the best part of an old enamel table cover, as it will not absorb dampness and can be wiped. Make the same as a pillow slip, ten by fifteen inches, and lay inside a piece of old carpeting, quilt or rug to the desired thickness.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Wear bracelets to the elbow and earrings to the shoulders if you would be smart.

Irish lace is a good deal used for trimming fine white hand-made lingerie.

Duvetyn is gradually supplanting suedes for small severely tailored hats. Panne is also favored.

The Deauville scarf is nothing if not versatile. It is now worn wrapped tightly about the neck.

Green shades of dark and grayish blue, are chosen for many of the fall suits on which mole and seal constitute the trimming.

One of the crushable little hats useful for motoring and all-round fall wear is of black shoe satin. It is all over stitched and self trimmed.

The appearance of the three-quarter length Russian blouse assures the continued popularity of the costume slip. The slip without pleats is the one now preferred.

The tam, or beret, as it is known in Paris, is being given many novel treatments. It is shown in tightly shirred velvets and pannes and is embroidered in soutache and chenille.

The important material for the coming season is velvet. Every kind of velvet, smart, pile, chiffon, is shown and sponsored for both day time and evening garments.

Combinations of velvet and chenille and georgette crepe and chenille in rust, brown, navy and gray are featured in the fall overblouses.

A miniature frock for the tiny miss is made of blue taffeta, with a full grate the potato and apply it like a poultice to the injured surface: it will be found most soothing.

Sometimes when washing blouses one's hands become quite shriveled and feel most uncomfortable. If a little salt or vinegar is rubbed well into the skin it will remove unpleasant feeling and leave the hands beautifully soft.

RIGHT TOOTH POWDER

An authority on dental hygiene, in discussing the matter of proper tooth powders has this to say: A tooth powder should fulfill two requirements—it should be soapy, so as to remove the viscid mucus of the gums and it should be a fine polishing powder, free from gritty particles which could cut into the teeth.

These requirements are sufficiently met by a powder composed of precipitated chalk, with which some dried soap has been combined, and the mixture agreeably scented.

When acid medicines are being taken it is a good plan to wash the mouth out with an alkali, which can be conveniently obtained by adding a teaspoonful of carbonate of soda to the contents of a water bottle.

skirt on a high waistline. Pleated organdie meeting the skirt in a V forms the bodice while the sleeves are made of organdie ruffles edged with lace.

TAM, GLOVES, SCARF.

To be really well dressed from the hand-knit angle the coming season one must have a tam, scarf and gloves—to match. The tam has been good and is going to be more so. In straw, felt and yarn the tam is smart. A scarf set of medium-weight yarn, or even of heavier yarn, if one lives where the temperature is very cold, of plain neutral color with border design of one's favorite color is most artistic and attractive. The narrow border of the gauntlet should match the border of the scarf and the decoration on the crown of the tam.

SEMISPORT SUITS.

A new fashion that has appeared shows a suit which has a skirt of striped wool with a fur trimmed coat of plain color, or the order is reversed. These are what might be called semisport suits and are just the thing for early autumn days in the country or for a suit to wear in the morning when shopping.

IN THREE LENGTHS.

Advance information on fur coats indicates that these garments will be in three lengths. One is the hip length coatee; another the coat that reaches mid-way to the knees; and the third a really long coat, measuring some fifty inches.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

To wash silk stockings and underwear, first soak for ten minutes in rapidly through lukewarm water. Rinse through two waters of the same temperature as the soapy water.

Hang bed linen, towels and other flat pieces evenly on the clothes line, pulling them as straight and smooth as possible. The ironing will be much simplified, or they need not be ironed at all.

Though salt is excellent for putting into the water when washing colored materials, it should not be used for black fabrics, which must be dipped into a lather containing fairly strong borax water, then wash two or more teaspoonfuls of borax.

Woolen articles that have shrunk can be improved by being washed in soapsuds and rinsed in clean soapsuds instead of water. Repeated washing in this way restores them to their original size and fluffiness.

TO CLEAR A WASTE PIPE.

From time to time the waste pipes of most basins become clogged. This is generally caused by an accumulation of soap or grease and other refuse at the bend of the pipe and this can nearly always be removed in the following way: Take all water out from the basin, then press some washing soda down the upper part of the pipe. Then pour down a kettleful of boiling water. Sometimes a second application of hot water may be needed, but usually the soda solution quickly melts the soap or grease that causes the block.

TO REMOVE DENTS FROM FURNITURE.

Wet the dent with warm water, fold a piece of brown paper into five or six folds, soak it in water, then place it on the dent in the furniture. Apply a hot iron to the paper until it becomes dry. If the dent still shows, soak the paper again and iron. By keeping the dent wet and applying heat the dent is raised to the surface of the wood.

HEIGHT OF LUXURY.

It would seem as if the height of luxury has been reached in the new wraps and coats of fur. Even those that are fairly inexpensive have a chic and a charm little dreamed of in the days when a fur coat was worn more for comfort than for style.

Skins have been treated so that they are as supple as velvet and the wonderful tones obtained by the modern process of finishing and dyeing make a garment of fur about the most flattering thing one can wear.

The vogue shades of brown and tan is delightfully expressed through the medium of furs. Among the most beautiful of the new models are coats of caracul in beige, caramel, deeper taupe or brown. These are given added loveliness by trimmings of fox or Viatka squirrel.

Long and slender in line, on some of the coats one sees a circular flounce. Sometimes the wrap consists of three deep flounces overlaping. Others rely for distinction upon the becoming shape of the collar and the wide graceful sleeves.

For the younger set there are many short jackets, some straight and slim, others flaring, but each one expressing the spirit of youth.

SPORT TAM FOR FALL.

Just the thing for the fall sports is a tam of suede. Large pieces of suede of three different colors are laced together, patchwork fashion, and finished with a tassel of the suede. The effect is very gay and young.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Mrs. Fern Flint of Cincinnati is an expert watchmaker.

Starting life in a poorhouse, an English girl has just taken her B. A. degree at Birmingham University.

The Municipal Council of Canton, one of the chief cities of China, has admitted two women to its membership.

In Dutch Guiana the women carry upon their persons all the family savings in the shape of heavy bracelets, anklets, necklaces and even crowns of gold and silver.

An English woman, Mrs. Ernest Hart, is the inventor of a method of water-proofing almost every kind of fabric, which has been used on an extensive scale by many departments of the British Government, as well as by leading industrial companies.

Mrs. Diana Strickland is the leader of an expedition consisting of two white women and four men, with 300 native porters, which will shortly set out from Boma, on the west coast of Africa, to travel on foot through the unexpored Rahuni country to the Northeast Congo.

POLISHING FURNITURE.

Don't use too much furniture cream or the surface will be so greasy that there will be endless labor in putting on a polish.

BACON FAT.

Bacon fat should never be thrown away. It may be used in salad dressing, to shorten gingerbread or enrich biscuits, or in any number of places where it is really preferable to plain lard.

RECIPES.

Coffee Cabinet Pudding—Beat three eggs, add one-third cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of powdered cinnamon, three-fourths teaspoonful of powdered nutmeg and one-half a teaspoonful of powdered clove. Pour in two cupfuls of milk and one cupful of strong coffee, which should be heated together. Add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of melted butter.

Thoroughly grease a mold and sprinkle it with one cupful of finely chopped dates, then put in a layer of sponge cake. Strew over this a few more dates, continuing in this way until all the sponge cake and dates have been used and the mold is three-fourths full. Pour the egg mixture over this, cover and steam for one hour. Serve with coffee caramel sauce. Stale sponge cake or a mixture of odds and ends of cake may be used in this dessert.

Italian Casserole. — One pound of rumpsteak cut into squares; two tablespoonfuls of olive oil, a quarter of a pound of sweet peppers, a pint of stewed tomatoes with the seeds strained out, a saltspoonful of dried thyme, black pepper, salt, and a small piece of a red pepper. Brown the beef in the olive oil, add the vegetables and the seasonings and cook for an hour. Thicken the sauce with a soupspoonful of flour mixed smooth in cold water.

Stories That Recall Others

Thanks!

A rather awkward looking individual went into an ice cream parlor the other day and bought an ice cream cone. He went out on the sidewalk to eat it. Presently he reappeared with the cone emptied of the ice cream, and, handing it to the astonished clerk, said: "Thank you for the vase."

Hard to Get Away From 'Em.

One of the party had just remarked about another crossing accident when a listener told of being on a train that was brought to a sudden stop.

The engineer jumped from his cab and passengers stuck their heads out of the windows to see a small truck standing just at the edge of the track with its front bumper shorn off. Investigation showed that the driver had run into the engine just at the cab. His bumper had caught on the air hose and pulled it loose, causing the brakes on all the cars to become set, and the train to stop. The engine had pulled the bumper off the automobile, but that was all the damage that had been done.

The engineer walked up to the driver of the machine still shaking in his seat. "Confound it," he said, shaking his finger at the man, "I have hard enough time dodging these darned automobiles on the streets downtown, and then, by gum, here comes one and tries to run over me while I'm in my engine."

CHILD TRAINING

The Influence of Example.

By Helena Wilson.

Parenthood imposes both privilege and opportunity. Only to the extent that parents realize this can they fulfill their obligations to their children. The personal character of the parent is a moral force; his example a silent teacher.

Because a child is trustful and impressionable too great care cannot be taken to surround him with the right environment. The influence of his home and associates is readily discovered by watching the child. Having few experiences of his own, he naturally imitates whatever he hears or sees. A certain little girl of ten had learned to courtesy when introduced to her elders. This form of salutation so impressed her little cousin of six that she immediately adopted it and within a week a younger sister and brother of two were attempting that accomplishment with more or less success.

It is generally through the indolence, negligence and sometimes ignorance of the parent that the child is not given the right start in life. Honesty, and exhaustless patience, keen insight and trustworthiness are necessary in the person who is responsible for his training.

The older child finds his ideals in the great characters of history and literature; to the young child father, mother, and other intimates are the ideal, the very embodiment of what is best and he follows the pattern set before him.

If on one occasion a mother makes a promise and fulfills it and at another time and without any explanation to the child fails to do so, now can he be expected to trust her? If one day she punishes her child for carelessness or some other childish misdemeanor and the next day overlooks the same offence because she is busy with some important household task or is visiting with a neighbor, how can the child "believe in a truth and justice that are eternal?" Surely the same results should follow the same acts. Small wonder that some children are capricious or rebellious.

A certain mother who was much surprised that her small daughter lied very frequently and seemingly without cause, would have been filled with shame had she recalled how often she had said to her maid in the child's hearing, "Tell Mrs. Blank that I am not at home today."

The right home training is the greatest force for morality. The character of the individual is determined by the way in which it is begun.

Were the right influence, example and environment given to all children there would be no need for reformatories; a verbal pledge would be as binding as a written one and the name of the profiteer would not be upon every tongue.

"Sow a thought, reap an act,
Sow an act, reap a habit,

Mary G. Cowan, widow of Amos T. Otis, died Friday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Palmer, Vergason road, Norwich Town. Mrs. Otis, who was 82 years of age, was born Feb. 21, 1841, the daughter of Alexander and Marion Cowan. In 1863 she was united in marriage with Amos T. Otis, who died in 1904.

Mrs. Otis was a devoted member of the Central Baptist church, having united with that church at an early age, during the pastorate of Rev. Frederic Denison. She is survived by two sons, A. Thatcher Otis and Robert W. Otis, and two daughters, Mrs. Benjamin H. Palmer and Mrs. George A. Ashbey, all of this city. There are also five grandchildren.

James Gray Lathrop.

James Gray Lathrop, 70, of Windham, noted for 30 years as one of the best physical instructors and trainers of college track and field athletes in this country, died Saturday morning at a Norwich hospital, where he had been a patient for the past month. Mr. Lathrop suffered a stroke of apoplexy 13 years ago while an athletic trainer at Wisconsin university. He made partial recovery for three years, but after that his health became gradually impaired. He spent most of the past 10 years at his home in Windham.

Mr. Lathrop was a most attractive man, due in great measure to his practically perfect physique. He was a great lover of outdoor life and his record as a hunter and fisherman in Windham ranks among the highest. He had secured almost one thousand raccoons when his health failed him. As an athlete he ranked with the greatest in the country in his earlier years and at one time was considered the best sprinter for distances from 100 to 440 yards in the United States. He had a large collection of trophies.

He was born in Windham March 4, 1853, the son of DeWitt Clinton and Charlotte Gray Lathrop. He leaves his wife, Mary Larrabee, whom he married Dec. 19, 1876. They had no children. There also survive two brothers, H. Clinton Lathrop of Windham, president of the Windham National bank, and William W. Lathrop of Warren, O.; two nephews, DeWitt Lathrop of Prospect Harbor, Me., and H. Keeney Lathrop of Windham, a student at Brown university, and a niece, Miss Charlotte Lathrop of Windham.

Mr. Lathrop's father, a direct descendant of Rev. John Lathrop of Cambridge, England, was a graduate of Yale Medical school, class of 1846, and was a brigade surgeon in the United States army in the War of the Rebellion, 1861-65. On his mother's side, Mr. Lathrop is descended from a Dorsetshire, England, family of Grays, the line traced as follows: Dr. Samuel Gray of Dorsetshire, England, Dr. Ebenezer Gray, graduate of Harvard university in 1716, Samuel Gray, graduate of Dartmouth in 1774 (the first class numbering four), appointed commissary general under Governor Jonathan Trumbull of Connecticut during the Revolutionary war; Thomas Gray, graduate of Yale university in 1818, and clerk of the senate at Washington, D. C., for 18 years. Other members were General Jedediah Elderkin, a Yale graduate and brigadier general in the Revolutionary war, and Captain Nathaniel Webb, another graduate of Yale and captain in the Revolutionary army.

James Gray Lathrop entered Pine Grove seminary after his preliminary education in the public schools of Windham. He was employed as a clerk in a number of establishments but always showed remarkable ability for athletics. He later became chief trainer at Harvard university from 1891 to 1904, when he resigned. He trained and instructed at Bates, Bowdoin colleges and at Wisconsin university.

In 1874, with three others, Mr Lathrop founded the Union Athletic club at the Young Men's Christian union in Boston, the first athletic club in New England.

NORWICH SOLDIERS HOME FROM VIRGINIA CAMP

Battery B, and First Headquarters and Combat Train, 192nd Artillery, Connecticut National Guard, arrived back in Norwich Saturday morning after completing their two weeks tour of duty at Camp Eustis, Virginia. The troop train carrying the two local companies, the Danielson company and New London companies arrived in New London at 8.45 o'clock and the Norwich and Danielson guardsmen paraded to the New London armory with the New London companies, headed by the regimental band.

A feature of the camp was the presentation to Brig. Gen Morris B. Payne of New London, former commander of the regiment, of a silver mounted sword, upon his visit to Camp Eustis, last week. The sword was the gift of the officers of the regiment and was presented at a dinner given by the regimental officers of the post. The presentation was made by Colonel Morgenson.

ORGANIZATION PLANS COMPLETED FOR BACKUS HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN

Complete organization plans for Norwich in the Backus hospital appeal for $250,000 was announced Saturday by James L. Case, chairman of the executive committee and campaign leader, following a meeting on Friday afternoon at headquarters, at which the men's division was represented by an attendance of twenty. Organization of the neighborhood towns is well under way, said Mr. Case.

As previously told in The Bulletin, the organization is headed by an advisory committee, of which Henry A. Tirrell, president of the hospital, is chairman. The four vice-chairmen of this committee are: Hon. Milo R. Waters, Rev. William A. Keefe, Herbert M. Lerou, and Samuel Goldberg. The advisory committee, representing every group in the community, will include some two hundred men.

There will be two major divisions of the workers for Norwich, the men's division, with Philip A. Johnson as chairman, and the women's division, with Mrs. Allyn L. Brown as chairman.

Each of the divisions will consist of twenty teams and each team will comprise a captain, a lieutenant, and nine workers.

The teams of each division are under the leadership of four commanders, each commander with five teams.

The commanders of the men's division are: Herbert B. Cary, Russell A. Clapp, Harry M. Land and Timothy C. Murphy.

The commanders of the women's division are: Mrs. Joseph P. Cummings, Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, Mrs. Alexander H. Manes and Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins.

The following committees were announced: Industries committee, Oliver L. Johnson, chairman; publicity and speakers committee, Shepard B. Palmer, chairman; former residents committee, Grosvenor Ely, chairman; classification committee, James C. Macpherson, chairman.

Outside of Norwich the campaign will be conducted through the neighborhood division, with William G. Park as chairman. A meeting of representative citizens of neighborhood towns was held at The Wauregan on Thursday night last, with Mr. Tirrell presiding. It was decided to proceed with the organization of town committees in fifteen of the neighborhood towns and to enlist teams for the purpose of carrying the story to the people living in those towns and to the entire countryside.

A meeting of the chairman, commanders and team captains of the women's division will be held at headquarters Wednesday evening at 7.30.

Questions and Answers

For the information of the community, which the Backus hospital has served for thirty years, depending upon its own resources, the following facts have been prepared by the compaign executive committee, under the title Questions and Answers About Our Hospital.

Who owns our hospital?

Our hospital is owned by the entire community it serves. The corporators are trustees, whose duty and privilege it is to administer community service for community benefit.

Who runs our hospital?

Our hospital is managed by an executive committee, elected by the corporators. The executive committee employs the superintendent and the matron of the hospital, and the latter is the superintendent of the training school. The medical and surgical staff is responsible for maintaining the standards of hospital service at the highest.

Who built our hospital?

Our hospital was built by gifts of William W. Backus and William A. Slater. The funds so provided purchased the land, erected the hospital group, furnished and equipped the buildings, and endowed the institution, without calling upon the community for a single dollar. Property holders have never been taxed in any way for its work or maintenance.

Who pays for hospital service?

Patients who are financially able to pay the rates are charged accordingly. By far the greater part of the service rendered by our hospital is given either without charge or at rates that are less than the cost of the service.

The service our hospital strives to give.

Our hospital bases all its work upon the need of patients for hospital care, regardless of the patients' ability to pay.

The service our hospital actually gives.

Our hospital gives the best service that medical or surgical skill, and competent nursing, can provide. When the patient can afford to pay, the rate for the service is charged, and the patient makes his own terms with his physician or surgeon. When the patient can afford to pay only in part of the hospital service, he pays what he can. If he can afford to pay nothing, then he is cared for free.

The income from patients, derived from rates, does not pay for the cost of operating our hospital. The loss incurred by giving service at less than cost has been for years made good from the income of endowment funds. In recent years such income has been insufficient to make good this loss, because the amount of the loss has increased with the cost of operation and it has, therefore, been necessary to draw upon the principal of invested funds.

Who makes money out of our hospital?

Nobody makes money out of our hospital. The corporators are not paid. The members of the executive committee give their time and managerial ability as a public service. The medical and surgical staff give much of their service without charge.

In 1922 our hospital received $19,850.11 as interest and dividends from its endowment.

What rates are charged?

General wards, $14 per week; regular rates children's semi-private rooms $10 per week; semi-private rooms on second floor, $22 per week; private rooms on third floor, $28 per week; room with bath, $40 per week; private maternity rooms, $30 per week; public maternity ward, $16 per week; use of delivery room, $4 per week; isolated ward, private rooms, $30 per week; isolated ward, $15 per week. These rates include medical attendance, nursing, board and laundry.

There is a charge of $10 for the use of the operating room for major operations and of $5 for minor operations. Ward patients pay one-half these rates.

Last year our hospital received from patients $40,094.42. It expended $80,528.30. In other words the care of patients cost twice as much as was received in income from patients.

What it costs to serve each patient.

The cost of hospital service has been steadily mounting everywhere. Nevertheless, our hospital served its 1304 patients last year at an average cost of $27.71 per week or a fraction less than $4 a day. This cost per patient compares favorably with the average cost per patient at the 57 New York hospitals that are members of the United Hospital Fund, which is nearer $5 than $4 per day.

Where the difference comes from.

The loss incurred in caring for patients is made up from endowment income, from state aid, from gifts to the hospital.

Why our hospital receives state aid.

Because of the high standard of service given by our hospital, and the need of continuing this service at moderate rates, so that those who need it most may receive it, the state of Connecticut grants our hospital state aid. The last grant was $8,500 for two years

Why our hospital once rejected state aid.

From the beginning it has been the policy of our hospital to live within its income, while giving the largest possible amount and the best possible quality of service at the lowest possible rates. In 1901, when state aid was declined, the executive committee was convinced that this policy could be carried on without state aid, and its members believed that as long as this could be done the public interest was best served by maintaining the hospital upon an independent footing.

Our hospital now accepts state aid as do the other Connecticut hospitals because, with the ever increasing cost of operation, it is no longer able to carry on its policy of maximum service at minimum cost without accepting the state appropriation.

The difference between hospitals and other public utilities as schools, water supplies and gas and electric services.

Except when the hospital is a state or municipal institution, it is established and sustained by volunteer community effort, and is not built by appropriation or supported by taxation or by rates.

The chief aim of every hospital management is first of all to furnish service to the sick, and to the injured. If such a service is to be supplied according to need, then the rates must be so fixed that they shall be within the means of patients of moderate income and when patients are unable to pay for the service it must be given to them. If rates are made on such a basis that every patient who receives hospital care pays in full for the cost of that care then a very large proportion of the patients who require hospital service would be unable to obtain that service. The measure of the financial efficiency of a hospital is the amount and quality of service it is able to give at the lowest possible cost. Because our hospital was generously endowed in the beginning, and has been conservatively managed, it has been able, over a period of almost thirty years, to give a very large proportion of its service at less than cost, and still live within its income.

Why hospitals do not set aside expansion funds.

Since the aim of all hospitals is to furnish service, and to furnish a large proportion of this service at less than cost, it is clearly impossible for hospitals to set aside a surplus out of profits. They never have profits to set aside. Consequently, whenever, through the growth of the community demand for hospital service, it becomes necessary to increase hospital facilities by building or by providing new equipment, there is only one way in which this demand for growth can be satisfied, and that is by providing new funds.

Why additional endowment becomes necessary.

The purchasing power of the hospital dollar has been cut in two, just as other income dollars have been divided during the last ten years. Any institution, public or private, that depends upon endowment income requires twice as much income and therefore twice as much endowment now as it required before the war. Hospitals are no exception to this rule.

For example: If we had no hospital now, it would cost us twice as much to build such a hospital as ours, and it would require twice as large an endowment as our hospital now has to yield an adequate endowment income.

The usual method of establishing and maintaining a hospital.

Nearly every community that has the benefits of hospital service has these benefits because it created them itself and maintained them itself. The Backus hospital community is, in this respect, a privileged community. Our hospital was given to us without contribution on our part, and we have had all the benefits of hospital service without financial sacrifices.

With our hospital often filled to capacity, with the demand for service steadily increasing, with the cost of the service greater than the income from patients and from endowments combined, and with the need for increased and better facilities imperative, the only way in which our hospital can continue to give a full measure of service is for the community, by united effort, to provide necessary funds for new construction, new equipment, and increased endowment.

Can we do it?

Consider what other communities have done by the use of the same method that we are using in our appeal for Backus hospital.

Not long ago Keene and Cheshire county, N. H., raised $273,000, subscribed by a population of 22,000. The people of the city of Keene alone gave $311,000 of this amount. Keene has 11,000 people.

Nyack, N. Y., and part of Rockland county, with 25,000 people, raised $400,000 in July.

Westerly, R. I., with the aid of other neighboring communities, and with a combined population considerably less than that of Norwich alone, raised $750,000 in August. Of this total, Watch Hill contributed only $62,458. The women's division for Westerly alone brought in more than the entire amount of the objective, or $250,000.

Recent successful appeals for hospitals in Connecticut include: St. Mary's at Waterbury, Mt. Sinai at Hartford, Danbury, Meriden, New Haven, New Britain, Bristol and Middletown.

Nowhere have hospitals been able to maintain themselves under the pressure of high costs and increased demands for service. Everywhere hospitals have obtained, through public appeal, the funds with which to carry on.

BALD HILL, UNION, IS SCENIC SPOT IN STATE

The Bulletin's Putnam correspondent writes:

While hundreds of Connecticut citizens know that there is such a place as Bald Hill in the town of Union, in Windham county, there are thousands who doubtless never heard of it. Yet from this point among the high hills of Union, on a clear day, may be seen the White Mountains of New Hampshire, the Green Mountains of Vermont, and the Sound between the Connecticut shore and Long Island.

Bald Hill is reached from Putnam, Stafford Springs or Southbridge, the nearest settled points. Over roads that are impassable, almost, in the spring, but are as good as the average country road in the dry season, one passes through a tangled wildwood of forest, virgin forests in some of the wildest spots, and through a country where no locomotive whistle penetrates the stillness, so far from the railroad is this section of the country. A person not familiar with the locality would be hard to convince that within fifteen miles of city life is to be found a piece of country that in beauty and natural wildness will vie with some of the remote territory in Maine to which people go year after year arriving only after long journeys by rail, automobile and possible, canoe constant climb. Passing through need not be surprised to hear the whirr of a rising partridge, the hoot of an owl, or to see scampering across the road Bro' Rabbit, a groundhog or two, possibly a fox or a deer—these are no unusual sights during a trip to Union.

The approach to Union Village is one constant climp. Passing through the village with its historic green and travelling two miles westward one comes to what looks to be a cart path leaving the main road to Stafford Springs at right angles. Unless known, no one would suspect that the roadway was passable to automobiles. It is, however, and with a constant steep climb for a mile one reaches a plateau from which unfolds the grandest view in Eastern Connecticut and probably the state. This is the summit of Bald Hill.

On this plateau is a house with a small tower. In this house during all but the severe winter months lives Mrs. Harvey Lawson. Her husband is a minister and they own a farm in the town. Mrs. Lawson lives at this altitude because of trouble with asthma. Nearly every Sunday religious services are held for people coming to the spot. The place is also a government fire look-out and there is a telephone. A box has recently been installed in which visitors drop coins. When the amount is sufficient a radio set will be installed.

In this day when the motorist racks his brain for new roads to travel, new scenes to behold, a visit to Bald Hill, especially in the fall, will more than compensate for the effort and the rough trip over country rather than smoother state roads.

33 LICENSES SUSPENDED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Thirty-three motor vehicle operators' licenses were suspended by the state motor vehicle department during the past week for first convictions of reckless driving, in accordance with a ruling of Commissioner Stoeckel made on Sept. 12 that all convictions for reckless driving, whether they were the first, second or third in the experience of the operators, would result in the immediate forfeiture of their right to drive on the public highways. In addition to these, there were about a dozen suspensions affecting drivers convicted for a second or third time of this offense.

Drivers from 18 different places were on the list of those whose licenses were suspended for first convictions last week. Bridgeport led with five to its credit, followed by Hartford, and Waterbury with three each, Bristol, New Britain and East Killy with two each, and Danbury, Wethersfield, West Hartford, Stamford, Suffield, Ansonia, Fairfield, Rockville and Westport one each. The right of two drivers from New York city, one from Providence and another from Framingham, Mass., to operate motor vehicles in Connecticut was suspended for the same reason.

The effect of the motor vehicle department's liberal use of its suspension power in an effort to check a tremendous increase in recklessness in the operation of automobiles was quickly felt. The state police report a marked improvement in general driving conditions for the past week and a decrease in general accidents. There were four major accidents, however, resulting in six deaths, up to Friday.

TWO BRING SUIT FOR $7,000 DAMAGE CLAIMS

Robert H. Clark of New London is made the defendant in two suits arising from an automobile accident on the Westerly road Sept. 9, 1922. The suits are brought by Joseph DeSimone of Boston and Alexander Rose of Westerly, the former asking damages of $5,000 and the latter $2,000.

Both the plaintiffs were passengers in an automobile owned and driven by Vincent DeSimone at the time of the accident. It is claimed that while the machine in which they were riding was rounding a curve on the Westerly road the defendant's automobile skidded their machine, as a result of which they were both injured about the head and face. They allege that the collision was due to the fact that the defendant did not give the machine they were occupying half the road.

GIANTS NEED ONLY 50-50 BREAK TO WIN PENNANT IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

New York, Sept. 23.—The New York Giants advanced during last week to a position where 50-50 ball will give them a good edge on first place in the National league, and assure their playing the worlds series with the New York Yankees. They won all of the six games played. The Cincinnati Reds, their only rivals, won six and lost one, and also won today's game from Brooklyn. The Pirates are out of the running, for if they won every remaining game their tally would stand 92 won and 62 lost, while if the Giants lost all remaining games they would have won 92 and lost 61, one game with St. Louis having been cancelled.

In the American league the Yankees and the Indans kept their distance, each winning three and losing two. Cleveland splitting a double header with Washington today. Detroit made the greatest number of runs during the week with a total score of 71, and a hit score of 120.

The records of the major leagues for the past week, with games won and lost, runs, hits, errors and opponents' runs follows:

SIXTY-FOUR GOLF STARS TO TRY FOR "PRO" CHAMPIONSHIP

Pelham Manor, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Sixty-four professional golf stars, representing every section of the country, will tee off tomorrow morning in the first round of match play for the Professional Golfers' Association championship at Pelham Country club.

Gene Sarazen, of Briar Cliff Manor, will defend his title against a field that includes Walter Hagen, of New York; Joe Kirkwood, formerly of Australia; Jock Hutchinson and Eddie Loos, of Chicago; Mike Brady, of Detroit; Jim Barnes, of Pelham; Fred McLeod, of Washington; George Mc-Lean, of Bronxville, N. Y., and numerous others.

Experts pick the probable victor from among these stars but the competition promises to be unusually keen. Most of the players turned up their strokes today over the Pelham course, one of the most testing layouts in the metropolitan district.

The first pair will tee off tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock followed by others at five minute intervals.

TROLAND CLAIMS O'LEARY'S WORD "INEXPERIENCED" BAD

O'Leary certainly is not lacking in words in describing my ability as manager of a baseball team, but where he gets that stuff about my being "inexperienced" as a manager is beyond me.

I'll leave it to the real fans around here. Whoever heard of O'Leary as a baseball manager until last season? I've forgotten more about baseball than O'Leary will ever learn and I've been in the game for 15 years. Quiet some "experience," maybe.

Yes, I'm inexperienced, I didn't mean anything to me to manage the Sachems, Old Warriors, for 12 years, beating every team in the eastern part of the state.

I expect to clean up O'Leary this fall and make a real cleaning up job too, and he the first Taftville manager to pull the trick.

O'Leary claims that Taftville backed out of the series last year. Excuse an old phrase, but I must say "Where'd he get that way?" the Taftville association did not have anything to do with the games last year. The fans know that two Taftville men and O'Leary handled the series last year and due to a misunderstanding between the two Taftville men and the Norwich manager the series was called off. That's why and for no other reason, and O'Leary knows it.

I'm looking for that series and look to see Taftville win. How about it?

MANAGER TROLAND.

HARTFORD WINS LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP; MOST CLUBS HAD PROFITABLE SEASON

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 23.—With the Hartford Senators showing their heels to the seven other clubs, the 1923 championship race in the Eastern league came to a close today. It was an auspicious ending of the season, rain preventing all four scheduled games from being played.

The Hartford team taking an early lead in the race held it throughout most of the season, relinquishing it to the New Haven Profs for a short time twice duding the year.

A month ago, with a crippled lineup, the Hartford team went into a slump and dropped the lead for a short time, but upon regaining its previous strength, soon was out in front of the other team.

It was one of the most exciting races held in the league for years, Hartford and New Haven battling to within a few games of the finish, after Hartford won a crucial series with New Haven September 3, the Senators swept to victory.

At the beginning of the season, experts selected Hartford to finish sixth and Bridgeport for first. There were upsets in many cases, Waterbury supposedly a strong team, made a poor showing throughout the season.

It was a profitable year for many of the owners but some are believed to have lost money.

The other teams finished as follows: New Haven, Worcester, Springfield, Bridgeport, Albany, Pittsfield and Waterbury.

The standing of the Eastern league teams at the close of the season today are:

| | W. | L. | Pc. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Hartford | 86 | 55 | .641 |
| New Haven | 80 | 63 | .589 |
| Worcester | 79 | 74 | .516 |
| Springfield | 78 | 77 | .496 |
| Bridgeport | 71 | 81 | .467 |
| Albany | 67 | 84 | .444 |
| Pittsfield | 66 | 87 | .431 |
| Waterbury | 64 | 90 | .416 |

HARTFORD GETS MINOR LEAGUE CHAMP GAMES

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 23.—The Hartford club pennant winner of the Eastern league will meet Baltimore, champions of the International league, in a three-game series to be played in Hartford on October 4, 5 and 6.

REDS REMAIN IN FIGHT BY WINNING OVER DODGERS

Cincinnati, Sept. 23.—Cincinnati remained in the fight for the National league pennant by winning their final game from Brooklyn today, 5 to 1. Duncan led in the hitting with a single, a double and a home run which bounded into the right field stand. He scored one run and drove in three others. Fournier was put out of the game while at bat in the first inning for kicking on a called strike.

SATURDAY'S MARKET.

Subsidence of recent selling pressure brought about rather general short-covering, the gains in the active issues ranging from small fractions to 2 points. The gains were distributed over a wide list but the best exhibitions of group strength were made by the sugars, equipments, cans and motors.

News developments apparently had little effect on security values. Cable dispatches, particularly those dealing with the reparations situation, appeared cheerful. Reports that trade was expanding cautiously but steadily were counteracted by rumors of further curtailment in the steel and motor industries.

Rails moved up with the industrials, the best inquiry being noted for the eastern carriers. Baltimore & Ohio continued its steady advance on reports that August earnings will exceed $4,500,000 net, as compared with a deficit of about $650,000 in the same month last year. Early resumption of dividends on the common stock is expected by Wall street in line with the directors' announcement earlier in the year. Baltimore & Ohio touched 51 7-8, but slipped back to 51 1-2, where it was up 1-3 on the day. Canadian Pacific, New Haven and Reading each gained nearly a point.

Tobacco stocks failed to respond to the announcement that cigarette production was running 36 per cent ahead of last year.

The only conspicuous weak spots were Goodrich preferred which broke 7 points and Commercial Solvents A and B, which yielded 2 and 3 3-4 respectively.

Foreign exchange continued to improve. Demand sterling advanced one cent to $4.55 1-8 and French francs advanced slightly to 6.01 1-2 cents. Marked improvement was shown by Spanish pesetas, which jumped 31 points, to 13.85 cents. Higher prices for silver resulted in improvement in the far eastern rates.

The weekly clearing house statement showed increases of $12,500,000 in loans, discounts and investments, and $4,445,000 in time deposits. The reserve of member banks in the federal reserve bank dropped $19,247,000 below the week before while net demand deposits showed a shrinkage of $13,836,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $483,770,000, leaving a deficit in reserve of $6,354,660, a decrease of $17,344,630 as compared with a week ago.

The Strand.

An extra fine program of B. F. Keith vaudeville and special photoplay is assured the patrons of the Strand theatre the first half of this week.

The show will open with Blair & Pennington in Furious Foolishness, who entertain with singing, eccentric dancing and comedy.

Gallagher & Shean present Shean & Phillips in The Younger Edition.

Billy Beard, "The Party From the South," is one of the featured acts. He is a blackface monologue who is without a peer and is considered in minstrel shows as one of the greatest comedians on the stage today.

Silvas, Braun & Co., the second featured attraction consist of three people in A Naval Surprise.

The photoplay feature is Broken Chains, the Chicago Daily News prize winning story with Ernest Torrence, Colleen Moore, Claire Windsor and Malcom McGregor. They called him a coward back in his gilded Long Island, social set. But out in a lawless mountain country he found a girl worth fighting for—and then what a battle! It will give you the greatest thrill of your life. Here is a wonderful two-fisted romance that you will go wild about!

Broad Theatre.

Actual motion pictures of Monte Carlo, its casino and terrace and glimpses of Cote de Azure with members of its cast in the scenes, are features of the Cosmopolitan picture Enemies of Women, directed by Alan Crosland from Blasco Ibanez's latest novel, which opened a four days' engagement at the Breed theatre last night. The director took the entire company to the Riviera where six weeks were spent on these scenes. They are magnificent in their beauty. So are the gorgeous palace and villa sets, designed by Joseph Urban, famous Viennese artist, in which Prince Michael Lubimoff, Russian wastrel, stages gorgeous parties, made vivid by many beautiful women and highly colored decorations.

The action of the story begins at Lubimoff's palace in Moscow in 1917 and ends in Monte Carlo in 1918. The plot deals with the decadent prince, played by Lionel Barrymore, and his regeneration, along with that of Alicia, Duchess Delille, acted by Alma Ruhens, through war service and self-sacrifice. The dissolute prince gives Mr. Barrymore one of his finest screen creations; he acts it with brilliant and sardonic realism. Miss Ruhens also gives an eloquent performance—even more dramatic than her acting in Humoresque. The supporting cast, including Pedro de Cordoba, Gladys Hulette, William H. Thompson, Gareth Hughes, William Collier, Jr., Mario Majeroni and Betty Bouton, give valuable assistance.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe News and an Educational comedy.

Sousa's Humoresque on Gallagher and Shean.

Every year, as his patrons well know, John Philip Sousa sets his lively fancy to work on a humoresque or fantasia built on one of the recent fad-tunes. Last year, he took The Silver Lining, from Sally, and made it the basis of one of the most entertaining numbers in his program. This year, his fancy turns to Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean, the foolish song which has served to make of its two singers, the well-known Gallagher and Shean of the varieties, national figures.

It is characteristic of the March-King that he has never ignored a contemporary composer whose work has possessed the element of vitality: "the thing to do with a good tune," he has often said, "is to send it along." It is estimated that Jerome Kern, who composed The Silver Lining, is richer by his royalty on the sale of at least half a million copies as a result of Sousa's use of the tune in communities where Sally has never been played.

Sousa's band will give a concert in the Norwich state armory on Tuesday evening, Sept. 25.

FIRE DESTROYS THE CLIFF HOUSE AT KENNEBUNKPORT

Kennebunkport, Me., Sept. 23.—The Cliff house, in the center of the summer colony here, was burned to the ground early today. Absence of a wind prevented a more serious conflagration and firemen from Biddeford and Kennebunk were able to save hotels and cottages only a short distance away. The loss was estimated at about $50,000.

MADE 454 NEW NORWICH VOTERS INCLUDING 244 MEN, 210 WOMEN

At the close of Saturday, which was the final day for making new voters, the Norwich board found that 454 had appeared at the town hall to avail themselves of the privilege of becoming electors. The board comprises Selectmen Casper K. Bailey, Charles P. Bushnell and Erroll C. Lillibridge and Town Clerk Charles S. Holbrook, with the two registrars of voters, Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes, assisting by keeping the records.

Several old voters were restored to the lists. As usual a number of voters came before the board whose names were not on the lists for which applications were made out for them. These persons may be made voters next year during the month of October.

Of the total of 454 voters made, 244 were men and 210 women. This was about 48 per cent. of the 954 names of men and women which were on the to-be-made list.

Two years ago there were 711 names on the to-be-made list from which 286 voters were made, or only about 40 per cent.

COURT SHOWS LENIENCY AFTER TOOTH PULLING

Having one's teeth pulled and being in intense pain proved a successful excuse for getting drunk, in the Willimantic police court, Saturday morning. The man with the recently removed molars was William Phillips, who said he was a cotton weaver and had quit a job in Uncasville last week because of the short time schedule, going to Willimantic to seek work. Judge F. H. Foss accepted the explanation for being intoxicated and imposed a suspended jail sentence of 15 days for one month's time and if Phillips is again brought before the court for being drunk the suspended sentence will go into effect.

COST OF LIVING HIGHER THAN EVER BEFORE

New York, Sept. 23.—The cost of living in the last six months has risen to a point higher than ever before, it was announced today in a statement by the national industrial conference board, but the earnings of the average American workingman have gone, proportionately, even higher. In other words, the wage situation reflects a higher level for so-called "real" earnings, compared with what these earnings will buy, than at any time since before the war, not excepting the "peak" period of 1920, the report stated.

Rent has risen more rapidly than any other item in the family budget, having climbed to a point 75 per cent. higher than in 1914. From March, 1922, to last July, there was a steady rise in the cost of living amounting to 4.7 per cent.

Between March and July of this year food prices soared 3.5 per cent. to a point 47 per cent. above the pre-war level. The potato led all other varieties of food, having climbed 147 per cent. since 1914.

In the rent item, inflation seemed to have subsided somewhat in the larger eastern cities, except in Washington, where there was an increase of between 11 and 20 per cent.

SOCIAL WORKERS COUNCIL TO HOLD FALL MEETING

The Social Workers Council of New London and Windham counties, organized June 5th, at Norwich State hospital, is having its opening fall meeting in New London, on Wednesday, September 26th, at 2.30. Mrs. Lewis Phillips, general secretary of the Associated Charities of New London is the hostess. There are some final arrangements to be made at the meeting regarding the permanent organization, such as the constitution and basis of membership, Dr. Kathryn Bryon of the Norwich state hospital is president. Miss Edith Moran, family welfare worker of the Norwich United Workers, is secretary and treasurer.

WILL HAVE $15,000,000 FOR HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT

Close to $15,000,000 will be available during the next two years to carry on the work of the State Highway Department, according to an estimate made public by the Department. This sum includes direct appropriations from the state and fees which the motor vehicle department receives from registrations, licenses and fines, in addition to the state tax on gasoline. The law requires that all fees from the motor vehicle department be used for the reconstruction and maintenance of trunk line highways.

The amount appropriated by the General Assembly for the highway department for the current two-year fiscal period aggregates $4,200,000. The remaining $10,000,000 it is estimated will be received through the motor vehicle department.

It is estimated that the gasoline tax will produce $2,000,000 in revenue during the next two years. The result will be that improvements and construction on the highways to that amount will be made possible, which Commissioner John A. Macdonald pointed out, will be of direct benefit to the motorist who pays the tax. It is inevitable that highway improvements mean a longer life for the cars traversing them, and, rather than proving an unfair burden, the tax on gasoline has been found to be a sound investment for the automobile owner.

For the fiscal two year period ended June 30th, the highway department received $7,600,000 in fees from the motor vehicle department, which was exclusive of the gasoline tax receipts. Based on income for the first two months of the present fiscal year, it is considered likely that this source of revenue will produce nearer $9,000,000 for the 1924-25 period.

This, combined with an estimated receipt of $8,000,000 from the gasoline tax, and the department's direct appropriation of $4,200,000 will aggregate close to $15,000,000. This will be the largest sum ever made available during two years for highway improvements in Connecticut, and should make possible the most comprehensive road-building program the state has ever witnessed.

U. S. S. CAMDEN SAILOR RESCUES NEW LONDON BOY FROM DROWNING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 23.—An automobile owned by Loren E. Daboll, with office at 154 State street, was struck by a car, owned and driven by Charles V. Alquist of 457 Bank street, Saturday afternoon, while the Daboll automobile was motionless alongside the curb on Bank street. The Daboll car was considerably damaged.

An automobile, owned and operated by Robert Cruickshank of Waterford and a machine, owned and driven by Harry B. Bacharach of 1475 West 109th street, New York, were in collision late Saturday on Main street. Both machines were damaged.

The police were given, the worst kind of a jolt Saturday night when State street harbored a score or more of sailors from U. S. S. Camden, at anchor in the lower harbor, and all under the influence of liquor. They did not obtain their intoxicants in any of the places here, but appeared in their drunken state when they alighted from a liberty boat about 7 o'clock at the municipal wharf. There were about fifty sailors and over half of them displayed signs of liquor and it is claimed by the police that the bluejackets obtained alcohol aboard the ship and diluted with water. As a result they became a nuisance about the streets and it was only after some of them had been threatened with arrest that they disappeared. Traffic Officer Walter Rehn took into custody Charles Schumacher when the sailor staggered into the entrance to the King office building at No. 98 State street. Another sailor, Albert Cameron, a member of the crew of the undersea boat, S-12, was arrested late in the night when making a nuisance of himself on Bank street. Cameron was ordered to his ship by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and when he rebelled, Cameron was placed under arrest. Cameron fought Sergeant Murphy and Patrolman James McKenna, who went to his superior officer's assistance and the bluejacket was finally lodged in a cell. A provost guard was about the streets throughout the afternoon and night and members declared that if they had been at the municipal wharf when the sailors were landed the entire gang would have been taken back to Camden.

Walter J. McCormick, aged 17, of 100 Sprague street, Providence, and Albert Cote, aged 15, of 416 Public street, Providence, are locked up at the police station, having been arrested this morning because of evading the payment of toll at the Saybrook highway bridge and to purchasing fuel at a Waterford supply station and then driving away without paying for it. The youths reached Saybrook bridge, with McCormick operating a Ford machine and when the collector appeared for the toll charges McCormick caused the car to speed over the bridge without stopping. A telephone message was sent to the police with the request that the operator of the car be stopped. A short time after the reception of the telephone call, the police received another telephone message from Richard B. Smith, proprietor of a supply station in Waterford, that the driver of a Ford car had purchased seven quarts of gasoline and had disappeared without paying for it. McCormick operated his car to the station and, after receiving the gasoline, ordered a quart of oil. While Smith went to procure the oil, McCormick drove the car away. Sergeant Nelson Smith about 7 o'clock located the machine on Bank street. McCormick and Cote were taken to the police station, where they admitted the fare evasion and obtaining the gasoline. When searched the youths had but 47 cents. The Providence police have been communicated with.

Cote's father in Providence was informed of the arrest of his son and the McCormick youth and advanced a sufficient sum for the boys to pay their toll charges and gasoline from the Red Top garage to the New London police. The lads were then released and started for home.

Peter Tortura, 14, of 77 Amity street, had a close call from drowning in the Thames river this afternoon, being rescued in an exhausted condition by George Zoyal, a seaman from the U. S. S. Camden. Young Tortura, with other youths and adults, fishing for snapper blues, went to the municipal pier about noon and started to try his luck. The fish did not bite and the youth started changing his position from one point to another along the stringers. He lost his balance and fell into the Thames. He could not swim and grabbed frantically at the piling. Zoyal happened to be on the pier and leaped into the river and in a few strokes was alongside the youth. Getting a good hold on the youngster Zoyal swam to the public landing, where the boy was landed, although greatly exhausted and suffering from the effects of the quantity of salt water that he had swallowed.

Rev. Percival F. Wolfendan, pastor several years of Jordan Baptist church and more recently pastor of a Meriden church, is now pastor of the Baptist church at Bristol, Conn.

Mrs. Anna Perry, nearly 70, sus-tained painful injuries yesterday forenoon when knocked down by an automobile, owned and operated by Davis N. Drauch of Oakdale, near Station 20 on the Lyme turnpike. Drauch was arrested by State Policeman J. K. Palmer and charged with reckless driving and will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in the Waterford court on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Perry was a passenger in a bus and at Station 20 alighted and as she stepped to the highway the automobile operated by Drauch attempted to pass with the result that Mrs. Perry was struck with considerable force and hurled to the highway. She was taken to the residence of Mrs. Emily Bolton, at Station 22, where she remained until given medical treatment, then returning to her home in New London.

Miss Josephine Terris, 23, residing on Mill street and employed at the Palmer Bros.' mill, Washington street, sustained serious injuries yesterday morning when she was struck by a portion of a cylinder head of a locomotive of the New Haven railroad. She is now a patient at Lawrence hospital, suffering from concussion of the brain and a fractured collarbone. Miss Terris was at Hallam street as an east bound freight was approaching. As the locomotive approached the crossing the cylinder head on the right side blew out. The metal head was hurled through the air with great force, a part of it striking the young woman on the shoulder and head and rendering her unconscious. Members of the train crew went to her assistance and observing that the woman was seriously injured a physician was summoned who had her taken to the hospital.

For a long time the silent police-man, of the flash light type, located at the corner of Bank and Howard streets, has been the cause of much inconvenience and an element of danger because of its location on the crosswalk of the two intersecting streets. The traffic officers there have lodged repeated complaint, but its removal to a location several feet into Howard street would not be permitted by former City Manager Barlow. Today Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney requested Courtland R Darrow, highway commissioner, to cause the "policeman" to be placed at a point six feet into Howard street.

John Connell, employed on the ferry-boat Mohican, had a close call from drowning Saturday forenoon when he fell into the Thames river. Connell was pumping out the float and in some manner fell into the water. There some sound advice was given the woman and the soldier and the trouble ended, at least temporarily when the soldier went away alone and the woman departed with her husband to go to their home.

Breen was arrested last spring during the sweeping military operations in South Tipperary. He has had a most adventurous career, which was especially prominent during the Anglo-Irish war, in which he was several times wounded. He was elected in the recent elections on an anti-treaty ticket.

POETRY

A SONG OF HOPE.

Come hither and let me tell you
A story you'll like to hear.
Of things you may want to remem
If ever the days grow drear.

For mine is a tale of beauty,
Of beauty that never dies,
It calls to us ever and ever,
In the blue of sunlit skies.

Vast peaks of distant grandeur,
Long sloping valley and dale,
Gnarled oaak, slim poplars and birches
The world in a misty veil.

And dawn in her flying chariot
Proclaims it o'er land and sea,
When the first dim flush of sunlight
Steals o'er a world that is free.

A world that has known the anguish
Of Christ who died on the cross,
A world growing strong from its sorrow,
Counting it gain not loss.

A world ringing out the message
To hearts o'erburdened with care—
Christ rose again for a purpose,
His footprints are everywhere.

This is the meaning of beauty,
In passing of Time it lies,
And the heart of the world beats stronger—
Beauty of Hope never dies.

GOLDENROD.

When the wayside tangles blaze
In the low September sun,
When the flowers of summer days
Droop and wither, one by one,
Reaching up through bush and brier,
Sumptuous brow and heart to fire,
Flaunting high its wind-racked plume
Brave with wealth of native bloom—
Goldenrod!

When the meadow, lately shorn,
Parched and languid, swoons with pain
When her life-blood, night and morn,
Shrinks in every throbbing vein,
Round her fallen, tarnished urn
Leaping watchfires brighter burn;
Royal arch o'er autumn's gate,
Bending low with lustrous weight—
Goldenrod!

In the pasture's rude embrace,
All o'er-run with tangled vines,
Where the thistle claims its place,
And the straggling hedge confines,
Bearing still the sweet impress
Of unfettered loveliness,
In the field and by the wall,
Binding, clashing, crowning all—
Goldenrod!

Nature lies disheveled, pale,
With her feverish lips apart—
Day by day the pulses fail,
Nearer to her bounding heart;
Yet that slackened grasp doth hold
Store of pure and genuine gold,
Quick thou comest, strong and free,
Type of all the wealth to be—
Goldenrod!

"Well, mother," said her little daughter, "what can you expect for a ha'penny?"

Steam is coming into general use on the large farms of the country, particularly in the middle of the far west. Steam power, supplanting the physical energy of the farmer's wife, is more and more being employed to scald the milk pails, cream separators, churning machinery and other dairying apparatus. Displacing the time-honored windmill and bucksaw, it is pumping the farmer's water and sawing his wood. Through steam power the nation's cheese industry is being developed.

In Brazil 18,000 persons a year are bitten by poisonous snakes and 4,000 a year die as a result. Although the number is considerably less than in India, it is large enough to be alarming. So far serums have not been able to cope with the evil. Calmette, or cobra serum, is not so efficacious as was hoped. It is effective only for bites of the "naja tripudians" and does not have the desired result when used for other species. There are many varieties of snakes in Brazil and the difficulty lies in obtaining specimens and venoms for experiment. The Butantan Institute is doing a good work along this line. A kind of snake hunt has been organized with special traps and peasants who bring snakes to the institute receive a reward either in money or serum.

The New Jewett Six Brougham, $1325

Lasting Lustre, Baked Enamel Finish by New Process

QUITE the smartest car the season has produced—just the achievement you'd expect from Paige engineers. Jewett Six Brougham at but $1325 gives peak quality—the best value the Paige organization ever produced for the money.

How Jewett Brougham steel body panels are enamel dipped for separate baking

The lasting lustre finish is the result of a new process. Each steel body panel is separately dipped three times in finest black enamel, then baked—then separately fastened to the extra-large, extra-strong wood body frames. Wood frames—not steel—because wood reduces noise, absorbs vibration. Lift the rear seat cushions. See the steel body panels enameled on the inside, too—no rusting possible.

Never before could this finish be placed on a wood frame body. The intense baking heat would burn the frames. But separate pre-enameling and baking give you a car of lasting lustre. It gives the Jewett Six Brougham the rich black gloss all over the car, seen only on fenders of other cars. Trust Paige to contribute such a step toward lasting good looks!

Full, roomy comfort for five—extra long leg room in front. Two individual front seats which both fold forward, give easy entrance and exit from either side. Rear seat is of full width for three. Interior finish the kind you'll be proud of. Upholstered in velour. Remove the rear seat cushion and there's room for sample trunk or cumbersome baggage. Commodious trunk on rear is extra well made.

Like all Jewetts the Brougham has full 50 horse-power, Paige-built motor that fills the hood. Hollow crank-shaft high pressure oiling system gives silent smoothness and long life. Paige-Timken axles front and rear; ball-bearing steering spindles; 6-inch-deep frame. Ruggedness throughout that explains Jewett's acknowledged stamina.

Jewett Brougham performs like all Jewetts—goes from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds, in high gear; from 2 to 60 miles an hour, in high. Passes most any car on any hill. Gear shifting is rare, and easy when you do shift.

Business men, salesmen, farmers, wives with children to look after—everyone will welcome this new Jewett Brougham. It is smart in appearance—permanently good looking. No apologies for the looks of the finish—requires no attention but washing.

We are proud to have you drive this new 5-passenger Brougham yourself for any kind of a test you want—performance, comfort, good looks, safety and for convenience.

IMMEDIATELY AND UNCONDITIONALLY TO END PASSIVE RESISTANCE IN THE RUHR

Decision Reached by German Cabinet After a Conference With 300 Representative Spokesmen of the Ruhr and the Rhineland—Announcement Made by Chancellor Stresemann—Resumption of Activities in All Lines Has Been Ordered—Action of Cabinet is to be Communicated to the Premiers of the Federated States Today.

Berlin, Sept. 24.—(By the A. P.)—Chancellor Stresemann announced tonight that the government had decided to abandon passive resistance immediately and unconditionally.

In his statement the Chancellor announced that the government had decided to abandon the policy of passive resistance in the Ruhr and Rhineland and had ordered resumption of activities in all lines at once. The government's decision is not made conditional on the previous return of deportees or the release of imprisoned Nationals, these and other disputed points being left to subsequent negotiations with the occupying powers.

The Chancellor urged all employers to resume operations at their plants and mines immediately.

No announcement was forthcoming tonight regarding the method which the Stresemann government will employ toappraise the occupying power of its decision to call off passive resistance without having obtained the concessions which it had designated as indispensable conditions in previous utterances. The Chancellor may confine himself to a brief declaration in the Reichstag, which would also be considered as notification to the outside world that the government had reached its decision despite failure to secure in advance any concession from France or Belgium, thereby virtually making an unconditional surrender.

There was a rumor in diplomatic circles tonight that a third power had offered the government its good offices in the direction of voluntarily it a formal adjustment of the Ruhr conflict which would not impose humiliating conditions in the nature of a signed capitulation, or formal admission of responsibility for its policy of passive resistance.

Whether the Chancellor definitely informed the participants in today's conference that the government would unconditionally call off passive resistance could not be established, and the first indication of its resolve came late this evening when the Berlin newspapers were given a cautiously worded communique, in which the significant decision was buried in a cursory report of today's discussions with the representatives of the Ruhr and the Rhineland.

CONVINCED THAT RUHR RESISTANCE IS FUTILE

Berlin, Sept. 24.—(By the A. P.)—Three hundred representative spokesmen from the Ruhr and the Rhineland discussed passive resistance with Chancellor Stresemann for five hours today; then unanimously agreed that further opposition to the Franco-Belgian occupation was futile and that passive resistance as such must be abandoned.

Only on one point was there a difference of opinion, and this concerned the advisability of entering into direct negotiations with France.

The conference was attended by the representatives of all the political parties, labor organizations, industrialists, civic bodies and governmental and municipal officials connected with the German posts, telegraphs and railway administrations in the occupied zones, and its outcome is taken as confirming the government's conviction that the Ruhr conflict must be brought to an immediate conclusion.

The concurring sentiment at today's conference will be communicated to the premiers of the federated states tomorrow. Final official action will be decided upon by the cabinet Wednesday.

This it is believed, will comprise ratification of the non-official opinion gathered by the Chancellor in the course of his conferences and personal canvass of the situation and will be given expression in a brief, but emphatic, governmental declaration to the Reichstag. The date for its presentation has not yet been fixed, but it is expected that Friday will be selected.

The participants in the conference today, without exception, supported the government's attitude and promised Chancellor Stresemann their aid in the government's impending procedure.

It was a motley but serious-minded crowd of men, representing many professions, callings and political beliefs that occupied the historic assembly room in the Chancellor's palace, the scene of the Berlin Congress in 1878. Hugo Stinnes, Fritz Thyssen and other industrial magnates sat with labor leaders, railway officials and mine foremen, and the talk between them was plain and to the point.

"In the course of battle it sometimes becomes necessary to surrender or evacuate a fortress because it requires too many men, too much food and too much ammunition," observed Chancellor Stresemann. "In order to hold the Ruhr and the Rhineland passive resistance must now be abandoned, he declared, as the nation would bleed to death in further attempts to hold out. The economic, political and patriotic folly of such proceedure would definitely jeopardize the future of those territories as integral parts of the republic.

When several representatives of the German Nationalists ventured to suggest the possibility of holding out the Chancellor quickly asked them whether they and their party were prepared to furnish the money for such an undertaking. "The unity and existence of the German state is at stake, and this cabinet is determined to keep intact," the chancellor announced.

Dr. Stresemann said that as the government was unable to secure amnesty for the imprisoned Germans, the unmolested return of those who had been deported and the restoration of German prerogatives within the Ruhr and Rhineland through advance negotiations with the occupying forces, continuation of passive resistance became purposeless and inimical to the internal and foreign situation. The government's immediate efforts, he declared, would be directed toward obtaining the release of prisoners and residential rights for evicted officials and their families.

VOICED JAPAN'S APPRECIATION OF THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

Washington, Sept. 24.—America's open handed sympathy in Japan's sorest need will forever drive from the Japanese mind all thoughts of "American aggressiveness in the far East," Ambassador Hanihara said here tonight in an address before the opening session of the American Red Cross annual convention. He spoke from the same platform where President Coolidge, head of the society, a few hours before, had extolled the work of the organization as one of practical idealism helpful, reassuring" and "prevailing the fundamental strength of civilization."

"It will henceforth be difficult, indeed" said the Japanese Ambassador, for professional agitators to terrorize an ignorant public opinion to the point where it will countenance policies of military aggrandizement, on the ground of preparedness, against friendly American interests. The natural reaction of a Japanese to a visit of America will be a thrill of gratitude and warm friendliness.

"I find," he said, "that I cannot enter this great room without profound emotion, stirred by memory. For as you all know, it was here that the Washington Conference had its dramatic beginning merely two years ago, and right here, a few months later, that conference took its precious fruit in the signing of the Washington Treaties, by the representatives of the great nations which marked, in my opinion, the greatest practical advance toward world peace that had ever been made.

"And now I find myself here again, in different circumstances. It is absolutely impossible for me to express to you so that you will fully understand the depth of my feeling in facing you, the active representatives of the Red Cross. For events have transpired that may well prove to be more far-reaching in their importance than even the Washington Treaties.

"The Metropolitan area of Japan was torn to shreds by the forces of nature. The first flash of that dreadful news aroused in your country a universal manifestation of genuine human sympathy. In the very moment of our sorest need you did not fail us.

"Of course, Japan will be grateful forever—for we have long been ories in my country—never shall we forget your sympathy in this hour of our national distress. Stunned at first to be an unmitigated and horrible catastrophe is like to leave in spite of the awful toll of death and heresy—nevertheless—for Japan at least one bright spot. The earthquake is in truth a supplement to the Washington conference. The conference and its consequences showed Japan's sincerity to America; the earthquake revealed to Japan the unstained quality of the mercy in America's heart."

John Barton Payne, chairman of the society; Dr. W. P. Lorenz, director of the Wisconsin Psychiatric Institute; director Hines, of the Veterans Bureau and Joe Sparks, of the rehabilitation committee of the American Legion, also addressed the meeting.

Mr. Payne spoke particularly of the success of the organization's relief work in Japan, but the other speakers devoted a large part of their time to a discussion of the welfare of world war veterans.

Declaring there were 30,000 veterans confined in penal institutions, Mr. Sparks said the Legion believed their crimes were committed under the handicap of mental incompetency resulting from the war. Dr. Lorenz detailing the results of a survey he had made, asserted the government was wasting $6,000,000 annually in paying $80 a month to mentally incompetent veterans, many of whom had no close relatives. He advocated a reduction.

Rejected by Attitude Of the United States

League Commission on Disarmament Receives Negative Reply to Convention for Control of Arms.

Geneva, Sept. 24.—(By the A. P.)—"Negative" and "melancholic" were the words employed by delegates at the meeting of the league commission on disarmament today in referring to a recent communication from the United States government explaining the reasons why it cannot adhere to the convention for the control of traffic in arms. This convention, known as the Treaty of St. Germain, has been ratified by many countries, and the League asked the United States whether it could also subscribe. When the question was raised today Lord Robert Cecil remarked that the commission had received a letter from the United States government, which, he was sorry to say was negative in character.

Christian Lange, of Norway, characterized the United States, he said, had expounded the reasons for non-adherence, but had given no indication of what it would like done on the question of traffic in arms. He hoped the facts about the traffic would be given the widest publicity. It ought to be made perfectly clear who was responsible for the delay in the restriction of the traffic.

The commission adopted a resolution that the temporary mixed commission on armament prepare the draft of a new convention to replace that of St. Germain and that the United States be invited to appoint representatives to co-operate with the commission.

M. Lange's complaint of today was based on the fact that the League had asked the United States to make any suggestions likely to throw light on the best way of handling international traffic in arms, which has been engaging the attention of the League for several years, as one of the world problems intimately connected with the movement for the limitation of armaments.

The United States answered that it was unable to adhere to the St. Germain convention for several reasons, among them the objection that the convention was intertwined with the League of Nations, of which the United States was not a member and that the convention necessitated domestic legislation, which the Washington government felt it might be unable to have enacted.

REV. ELKINS RESIGNS FROM THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

Hartford, Sept. 24.—Because his conception of the place of the Anti-Saloon league is not "a propaganda organization of totalling fanatics" and because he believes there is a place for a small and absolutely efficient organization to make the public will responsive to law, former Assistant State Superintendent C. Herbert Elkins has resigned from the Anti-Saloon league, he explained to a "Courant" reporter today.

Rev. Mr. Elkins frankly admits he differs from many men in the Anti-Saloon league in that he hasn't any confidence "that America will stand permanently against light wines and beer." He also admits that, because he is English, he has been "heretical" enough to stand up in meetings of the Anti-Saloon league and say "it will take more than propaganda to convince me that there is no virtue in a bottle of beer."

To a "Courant" reporter tonight Rev. Mr. Elkins said, "If I chose to let grape juice ferment in my cellar, no man has a right to come into my house and tell me that I mustn't do it."

Rev. Ekins admits that he fears "that harm may come to prohibition from its friends" and thinks that the country would have been better off had the prohibitionact stopped with the prohibition of saloons and distilled liquors.

He also revealed that the Anti-Saloon league in Connecticut has been operating on a budget of $35,000 a year, and that in spite of what he called generous contributions from churches, there has been deficit which had been made up by the national organization. Until his resignation, the league had had five men and three women, and it is because he believes that a force of more than one or two men in a state to keep in touch with political conditions is a "waste of money," and because of the present straightened financial difficulties of the league here, that he has resigned.

RECOMMENDATIONS IN COAL COMMISSION REPORT

Washington, Sept. 24.—The Coal Commission in its final report to President Coolidge for transmission to Congress, makes these recommendations:

That Congress make definite provision for continuing the collection of coal facts.

That the monopolistic evil of anthracite production be offset by a graduated tax on royalties and differential profits.

That an overdevelopent and irregularity of operations in the bituminous fields be regulated partly through amendments to the Public Lands Leasing Law that would give the Secretary of the Interior the authority to approve the opening of new mines contingent upon a showing before the Interstate Commerce Commission that such a mine would serve the public and not involve excessive costs.

That the consumer protect himself against anthracite profiteers by using hard-coal substitutes.

That coal-using communities license retail dealers, organize co-operative associations, establish municipal fuel yards or take other steps to insure distribution of coal at a minimum cost.

BEER AND LIQUORS ON SALE IN MANITOBA

Newspapers of New York Still Crippled

New York, Sept. 24.—Publishers' Association officials arranged tonight to increase the size of New York's combined morning newspaper to sixteen pages tomorrow, as the striking pressmen remained adamant and George L. Berry, president of the International Union, asserted union pressmen from other cities were arriving and en route here in a "hearty response" to his appeal for men to fill the vacancies.

It was expected that editorials and increased department store advertising would appear tomorrow, after a limited amount of display space reappeared in the combined papers of this morning and afternoon. A publishers' committee was appointed to see that sufficient newsprint got to the various plants tonight for the biggest edition since the strike began a week ago.

Conflicting statements came throughout the day from officials of the international and the headquarters of the local union, which was declared dissolved after the International had held the strike illegal. Spokesman for the strikers insisted no union men from other cities had gone to work on affected papers, asserting any man who had been added to the depleted pressroom forces were neither machinists nor members of a pressmen's union. They said their own ranks remained as solid as they were Friday, when the publishers asserted "a few" strikers had returned to work.

David Simons, head of the outlawed local, sought to answer the charges of Mr. Berry yesterday that the administration of the local had failed to turn in to the International $888 monthly in dues for 444 members. He asserted he had used the dues of new members to pay those of older members who were sick or out of work. He added the charge that Mr. Berry was facing an accusation of $165,000 in Union funds in the federal courts. He also asserted he had sent three men to a detective agency disguised as common laborers and that they had been issued working cards as pressmen in the International Union.

Minor disorders were reported in Jersey City and Bayonne, N. J., by newspaper delivery wagon drivers from New York who told the police they had been forced to throw large numbers of papers into the water. Six men who were working in an uptown paper's mailing room at [illegible] when George Davis, an employe fatally hurt, were questioned at police headquarters this afternoon.

Simons said tonight that he had received telegrams from twenty-two of the thirty-six locals in the United States offering moral support and promising they would not send men to "break" the strike, as requested by Mr. Berry.

A committee of strikers was appointed to make arrangements for a parade to be held Wednesday.

In a statement tonight Mr. Berry declared 85 per cent of the strikers were "as clean as a hound's tooth."

The only indictment against them," he said, "is that they permitted the construction of a machine that is destructive and irresponsible. They have allowed it to result in a failure by failing to attend meetings, which was best exemplified when 300 men, including 175 juniors, voted to strike and put 2,200 men on the street."

Twenty pressmen from Minneapolis and some from Ottawa, Canada, were reported to have come to New York today.

Foremen of crews formerly manning the presses of New York's dailies, visited the publishers today, it became known, asking that they be permitted to return to work. It was said they requested permission to work under the working conditions of the contract signed between publishers and the International union last Friday. However, they were reported to be willing to ignore David Simons, president of their former union, if they were allowed to ignore President Berry of the International. Their requests were refused, however, the publishers insisting that they recognize Mr. Berry and obtain international cards.

INTERFERING WITH THE DELIVERY OF PAPERS

ENDORSE SINGLE SYSTEM OF NEW ENGLAND RAILROADS

At Hearing Before I. C. C. in Boston All But One of 16 Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade and Manufacurers' Associations Favored Consolidation—Governor Templeton Endorsed the Storrow Plan and Opposed the Trunk Line Proposals—Prevailing Opinion Was That New England Has Brains and Money Enough to Restore Its Railways Without Merging With Foreign Trunk Lines.

Boston, Sept. 24.—Consolidation of the New England Railroads into a single system was endorsed by all but one of sixteen Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade and Manufacturers Associations, whose representatives appeared before three members of the Interstate Commerce Commission here today. The hearing was the opening one of a series in which the recommendation of the Joint New England railroad committee, James J. Storrow, chairman for such consolidation, as against mergers with trunk lines, is being discussed. Excepted from the committee's proposal are the Boston and Albany, the Central Vermont, and the New England lines of the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific.

Of the witnesses three expressed their personal opposition to trunk line consolidation, but without endorsing the joint committee's New England plan, two favored the latter proposal, and two, one speaking for an organization, endorsed the trunk line mergers. The organizations reported as for the New England and against the trunk line plan were as follows:

Manufacturers Association of Connecticut, Hartford Chamber of Commerce, Manufacturers Association of Bridgeport, Conn., Manufacturers Association of Hartford county, Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, the Chambers of Commerce of Providence, Woonsocket and Pawtucket, R. I., the Associated Industries of Vermont, and six other Vermont bodies, among them the Manchester Board of Trade, the Burlington Chamber of Commerce and the Brattleboro Business Men's Association.

At the opening of the morning session, Governors Cox of Massachusetts; Flynn, of Rhode Island, and Templeton of Connecticut endorsed the Storrow plan and opposed the trunk line proposal, while Governor Brown of New Hampshire, preferred the latter plan and rejected the Storrow committee's recommendations for financial rehabilitation of the New York, New Haven and Hartford and the Boston and Maine. Governor Baxter of Maine, sent word that he had not yet made up his mind what stand to take on consolidation.

Commissioner Henry C. Hall, of Colorado, conducting the hearing assisted by Commissioners Frederick I. Cox, of New Jersey, and Joseph B. Eastman, of Massachusetts, Professor William Z. Ripley, of Harvard, who prepared a special report for the Interstate Commerce Commission, in his work, prescribed under the transportation act of 1920, of preparing plans for railroad consolidation throughout the country, took part in the questionings of witnesses. Bentley W. Warren, of Boston, counsel for the Joint New England Railroad Committee, represented that body.

The prevailing opinion of witnesses was that the citizens of New England had the brains and money to restore and maintain their own railway lines without outside assistance and that merging these roads with foreign trunk lines would lead to foreign domination, higher rates and the lost of differential routes through the northern gateways and over the water routes to the south and west.

"New England can hold its own knife and fork and feed itself," many of the men quoted with approval from the Storrow report. Further trunk control, they said, would be inimical to New England's interests and this section needed the maintenance in full of all its existing channels of transportation.

"The investing public can finance the proposed New England system," said Arthur M. Collins, of Hartford, Conn., president of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company, "as far as Connecticut is concerned."

At least two witnesses emphasized the growth of motor truck transportation of freight as a danger to the railroads of New England.

The minority opinion was expressed by William T. Hoyt, president of the Milford (Conn.) Chamber of Commerce, who said he represented not that body, but "four hundred commuters along the New Haven road."

"We are very dissatisfied with present conditions on the New Haven," he declared. "The road should be consolidated with the Pennsylvania or some other foreign road. The Interstate Commerce Commission would see to it that the latter did not oppress the new England railroads. I'd rather have Pennsylvania management with higher rates than New Haven management."

George W. Collier, speaking for the Providence Fruit and Produce Exchange, proposed that the Pennsylvania railroad be merged with the New Haven from Harlem (New York City) to Providence, and with the New York Central from Worcester to Providence. He said there was no danger that consolidation would remove the right of shippers to select the lines over which to ship their products.

The hearings are expected to continue for four or five days, possibly longer. When they are over, Commissioner Hall will make his report to the Interstate Commerce Commission for its consideration along with other plans for consolidation under the transportation act.

CALL TO ARMS OF CITIZEN SOLDIERS OF OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma City, Sept. 24 (By the A. P.)—Adjutant General B. H. Markham tonight was ordered by Governor J. C. Walton to "use all force of arms necessary" to prevent the session of the lower house of the Oklahoma legislature called for noon Wednesday.

All citizen soldiers of the state between the ages of 21 and 45 were directed in the order to hold themselves in readiness, "with such arms as they possess or can obtain to come to the assistance of the sovereign state of Oklahoma when ordered to do so by the governor."

As a precaution against any attempt of the legislators to meet elsewhere should they be barred from the house chamber, at the state capitol, the governor also directed Adjutant General Markham to disperse the meeting at "any other time or place in the state of Oklahoma."

With issuance of the military order all doubt was removed as to the executive's determination to prevent the hobse session, which has been called by his legislative opponents to consider his impeachment.

The adjutant general was ordered to use all military forces of the state if necessary to disperse the assembly.

"The troops will be ordered to shoot to kill, if that is necessary to prevent the assembly," Governor Walton told newspaper men. "I hope, however, that no such measures will be necessary."

NO TRACE OF SURVEYORS IN THE GRAND CANYON.

Peach Springs, Ariz., Sept. 24.—Returning here after a survey of the Colorado River canyon near here in an attempt to locate the Government surveyors charting the river, patrol scouts asserted that in the canyon the river still was on a rampage, shooting water fifty feet into the air as it struck boulders in its narrow bed. The scouts found no trace of the surveyors.

The scouts out short their search upon the word from it. W. Birdseye of the United States Geological Survey, instructing them not to venture too far into the canyon.

The trailers worked on the theory that the party, seeking refuge from the flooded river, may have found a crevice in the canyon wall suitable for camping.

Abraham Myerson of Hop River was injured Sunday forenoon about 10.45 o'clock, when a wagon in which he was riding with a companion, was struck and wrecked by an automobile owned and driven by David Desrosier, of Milford. The accident took place on the Hartford-Willimantic road, a short distance from the Hop River branch road. Mr. Myerson was rushed to this city and it was thought that he had received a fracture of the left leg but Dr. M. D. Riordan found that he had only bruised the muscles of the leg and Myerson was later taken to his home. His companion escaped without injury. The Milford machine was being driven to Bridgeport and had just descended a hill when the Myerson wagon loomed up in the road, going in the same direction and another wagon appeared from the opposite direction. Desrosier was driving at a moderate speed but owing to the slippery condition of the road was unable to stop. Two wheels were ripped from the wagon and Myerson struck the ground with great force. Desrosier agreed to settle for the damage.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

September continues to prove itself a good month for building in Norwich and during the past week nine applications for building permits have been filed with Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton, and when granted will swell the total value of local building for the month by another $12,000.

The applications are mostly for garages only two of the nine being for houses or tenements.

Work on buildings in the city already under construction is being rapidly pushed and the past week has seen several garages and houses completed and nearly ready to be put in use by the owners.

Work on the new Palace theatre is now nearly completed and the theatre will be ready for opening by the end of the month, the work during the past week being entirely on the interior. The rain of the past few days slowed up the work on the outside of houses under construction causing most of the work to be done inside and this was pushed rapidly.

Joseph Tetreault, frame garage, 10x18 off 335 Central avenue.

George E. Boucher, two story, two tenement house at 75 Roath street, 32½x37 feet.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week in Norwich there were 12 sales of real estate as compared with ten sales during the same week in 1922. For the respective weeks the mortgage loans were $33,880 as against $60,250 in 1922.

New London reported a total of 15 sales of real estate this year as against 8 sales in 1922 and the mortgage loans for 1923 were $53,089 as against a total of $13,225 in 1922.

Real estate sales in the state totalled 619 as against 515 in 1922 and mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $3,295,693 as against $10,956,809.

INCREASED BUILDING.

There seems to be a greater disposition to go ahead again with building projects than was the case a few months ago, and this has come about as a result of greater stability in labor and material costs. The damper was put on in time to check a great boom and another period of wild inflation. Reports from 150 cities show a total expenditure in August of $239,272,427, as against $217,065,234 at the identical cities in July and $212,508,595 in August, 1922, indicating a gain of 10.2 per cent. over the low point touched in July, on the decline from the peak in March, and a gain of 12.5 per cent. over August last year. The upward trend from July was most marked in the far west. Compared with August a year ago, decreases were shown in New England, the Central West and the Southwest.

DANIELSON.

Funds are being raised for the erection of a new parochial school for St. James' R. C. parish. Rev. John Roux is the pastor there.

PUTNAM.

The Holbrook Co. of Westbrook has the contract to build a concrete bridge on Pomfret street over Little river.

Local architects have been invited to prepare sketches for the proposed junior nigh school to be erected at the corner of Williams and Mercer streets.

Work has been started on the cellar for the new building to be erected for the Ailing Rubber Co. on State street by Arthur Jackson & Co., general contractors.

Plans will be ready for figures about September 25 for the proposed building to be erected on Bank street for the C. H. Klinck estate. Bilderbeck & Langdon, Inc., architects. The plans call for a three-story brick front, artificial stone trim, fireproof construction.

Harry K. Knowlton has the frame up for a new cottage at Mago Point Beach. The new house is designed as a six-room cottage. It is 20x24 feet.

Lots 15 and 16, Mago Point Beach, have been purchased by Harold Peters, who has a bungalow inclosed on one of the lots and plans to build a dwelling on the second lot later. The house is arranged for six rooms.

The permit has been issued to Olevia Theaume for a two-family dwelling to be erected on Onece avenue. The house will be 28x32 feet. The cost will be about $6,000. A garage is being erected in the rear.

Arthur Jackson & Co., 108 State street, have a force of men at work at the Lyceum theatre, Washington street, making general repairs, both interior and exterior.

DANIELSON

Slumbers of some of the members of the fire department—call men—were disturbed just before 4 o'clock Monday morning, when Chief A. P. Woodward telephoned them to answer a call sent out from Brooklyn for aid in combatting a fire threatening a dwelling near the court house, where buildings are thickly placed and where there was a possibility of a repetition of the fire disaster that Brooklyn experienced a few months ago. The local firemen did not make the trip, though, for while the big pumper was purring away at the central fire station awaiting the assembly of the men another message came through, that the fire was under control and that the aid of the Danielson department would not be required. The fire was put out by using fire extinguishers and the chemical apparatus of the Brooklyn Center department. It started near where an electric service wire entered the dwelling and did very little damage.

Joseph Richards, arrested on the charges of keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell and with reputation, whose case was continued from September 3rd, in the city court, Monday morning, was found guilty of keeping with intent to sell and was fined $200 and costs. The defendant was represented by Attorney Irving H. Miren.

Police officers testified that Saturday night, September 1st, shortly after ten o'clock they went to Richards place and, backed by a search warrant, made an investigation which resulted in the arrest of Richards and the seizure of a half pint bottle containing a little alcohol, also a bottle of ginger ale and several glasses. These the officers found in the work shop or garage in the rear of the Providence street house. In the house they seized a gallon can which smelled of alcohol and which had a fresh cut in the top.

According to the officers, when they rapped at the door of the Richard home, it was from six to eight minutes before the door was opened by Mrs. Richards who was alone in the house. As they passed through the yard to the front door the officers said that a flash light was thrown on them from a rear window. Officer Ryan said that he looked under the curtain of the sink room and saw a woman pouring something into the sink from a can. As soon as entrance was gained he went in and found the empty can, which all the officers said smelled of alcohol, also found the odor of alcohol in the sink. About this time the husband returned and offered to let the officers into the garage. In the garage, on a shelf, they found the half pint bottle about a quarter full of alcohol, the bottle of ginger ale and some glasses. Mrs. Richard told the court that when she heard the rap on the door she was partially undressed and was washing herself. She carried the dish of water and dumped it in the sink. She denied that she had poured out any alcohol or that there was any in the can saying that the can was an empty one that her husband brought in and said a man named Coleman would call for it.

Defendant testified that either he or one of his men had found the can, which was wrapped in clean, brown, paper, on the city dump and brought it home as he had sold such cans to Coleman. He denied that there had been alcohol in it while in his possession or that he had sold intoxicating liquor to anyone In regard to the articles seized in the worshop he said that he kept ginger ale to drink, as the city water wasn't good and that the glasses were some he picked up as a dealer in second hand goods. He denied all knowledge of the bottle containing the small quantity of alcohol. After the court passed judgment, Richard paid.

Previous to the liquor case, William and Arthur Cody pleaded guilty to intoxication. William was before the court three years ago and was put in charge of the probation officer. There was a balance of $12.19 due on the old account which he had failed to pay. He said he had a wife and five children to support and that his wife was sickly. A fine of $20 and costs was imposed and he was also ordered to pay the balance on the last case and was allowed to do so at the rate of $1 a week, after being placed in charge of the probation officer. The brother, Arthur, paid a fine and costs amounting to $11. It was stated that the brothers got drunk in their own home and when they started fighting the children were sent to get the police. The fight was over when the police arrived.

Attorneys from various communities in Windham county and a number of trial justices will be in this city Friday afternoon to meet Chief Justice George W. Wheeler of the supreme court when he comes here for a discussion of law enforcement, this discussion pertaining particularly to the enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution, the invitations going to judges of town and city courts in the county, to trial justices and to prosecuting attorneys and their assistants.

The illness of Attorney Charles E. Searls has materially upset the plans for trying cases on the civil list in the superior court in this city this week. Mr. Searls was in the first case assigned for trial today and in other cases scheduled for later in the week. He became ill at his home in Thompson Sunday and the attending physician has ordered that remain in bed for a time. He has a cold, but his condition Monday was not regarded as at all serious. Court officials here were uncertain Tuesday as to how much business it will be possible to dispose of this week, in the absence of Mr. Searls.

Possibly at the end of this week, probably following the conference between Chief Justice Wheeler of the supreme court and attorneys of the county who will meet him in this city Friday afternoon, an order is expected to issue from State Attorney Charles E. Searls' office for the dismantling of a number of barrooms in Putnam. There are said to be six places in Putnam that will be requested to comply with the order, and a number of places in Willimantic that will be required to do likewise. This prospect is viewed with complacency in Putnam. With the sending to jail the past week of nearly a dozen Putnam men charged with violation of the liquor laws, it is sensed in every quarter where there is any degree of intelligence remaining that the wide-open selling in vogue here for the past few months definitely ended with the imposition of jail sentences on the offenders. This being the case, a barroom is of little further use.

People who know their Putnam very well have sensed this early that the liquor business to be done here hereafter has been driven underground. No more open bars will figure in the new scheme of things. Only a limited portion of the public will be able to buy, and they will buy from the man who sells out of his pocket or from his bootleg and no stranger will figure at all in the scheme of things. Like the law, the purveyors of illicit booze—a new crop of such dealers—are reported as tightening up. They realize in advance that they are going to jail if convicted of violating the liquor laws and accordingly are going to play safer, that it may be harder than ever to catch them.

This is the situation as it appears to be working out in advance of the order to dismantle the bars. The Putnam men at Brooklyn are definitely through with the game. The law will deal hereafter with their successors in the business—successors whose place of business likely will be under their hat.

It was stated Monday that individual purchasers will have opportunity to take over some of the 40 houses of the Nightingale-Morse village which has just been acquired by the L. A. W. Acceptance corporation. Placing these houses in the market will allow of many who have wanted to buy a home but have been unable to do so on account of the high price of construction to get one ready built.

Samuel Anderson of Norwich, general manager of the eastern Connecticut lines of the Connecticut company, was a visitor in Putnam Monday.

This week Putnam High school football team will be hard at work rounding into form for the opening of the regular playing season, which will extend through a period of several weeks.

Monday morning the First National bank was doing business in its new banking home, which was opened last week for the first time for the inspection of the public.

J. J. Whitehead is spending a few days in New York and at Atlantic City.

Specimen ballots—the pink kind—showing the tickets as they will appear on the regular official ballots to be used next Monday have arrived here and are of value to candidates and workers in their interest.

Four of the dwellings in the Nightingale-Morse village had been sold up to Monday evening by the L. A. W. Acceptance corporation and applications for a number of the other houses were on file.

Joseph Zimba, Michael Peters and George Beno, all of Fabyan, town of Thompson, were before a justice in the town of Thompson Monday, to answer to charges that they had violated the liquor laws. They were represented by Attorney Charles L. Torrey of this city. Zimba and Peters were acquitted. Beno was found guilty of a sale and fined $50, an appeal being taken to the superior court.

JEWETT CITY

The annual town meeting of Griswold, held at Pachaug town house, in the second voting district, Monday afternoon, was largely attended. Every vote was unanimous.

The reports of the town officers were accepted. George H. Jennings was re-elected a member of the Daniel S. Anthony fund. The selectmen were authorized to borrow necessary funds on temporary loans. The pay of town officers is to be the same, with the exception of the assessors; their salary is to be $200 per annum, with $100 additional to the clerk of the board, which is to include the preparing of the tax abstract.

Physicians are to be employed and paid as heretofore. The selectmen will have full charge of the highway repair, and agreeable to section 1453 of the general statutes will receive state aid relative to road building.

The appropriation for the district nurse is $700. Relative to the district nurse, which was an experiment last year, the town by its vote and sentiment, affixes the stamp of approval. Of the $2,000 previously appropriated from which an automobile was purchased and other intiatory expenses were met, there remains over $600.

The current expenses of the year ending August 31st, have been $30,086.24, as follows:

Highways, $5398.06; state highways, $336.02; bridges, $253.66; water trough $3; town hall, Pachaug, $39.50; outside poor, $1957.89; medical attendance $56.68; care of insane and imbeciles, $877.44; town farm, $2619.58; assessing and collecting taxes $1941.81; election expenses, 656.45; vital statistics $274.50; town officers $1750; interest, $7283.92; damage done by dogs, $32; miscellaneous $2662.96; town hall, $942.77; loans $3000; total $30,086.24.

The treasurer report shows the decrease in the town debt to be $5,844.-70. Last year the town of Griswold abolished its school districts, passing the maintenance of the school system to the twon. The figures of the school committee of the town show their expenditures $48,743.58; of this sum the item of teachers' salaries appears as $32,890.12. Under the old district system, the town always paid the teachers' salaries, the other running expenses being met in the borough by the 12th school district. The tax of the town has been 25 mills, with no additional tax, to make up for the 5 mills school tax, which is not collected under the new order of things, hence the figures show that, in addition to the reduction of the town debt, $11,000 of school expense has been paid, without the district tax.

An automobile from Putnam with two men and two women ran down the silent policeman at the corner of Main street and Tracy avenue, early Sunday evening. The signal was not in operation. The boy whose business it is to switch on the lights of the traffic guides, received a shock earlier in the evening, when he applied the key to another light further down the road and was afraid to try this one. The anchored copper was moved 15 inches, and the car was put out of commission. Wreckers from the North Main street service station jacked up the car and removed the signal from underneath. Walter Fields took the Putnam people home in his machine.

The big ball game between the Out-of-door Campers' Colony and Congressman Rioux's All Stars which was to attract much attention Sunday was postponed on account of rain. As a Ford automobile driven and occupied by two Italian young men was coming down railroad avenue near the Canal street approach to the New Haven railroad station Sunday afternoon about 1.15, it turned out suddenly to avoid an automobile near the curb, resulting in striking a pedestrian, pushing him ahead and striking him a second time, when he seized the fender and was pushed along ahead of the machine. Near the Martin hotel the wheel was grabbed by the other occupant and thrown over sharply; the auto struck the sidewalk curbing, at the same time hitting another man. By the force of striking the curbing both men were thrown upon the grass bank. The automobile tipped over and both occupants were thrown out. The car as it struck on its top broke all the glass in the machine as well as crushing it in. The injuries sustained were not so severe but that a war of words followed the crash. The men later went to a doctor to receive medical attention.

FRANKLIN

At the Avery Farms, the past week Albert Beckwith met with an accident while supervising the filling of a silo for Judge harles E. Davis. In tuning up a large tractor he accidentally caught the governor which let the motor run the blower beyond its rated speed and in so doing burst the blower in about two hundred pieces. One piece missed Mr. Beckwith's head by the fraction of an inch. He now knows more about tractors and blowers than a dozen experts from the factory where they are manufactured.

The busiest man is not the one who complains the most about the hot weather.

May bring you a delightful surprise

Do you realize how many pretty teeth you see nowadays?

Millions of people now brush teeth in a new way. They combat the cloudy film. And those whiter, cleaner, safer teeth show what that method means.

You and yours will see it when you once learn what it does. And this free test will show you.

Those dingy coats

Your teeth are coated with a film—that viscous film you feel. Much of it resists the tooth brush, clings and stays.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That is how tooth lose their beauty.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Some of these troubles come to nearly all. You should fight the film.

Two easy ways

Now dental science has discovered two easy ways to fight film.

One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. The other removes it without harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent. Leading dentists the world over now advise it. Careful people of some 50 nations use it every day.

Natural—gentle

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to better fight mouth acids. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva, to better digest starch deposits. So every use gives marshaled power to these great natural tooth-protecting agents.

Thus Pepsodent brings its amazing results in natural and gentle ways, without harsh grit.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Pepsodent results are quick and apparent. They will amaze and delight you.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how they become whiter as the cloudy coats disappear.

This means much to you and yours. Cut out coupon now.

NEW ENGLAND APPLES.

Along with other New England states Connecticut has reason to be interested in the plan to promote the raising of apples in this part of the country. New conditions have not arisen to prompt such a movement for it has long been realized that there were insufficient New England grown apples of a marketable character to meet the demands. Rather is it one more of the efforts which have been made to arouse the east to its opportunities.

Whether the exposition and fruit show planned for New York the first week in November is going to be sufficient to furnish the necessary inspiration, it should serve to stimulate interest and study. By it those mildly interested, or those possessing the land which can be devoted profitably to apple raising, will be shown what others are doing and it would not be such a long stride in thought for them to conclude that if others can do it, it is not beyond their power of accomplishment.

That is the purpose of such an exposition. Illustration has a decided advantage over the say so when it comes to making an impression concerning such undertakings. It is time that New England was aroused to its opportunities in the way of apple growing and concluded that it might as well get the benefit of the land and the nearby market as to have the business of supplying the trade done for the most part by western growers.

There are plenty of good examples of what New Englanders can do in the way of apple raising. If the exposition serves to awaken others to similar efforts it will accomplish its purpose and New England soil will experience the increased production it is capable of.

SLOW HEADWAY.

Another step has been taken in the effort to reach an understanding between this country and Great Britain whereby it will be possible for the United States to stop and search British vessels for liquor within a limit of twelve miles of our shores in return for which this country will permit British vessels to come into our ports bringing liquor under seal.

It doesn't appear to be that any progress has been made however. The British government is not as favorably disposed as it was indicated some time ago that it might be. It is not disposed to recognize our prohibition law but that doesn't close the matter inasmuch as it is now to be submitted to the imperial conference.

What that will do with it there is no way of telling. It knows full well the attitude of this country and the decision of the United States supreme court relative to the bringing of liquor within the three-mile limit. Whatever agreement this country makes must be with the understanding that congress will be asked to so change the present law as to permit liquor under seal on foreign vessels. The aim of this country is to stop liquor smuggling and it seeks to place no handicap in the way of legitimate trade on the high seas.

THE MERCHANT MARINE.

One of the big tasks of the government has been the handling of the merchant marine problem. Left with a tremendous tonnage after the war, impressed with the need of avoiding any greater waste of funds than has already been caused and the wisdom of having a merchant marine for the protection of the country, the government has endeavored by various means to make the best of the situation and it is not because it has not devised methods that would succeed, but because of serious obstacles in the way of such plans that better progress has not been made.

It was believed and strongly advocated by President Harding that the legislation that was presented to congress under the merchant marine bill, providing as it did for a subsidy, was the proper method of dealing with this problem. It was urged on the ground of good business and the need of having a merchant marine. It failed nevertheless and that required the provision of another plan.

What was known as the Lasker-Farley proposition to create a subsidiary corporation to handle the shipping board fleet was then advanced. It was an alternative to the present method of handling the ships and a plan which appears to have its merits. Condemnation of it has now come on the ground that it is illegal to deal with the ships in such a manner, that the law under which the shipping board works will not permit it.

That being the situation according to the opinion of Attorney General Daugherty who has been investigating the proposal makes it evident that either the law must be changed or some other method must be devised. It means of course the prolongation of the uncertainty concerning the shipping board vessels. The government could give the vessels away or sell them for a song but that would only be dodging its responsibility.

FRENCH PERSISTENCY.

President Poincare of France isn't disposed to mislead Germany. He isn't giving the German government the opportunity to think that everything is going to be rosy just because Chancellor Stresemann has admitted the policy of passive resistance in the Ruhr is a failure. Neither is France taking the position that just because the German plan in the Ruhr is an admitted failure Germany can look to France to be extra lenient. The fact that Germany has insisted upon proof that it was wrong does not require France to retreat from the terms of the treaty or the reparation requirements.

Progress has been made nevertheless, in the fact that Germany has been made to recognize for the second time at least, that it could not force its injustices upon France. Its policy has cost it much more than it would have been obliged to pay had it continued the settlement in accord with the agreement and turned in in addition that which it has spent and wasted in passive resistance. After all its efforts to avoid meeting its obligations it still has the debt to pay.

It is this debt that France has been endeavoring to collect. It is this debt that it does not consider that it is in any way justified in reducing. It not only wants payment but it wants sufficient guarantees provided that it will be paid before it abandons its occupation of the Ruhr.

When Germany resolves that it is going to pay the debt, makes a determined effort to do so and shows that it is not dodging its obligations, then real progress will be made in ending the Ruhr situation. It is that same German reluctance that has stood out so prominently ever since the war that is delaying an adjustment of the matter. Against French persistency, however, it is fast losing.

THE COAL REPORT.

The coal commission which was created for the purpose of digging into the facts concerning the coal industry with a view to determining what is needed in the way of legislative action to give better protection to the public has completed its work. Its report is therefore available for study by members of congress more than two months before the December session.

The commission has devoted much time and effort to the probe and it believes that there should be a regulation of the coal industry through a newly created division of the interstate commerce commission, that there be steps taken to guard against overdevelopment in the industry, especially in the soft coal fields and that provision be made for the continuation of the collection of coal facts.

These are suggestions which are offered for possible action by congress but the commission is not unmindful of the fact that the public has an opportunity if it desires to do somethnig in the way of self protection, and to that end it points out that there is always open the chance to guard against the coal profiteers by the use of hard-coal substitutes, the establishment of municipal fuel yards or the licensing of dealers.

There is a mass of facts and figures for congress to digest. The need of protecting the public against the distress sure to follow such shortages as have taken place and others threatened cannot fail to be recognized. That the commission's report will be of assistance is beyond question but in the real relief dependence must be sought from congress, except in such protection as the public is willing to provide for itself.

LOSS

When the Listerworts began saying that next year Edmund was going away to school it was merely words sounds, meaningless. Mary Listerwort, his mother, said them as briskly and smilingly as did his father and the rest of the family. One does not give much deep thought to events a year ahead. It is as hard to make them seem real as to revivify the things which happened a year back.

She took a certain pride in saying, oh yes of course he was going to St. John's Head, that wonderful school run by the famous Dr. Head down east. Every one knew that only fifty boys were accepted and that the fifty formed a youthful aristocracy. It was entirely fitting that Edmund should belong to that half hundred, because from the time his first baby things had been purchased whatever he had was the best that money could procure. In fact, there was so much money on every side that none of the Listerworts thought much of anything about it. It always had been there like air, sun and water and the pleasures and luxuries it bought were commonplace.

Yet from the start Mary Listerwort had devoted herself to seeing that Edmund should not be blighted by the weight of his money present and to come. Or blighted otherwise.

Not domineering or spying or nagging—she was too wise for that. Only she felt that if she really loved Edmund with every ounce of her affection and really became his companion in his fun as well as his work the boy could not fail to respond and in that way she had faith that she would rule him, her experience and wisdom guiding him around the pitfalls she wished him to avoid.

Mary Listerwort gave up much that women usually enjoy for the sake of being with Edmund. They went everywhere together, they talked everything over together. If his mother was out of his sight Edmund grew restless and hunted for her. His clear, boyish voice inquiring of a passing servant if his mother were around always gave her a thrill when she overheard it.

As the year sped on its way a strange stab accompanied the phrase that Edmund was going away to school and presently when it was summer and the fall term near enough to be a reality Mary Listerwort suddenly realized what the words meant which she had been repeating so mechanically. For the first time since he was hers there would be distance between them, bodily and mentally.

Feverishly she tried to make it up to Edmund during the time that was left. If it were possible she gave him even more of herself, for she could not bear to have him feel that he was losing her. She meant so much to him, extraordinarily more than most mothers mean to their sons.

She grew thin and pale beating against the oncoming separation, smiling gayly nevertheless. When the week he was to go arrived there were times when her pity for him overwhelmed her—her boy, sheltered, guarded all his life, to be thrust out in this fashion! That he did not voice his surprise and injury only testified to his bravery, she thought.

The day came, the minute when she was to tell him good-by. Mary Listerwort nerved herself and smiled at him. Always she meant that he would remember her as a welcoming refuge and that she should be the background of his every deed and thought. She looked full into his eyes and it was then something icy clutched her heart which never again let go its hold. Because in Edmund's eyes, instead of sorrow such as hers for the separation, instead of rebellion and perhaps fear, all she read was glad and excited joy, a tumult of anticipation and happiness. Edmund was glad to go! He wanted to go! And she realized that from that minute she had lost her boy and more, that all mothers lose their sons, many times over in the course of their lives.

And so she did not cry as she had expected to do when he had gone and could not see her. Something had happened to her tears.—Exchange.

Stories That Recall Others

Had a Big Day.

The young hopeful had finished his first day at school. Noticing that he looked rather bedraggled and tired his father asked him for a summary of his activities—what he had learned and whether he had spent a strenuous day.

"Well, dad," Junior said, "I learned my teacher's name. I learned where my room was. I learned where to hang my coat, and—say, dad, I only had one fight."

"Nobody at Home."

She was a little old woman who made valiant efforts to keep abreast of the times, but some of the modern inventions were too much for her—among them the telephone.

She made her home with a physician, and one day all were away except the mother.

She endured the ringing as long as she could, then cautiously approached the phone and removing the receiver from the hook put her mouth close to the transmitter and said:

"There's nobody at home," and hung up.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Lord Weir, who has arrived in New York with a party of prominent British industrialists, is the managing director of a great firm of shipbuilders and engineers in Glasgow. During the war he proved himself a tower of strength to the British government in the organization and output of munitions, and later in organizing the output of aeroplanes. To such an extent did he speed up the output of aeroplane engines and the many accessories required that the end of the war found England easily first in the number of flying squadrons at her disposal, whereas, when the war began she was far behind both France and Germany in this respect. In recognition of his services to the empire Lord Weir was created a baron in 1918. Other honors bestowed upon him were the Order of the Crown of Italy, the American Distinguished Service Medal, commander of the Legion of Honor and an LL. D. degree by Glasgow University.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Schools should teach value of time and money.

The youth of this nation stands today at the threshold of another school year. During these ensuing months of study how much will the girls and boys of America add to their practical understanding of the best employment for money and time? Will they know at the end of the school year, better than now all the advantages that come from the elimination of waste?

Will they be better equipped, not only in academic knowledge, but in all the practical phases of life which involve earning, saving, spending, and investing money?

These are serious questions. They are ones parents particularly should be asking.

If there is any value in thrift, if the efficient use of time and money means anything at all in individual foundation for such advantages must be laid largely in the formative years of youth.

Unmistakably this important element of educational equipment has been neglected in our American schools because of an already overcrowded curriculum. Our boys and girls have only been told in a vague, incomplete and unconvincing manner that there is value in thrift.

They have been told but not sold on all that thrift means in the struggle for success.

But, with the opening of the current school year, definite steps toward thrift teachings in the schools have been taken. The great National Education Association, by far the most powerful and effective organization of educators in the world, has, after eight years of patient research by the Association's National Committee on Thrift Education, mapped out a concrete course by which there will be given a thrift application to many of the fundamental branches.

We cannot overestimate the importance of this step. All who are interested in the advancement of education along more practical lines will acclaim it an epochal accomplishment.

Parents who appreciate what an understanding of thrift, will mean in the welfare of their children should rejoice at the work now being done.

In every city, town and rural district of our country, this great American plan of thrift training for our boys and girls should be given the most enthusiastic welcome.—American Society for Thrift.

An Unfailing Way To Banish Hairs

(Beauty Notes)

Ugly hair growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.

GEYSER BREAKS LOOSE IN JEWETT CITY STREET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, Sept. 24.—Monday afternoon, shortly after 2 o'clock, a big Buick touring car, bearing the Conn. numbers 48687, came up Ashland street, crossed Main, and collided with the hydrant in front of the residence of J. H. Tracy. The hydrant was broken squarely off a few inches below the surface of the street, and carried along 10 feet under the machine, which latter was stopped by the curb. The spokes of the right forward wheel were all cleaned out, and the radiator smashed. By the breaking of the hydrant, the entire city water pressure was released in an instant. Old Faithful geyser in Yellowstone park has nothing on the water spout that shot into the air under the 125 pounds' pressure at that point. One side of Main street was flooded as far as Postoffice square. Supt. A. A. Young of the Jewett City Water Co., hurried by automobile to the main shut-off at Palmer street. Charles Spicer, got at the job. And in record time repaired the break. The borough was without water, absolutely, for three hours. Bystanders saw the lone driver of the car, as soon as the crash came, jump out and beat it, at top speed, down Tracy avenue. Officer Henry Viegard was at the corner at once. He investigated and in a small book, in the car, found the registration, 48,687—Car, Buick—owner, Maxime La Course, Plainfield, Conn.

Officer Viegard proceeded at once to Plainfield where he learned that Eugene, a son of Maxime, 22, had taken his father's car, and had gone down the line. The local police, at first thought the car was being driven by a man who ha dstolen it. Officer "Cap" Manard got a clue to the fugitive at Taftpole, and followed in hot pursuit. At the upper end of the big pond Officer Menard gained on the man, who had shed his hat and coat. Soon he leaped over the highway fence, and was lost in the trees and underbrush.

The silent policeman, at the point of the wreck, was knocked down Sunday night, and at the time of the collision it was standing close up to Mr. Tracy's curb. Some expressed the opinion that young La Course was thrown off his reckoning by the red traffic marker, until it was too late to avoid hitting the hydrant. Then with his wrecked machine in front and the great six-inch waterspout behind, he was overcome with fright. Ons thousand people filled the streets, until the water was shut off and the wreck hauled away.

Barbers Vote Time Change

SHOWS VARIED SERVICE RENDERED BY CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States believes that the relation of government toward industry is primarily that of preserving equality of opportunity for all—an equal chance to every citizen to win his position in accordance with his character, ability and efforts, said Colvin B. Brown, of Washington, chief of the organization service bureau of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, in his address before the members of the Norwich chamber of commerce Monday evening. The meeting which was the initial monthly membership meeting of the chamber for the fall season took place at the Wauregan hotel, following a supper served at 6.15 o'clock. The menu was as follows:

Grape Fruit
Roast Lamb Mashed Potatoes
Celery Olives
French Bread
Apple Pie Cheese Coffee

James C. Macpherson, first vice president of the chamber, presided at the meeting in the absence of President Herbert M. Lerou who was in Boston representing the local chamber at the interstate commerce commission hearing on the consolidation of railroads. At the conclusion of the menu Mr. Macpherson called the meeting to order.

Wasington Speaker Heard

The speaker of the evening, Colvin B. Brown, chief of the organization service bureau of the United States Camber of Commerce, was introduced by Mr. Macpherson. Mr. Brown spoke as follows:

Two opposing forces are at work in every community. One makes for conservation and growth, the other for deterioration and decay. When Grover Cleveland was president of the United States some one complimented him on the excellence of his cabinet. He is quoted as replying that he could pick just as good a cabinet in almost any county seat town in the country. It this is only approximately true what a force we have for business and community betterment. It is the province of the chamber of commerce to rally, organize and direct this force.

There are certain essential elements in the building and conduct of a successful chamber of commerce. The first of these is a strong understanding of the position it occupies in the community life. Those whose support is solicited are entitled to know that it is not organized and conducted in the interest of a group of individuals, but that that yard stick by which its activities are measured is the yard stick of community good.

The second essential is a short, definite program of practical and itmely activities. The people are entitled to know not noly what the chamber of commerce is, but what it proposes doing for the community.

The third essential is the selection of committeemen with a view to their qualifications for the tasks entrusted to them and definitely understanding just what those tasks are. The man and the job should fit each other as nearly as possible.

The fourth essential is a budget based upon the work to be done, the revenue for which is obtained from dues paying members. Our chamber of commerce must have adequate income if they are to function as they should, so income is the primary consideration.

Having Right Conception

Where the public has a right conception of the functions of a chamber of commerce, is in agreement with its activities and has confidence in the official personnel, there is little difficulty in obtaining the money necessary for carrying on the work.

Your community does not end with your municipal boundary lines. It extends onward and outward to cover your entire retail trade territory. It is the betterment of business, living and marketing conditions in that territory that you should have in mind. Anything that can be done to better such conditions in your retail trade territory increases its purchasing power and adds to the wealth of both merchant and producer.

Transportation

Another subject demanding attention is transportation. By this is not meant merely the checking of way bills, advising as to routes of shipment and informing member of changes in the ruling of the Interstate commerce commission. Unless we have markets and quick and easy routes and transport to such market our increased production will be largely without avail. It is the task of a transportation committee to study the transportation situation in the trade territory, ascertain what are the obstructions to the free flow of traffic and formuiate plans for the removal of the obstructions. Sometimes these will be found to be lack of a navigable river, inadequate dockage deep water in a harbor, a sand bar in facilities, a ferry where a bridge ought to be—insufficient railway, electric or motor truck service; but most of the obstructions to the free flow of traffic are found to be the character and condition of the hightways leading into the town. The transportation committee should be able to report plans for he removal of traffic obstructions and the provision of improved facilities, which plans should be so compelling in their presentation as to be assured of public support. Prepare not an everything-at-once program, but a one-thing-at-a-time, the most immediate and necessary things, and as rapidly as the public can be made to see the need nad apply the remedy.

Industry, commerce and civics should all have a place on the program. Careful consideration should be given to the subject of industrial relations, improved merchandising methods, the betterment of living conditions, and to parks, playgrounds and schools. We want to strive for a contented working class, stores so excellent that they will serve the trade needs of our tributary territory, and ample school facilities. And we want a city plan. Every city, no matter how small it is, should have a city plan, no matter how simple it may be. We should vision our city as we want it to be, and as we are determined to make it be, and with this in mind we will be constantly striving to make the dream come true.

Growth from Within.

An increased production, diversified crops and good roads mean added prosperity to the farmer; so does industrial expansion with increasing pay rolls mean more business for the merchant. An analysis of the industrial growth of American communities has shown that the growth has been largely from within; that is, through the expansion of existing industries and the coming in of similar and related industries as the local labor market is created. Attempts to force industrial expansion through advertising campaigns and bonuses has generally proven ineffective. The financing of industry is a banking and not a community proposition. Once established, however, the industry should receive full co-operation from the Chamber of Commerce in bringing about conditions making for betterment in the community life of its employes such as housing, recreational and educational facilities, and cheap and adequate transportation to and from work. Parks and playgrounds, schoolhouses and public works and utilities should be expanded to keep pace with the growth of industrial population and the establishment of our new industrial centers, and the Chamber of Commerce should be the leader in all this.

Retail Stores.

The retail stores of the town are a most important community asset and should be viewed in that light by the Chamber of Commerce. It is the store that brings the farmer into town to trade. The larger and more varied the stocks, the better their reputation for good values and fair prices, the more attractive the displays, the better the service and the more courteous and accommodating the salesmen, the more rapidly the town will grow as a retail trading center, and the wider will be the territory from which it draws trade. Looking upon the store as a community asset, the Chamber of Commerce should lend its aid to all movements for better merchandising, style shows, dollar day sales, pay-up campaigns, exchange of credit information, trade excursions and salesmanship classes. It should be on guard to protect the good name of the town as a place in which to trade and active in extending trade.

It is not difficult to vision the time when the retail merchant members of a Chamber of Commerce will, as such, adopt a code of business ethics and provide machinery for hearing and passing upon complaints of customers. When that time comes, membership in the chamber will mean that the merchant has subscribed to principles of square dealing and realizes that the public as well as himself has an interest in the good name of the town as a retail trading center and that he and his fellow members of the Chamber are on guard to protect that good name.

The Chamber of Commerce of the state of New York is rendering its members a service through the conduct of commercial examinations and the issuance of proficiency certificates to applicants for clerkships and other positions. Business men members have come to place high value on these proficiency certificates, which are issued by an impartial committee only after thorough examination of the applicant as to his education, training, personality and mental equipment.

Guidance for Young Men.

Chambers of Commerce are beginning to realize the need young men have for guidance and have encouraged the formation of young men groups that meet at regular intervals to be addressed by successful local business men on the fundamentals of business and salesmanship, and at frequent intervals experts are brought in from outside to deliver talks on business subjects.

The object of salesmanship classes is to furnish instruction in business fundamentals, arouse interest, inspire loyalty to the business and employer, arouse curiosity as to the why of things, stimulate a mental effort to ascertain why certain business rules are made, increase effort to please customers, and to cultivate the habit of saving earnings as future capital.

If you can plan so as to even in a slight degree improve productions and transportation facilities, bring about better relations in industry, increase and improve retail trade, stimulate your sales force to greater and more intelligent effort, and better living, educational and recreational conditions, you will have taken your part in the national program.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States believes that the relation of government toward industry and commerce is primarily that of preserving equality of opportunity for all—an equal chance to every citizen to win his position in accordance with his character, ability and efforts. Individual initiative, strengthened by education, safeguarded by publicity, stimulated by active and free competition is the guarantee of sound national progress. Laws and administrative acts should touch business enterprise with great care and only to preserve a fair field to all.

The Individual Citizen.

A wholesome standard of living is essential to general contentment. That standard depends upon the intelligence, work and thrift of the individual citizen and improves as the total production of the country increases. Hence, restriction of production or obstruction to distribution must necessarily undermine that standard resulting in injury to all citizens, of every class.

The foundation of all enterprise is primarily that of service to the community and this service is most effective under private initiative. The community's valuation of that service and its reward for it are most fairly expressed when secured by individual initiative, under conditions of free competition. The value of and the reward for such service cannot be safely apportioned by the arbitrary decisions of government agencies.

I have visited hundreds of Chambers of Commerce throughout the United States, and the more I see of organized communities the more confidence I have that the spirit of America will maintain peace at home and help restore order, and ultimately prosperity, to a stricken world. We may each do our bit working in our own communities with the tools at our command, always having in mind that whatever of betterment we bring to ourselves we bring to the nation of which we are a part.

At the conclusion of the address Mr. Macpherson announced that Mr. Brown will address the directors of the chamber at a meeting to be held this (Tuesday) noon at 12.15 o'clock at the Wauregan hotel. He then called on Charles S. Saxton, president of the Norwich Rotary club. Mr. Saxton said he has always supported the chamber of commerce because he believes it to be an institution that can be of great benefit to the city. Mr. Saxton said he noticed that about 30 per cent of those present at the meeting are members of the Rotary club. That speaks for itself as to the attitude of the Rotary club towards the chamber of commerce. Mr. Saxton said the Rotary club always has backed the chamber and he expressed the opinion that the Rotary club will continue to do so.

George A. Finn, president of the recently organized Lions' club, spoke briefly. He expressed the appreciation felt by the Lions' club as individuals and as an organization of the good work accomplished and being planned by the chamber of commerce. Norwich is our town, so let's boost it, he concluded.

Mr. Macpherson paid a well merited compliment to John J. Rourke, secretary of the chamber, when he said that the securing of the services of Mr. O'Rourke has done more to build up the chamber than anything else. He presented Mr. O'Rourke as the final speaker.

Mr. O'Rourke said that if the business men and progressive citizens of the city only realized the possibilities of making Norwich a city of 100,000 population the city would get somewhere. He said there is not enough civic pride, civic co-operation and endeavor to build up and put Norwich on the map. I hope we will rally and fight shoulder to shoulder for the things that are for the best interests of Norwich. He expressed the opinion that the tax map will do more for the city of Norwich than any one thing accomplished in years.

The gathering was brought to a close a few minutes after 8 o'clock by the singing of The Star Spangled Banner. An orchestra provided music for the community singing and during the supper.

The membership committee of the chamber had charge of the arrangements for the meeting. The committee comprises E. O. Rodier, chairman, John M. Swahn, Herman A. Bruckner, J. A. Desmond, P. W. Chapman, Edwin Hill and Joseph A. French.

GROTON WILL STAND FOR PART FERRY DEFICIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 24.—Groton borough, in meeting today, decided that it wants the ferry to continue running between the borough and New London and to pay any deficit that may be occasioned by the operation of the ferry the borough has voted to be responsible for 25 per cent of the loss. There was a lively meeting to decide the matter but those who attended the meeting say the decision was a wise one and that the two towns will be benefited by it. There was considerable inquiry as to whether Charles F. Willard would be continued in the management, but no one would speak as to that. They did say, however, that an active man who would operate the ferry to the satisfaction of the people would be secured and that when he was in charge the operation of the ferry would not be at any particular loss.

NOTED ARTISTS EXHIBITING AT CONVERSE GALLERY

For the second time the Norwich Art Students' Association will have extended to Norwich the opportunity of viewing a fine collection of paintings and sketches by noted artists from Old Lymen and Mystic.

The regular meeting was held on Monday afternoon in the Converse Art Galleries, where the pictures have been most artistically hung by Ozias Dodge, formerly head of the Norwich Art School, and an etcher of great merit. Mr. Dodge also has on exhibtion four of his own etchings, "Beeches in Winter" being in color. Guests of the association for the afternoon were many of the artists. There are 130 canvasses, including 90 sketches and among the artists are many who rank foremost in their profession and whose pictures are rarely seen outside of the exhibitions in the large cities of the United States.

The names of the exhibitors are: Charles H. Davis, Gregory Smith, Clarke Voorhees, William S. Robinson, Carlton Wiggins, William Howe, G. A. Thompson, Ernest H. Barnes, Julian Joseph, W. Sherwood Potts, G. Victor Grinnell, R. Curley Sylvester, Henry Bill Selden, William Chadwick, Wilson Irvine, Thomas Watson Ball, Harry Hoffman, Maurice Beaun, Van Buren Magonigle, Platt Hubbard, Benjamin Eggleston, Clifford Grayson, George M. Benesle, Charles Ebert, Richard J. Montague, John Newton Hewitt, Ann Crane, Raymond Ball, Bentram Benestle, Henry R. Poor and Ozias Dodge.

Charles H. Davis, whose reputation as one of the foremost landscape artists in the country has on exhibition a beautiful picture, "The Great Oak." He is a painter that has attracted wide interest as an interpreter of nature. Mr. Potts shows the influence of his miniature painting in his picture. "Canoptop." Mr. Potts' miniatures attracted a great deal of attention at the exhibition given a year ago.

Mr. Carlton specializes in sheep, and William Howe in cattle. Thomas Watson Ball has two very interesting pictures of square rigged ships and in direct contrast a betautiful scene called "October." In fact each picture is fascinating in itself. A bit of sunshine on a hill, a storm just about to break, the blue sea, or a village street, fishing boats, or a snow scene, each in itself a beautiful bit to hold the eye. Most of the motifs of the landscapes shown are native to the soil of Old Lyme and Mystic, though there are several excellent portraits and still life.

Through the untiring efforts of Mrs. Robert W. Perkins, vice president of the Art Association, assisted by Mrs. Leonard Church, chairman of the programme committee, Norwich has been given this rare opportunity of having this remarkable colection of beautiful paintings. The exhibition is to be opened to the public every day for two weeks from two to five. Sunday evening, October 7th, inclusive. A small admission fee is charged to cover expenses and tea is to be served Monday, Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

The galleries where the pictures were exhibited were made most inviting by the decorating committee, Miss Mary Richards, chairman, Miss Audrey Gernon, Mrs. Fred Sudlow and Miss Hannah Crowell. Masses of golden marigolds brightened up the tea room and a beautiful basket of pink asters caught the eye as one came up the stairs while feathering asparagus was banked in the center of the exhibition room and on either side of the broad entrance.

On the tea table were bowls of dwarf marigolds and arctostis.

The tea was in charge of Miss Nellie Loring, chairman house committee, assisted by Miss Butts, Mrs. Wallace S. Allis and Mrs. Frank S. Bunnell poured.

The afternoon was one of the most enjoyable meetings held, not only from the artistic standpoint, but educationally and socially, and Norwich can well be proud of an association that can extend to her this privilege of having this very interesting exhibition by such notable artists.

WOMAN SO ILL COULD NOT STAND

Says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well and Strong

Glens Falls, N. Y.—"For over two months I was so sick I was not able to stand on my feet, and my husband did my housework. The doctor said an operation might be necessary. I read testimonial letters about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began to take it. Before I had finished taking the first bottle I saw what good it was doing me. I am now well and strong, doing all my work for a family of four, all my washing and my sewing, which I think is remarkable, as I had not dared to run my sewing machine, but had done all my sewing by hand. I truly feel that were it not for your medicine I would not be here today as my case seemed very serious."—Mrs. GEORGE W. BUSCHELL, Glens Falls, N Y.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free, upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information that every woman should have.

ALL FAVORITES COME THROUGH SAFELY IN PROFESSIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP PLAY

Pelham Manor, N. Y., Sept. 24 (By the A. P.)—All the stars survived the first 36 hole round matches today of the Professional Golfers' association championship played over the crooked undulating, heavily wooded course of the Pelham Country club. Some of the stars had easy tasks, others had more trouble than they expected, yet all pulled through.

"Long Jim" Barnes, the Pelham pro., needed to go only 25 holes to defeat young George Dernbach of East Providence, R. I. Barnes was two under par for the 25. Dernbach was in trouble on most every hole. Gene Sarazen 1922 champion, shook off Lloyd Gelickson of Columbus, O., after they had played even for nine holes and won 4 and 7. Sarazen won the first three holes of the match, halved the next three and lost the seventh, eighth and ninth. Then he gathered himself together and took a card that Gelickson could never cut down.

Walter Hagen found a sticker in George Griffin of Clearfield, Pa., but managed by some of his super-golf to defeat him 4 and 3. Hagen laid four mymies on the first 18 but Griffin held on even terms. On the 12th hole in the afternoon round occurred one of golf's queerest shots. Hagen's approach rolled very close to the hole. Griffin was on the edge of the green on his second and his long putt bumped Hagen's ball smack into the cup, giving the New Yorker a birdie three and the hole. Griffin made another queer shot on the 18th in getting around a stymie. Hagen's ball lay but a short kick from the cup and was a perfect stymie. Griffin eight feet away, putt and his ball as if bewitched rolled to within an inch of Hagen's, jerked around it and sank for a half.

The most interesting match of the day was between John Farrell of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Dave McKay of Pittsburgh. Farrell was four down at the end of 18 holes, but he cut down McKay's lead to one hole on the third nine, evened the match on the 33d hole and won on the 36th with a birdie three.

By virtue of last minute withdrawals, Robert Cruickshank, who carried Bobby Jones to the last hole of an 18-hole play-off before the Atlanta youth could win the open championship in July, and Jack Forester, another star of the open tournament, were allotted places in the tournament and won their matches.

Willie Ogg of Worcester, Mass., performed the unusual by shooting each of the first 18 holes in par. Par for the course is 74.

Tomorrow's pairings are: Cruickshank vs. Underwood Colvert vs. Derr, McFarlane vs. Reid Stalt vs. Forrester Barnes vs. Cowan Cooper vs. Walker, Klein vs. Campbell, Sarazan vs. White, Hackney vs. Miner, Meehan vs. McLeod, Hagen vs. Elpich, Barnett vs. Golden, Kirkwood vs. West, Farrell vs. Hunter, McLean vs. Donaldson and Ogg vs. Anderson.

FINE SCORES MADE AT VOLUNTOWN RIFLE RANGE

At a recent rifle match held by the Voluntown Rifle club, George Sheldon made a fine 10-shot score on the expert target for the Edmond medal, 97 out of a possible 100; Fred Stebbins also made a fine score of 96; William H. Kaufmann made a good 50-shot score with a .38 Colt revolver, at 50 yards; 491 out of a possible 500 on the standard American target.

O'LEARY OUT TO BEAT "INEXPERIENCED" TROLAND

Manager Troland says I have only been known in baseball for one year and he claims 15 years in the game, but right here let me tell you that I will beat him in the three-game series that starts Sunday at the fairgrounds.

From what I hear Troland has secured a team made up entirely of Eastern league players and intends to take home to Taftville a win from Norwich. I'm glad to hear that he has secured some real players but whoever he gets I will put a team on the field for Norwich that will win every time.

Now that the series is assured to begin Sunday and run for three consecutive Sundays, I'm out to win, so Manager Troland should take care what he has to say lest he be compelled to eat his bragging statements. Norwich never has lost a series to Taftville and wont begin this year.

If Troland has got a crack team signed let him announce his lineup so the fans will know for sure. The Norwich lineup will be announced Thursday morning and I'll guarantee a winning team.

MANAGER O'LEARY.

BOSTON DROPS BOTH GAMES TO ST. LOUIS

Boston, Sept. 24.—St. Louis took both games from Boston today, 6 to 1, and 4 to 2. The second game was won in the tenth when Schliebner's single to left with two out and the bases filled, scored two runs. Ezzell's fielding was sensational in this game. Boston players continually protested Danforths delivery in the first game. The scores:

MIDDLETOWN CLUB SWAMPED BY FAST RIVERVIEW TEAM

What was scheduled for a baseball game between the so-called, fast Middletown club and Riverview, Saturday, at the State Hospital grounds, proved a joke according to the fans.

Riverview hit the ball all over the lot and won by a score of 10 to 0. Had Riverview possessed nine bat boys the game might have been close from a scoring point, but with the regular team in the field the game was a joke.

The Riverview boys took right to the deliveries of the Middletown hurlers and at an early stage had the game sewed up and then held batting practice. The opposing battery was rated as one of the best along the lower Connecticut river, but would be lucky to be classed among the next best along the upper Thames river.

The Riverview team played fast ball and alongside the visitors looked like major leaguers. West pitched and Reddy caught and the others hit and scored for the local team.

REDS HUMBLE GIANTS IN FIRST GAME OF SERIES; CUT LEAD TO THREE GAMES

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 24.—Cincinnati remained strongly in the fight for the National league pennant by winning the first game of their final series with New York today, 6 to 3. Donohue allowed nine hits and walked five batters, but was strong in the pinches and was favored by two lucky double plays on hard line drives in the early innings. Fowler, a recruit shortstop, won the game in the seventh with a home run, driving in Rouan, who had singled, and Hargrave, who had been purposely passed. The Reds clinched it in the next inning off Jonnard, scoring two runs on a pass, a double by Roush and a single by Duncan. The Giants started a rally in the ninth when Groh led off with a single and Frisch tripled, but Donohue got the next three men in order.

The lead of the Giants was reduced to three games, they having won 82 and lost 55, while the Reds have won 80 and lost 59. The Giants have six more games to play and the Reds five, including the final contest between the two contending teams here tomorrow. Today's victory gave the Reds the season's series with the Giants, which now stands 12 games to 9 in their favor.

FIRPO BEING SUED FOR $54,206.24, ALLEGED PAY DUE

New York, Sept. 24.—Luis Angel Firpo climbed from a $125 third-rater to a $125,000 championship contender in a year and a half of pugilistic enterprise in this country, according to papers filed today in the suit brought by Andrew D. McCorkindale of Long Beach, N. Y., against the Argentine boxer for $54,206.24.

McCorkindale, who obtained an attachment against Firpo's share of the purse for his title battle with Jack Dempsey at the Polo grounds recently, charges this amount is due him under an alleged contract with the South American, by the terms of which he was to receive 25 per cent. of the fighter's earnings plus $3,300 for expenses.

Firpo's total earnings for seven fights here amounted to not less than $203,625, according to McCorkindale. The Argentine it is alleged, received $125 for his first fight in this country, with Sailor Maxted, and $125,000 for the Dempsey match. Illustrating the rapid rise in Firpo's drawing powers, the complaint points out that he received $1,000 and $3,500, respectively, for knocking out Joe McCann and Italian Jack Herman in 1922; $9,000 for his victory over Bill Brennan last March; $15,000 for defeating Jack McAuliffe, II., in May, and $50,000 as his share of the spoils at Boyle's Thirty Acres, where he vanquished Jess Willard in July.

ORIOLE HURLER BREAKS LEAGUE PITCHING RECORDS

Baltimore, Sept. 24.—Pitching both ends of a double-header against the Jersey City Skeeters here Sunday, in an effort to eclipse the world's consecutive winning record, held jointly by Rube Marquard and Tim Keefe at 19 straight, Rube Parnham achieved his aim. He won both contests, 5 to 1 and 13 to 0. The second game was limited to seven innings by agreement.

In running his string to 20 straight the Oriole ace set his season's mark at 32 victories, eclipsing the International league record shared by Ogden and Vickers of Baltimore. Parnham was master of the situation at all times, while Musante, Carruthers and Hanson were hit freely.

| | W. | L. | P.C. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Baltimore | 111 | 53 | .677 |
| Rochester | 101 | 65 | .608 |
| Reading | 85 | 79 | .518 |

| Buffalo | 83 | 81 | .506 |

SUB BASE LOSES OPENING FOOTBALL GAME—SCORE 9 TO 0

The football eleven representing the sub base got off to a poor start Sunday afternoon and lost its opening game to Williams of New Haven by the score of 9 to 0.

Three hundred fans stood in the pouring rain and saw the base eleven lose to the landlubbers. The ground was slippery and end runs were not effective but the New Haven team managed to pierce the navy line for one touchdown and scored three more points by a field goal.

The base eleven threatened to score several times, but lacked the punch necessary to force the oval through the New Haven defense

N. E. CLARK DEFEATS DORSEY FOR NEW LONDON COUNCIL MEMBER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 24.—The funeral of Stephen M. Lee, son of Mrs. George M. Lee of Mott avenue, who was killed Thursday when an explosion occurred at the bureau of standards at Washington where Mr. Lee was employed, was held this morning at 11 o'clock at St. James' Episcopal church, the services being conducted by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Osea O. Smith, 46, a former resident of New London, died Saturday night at his home at Uncasville, where he had been ill several weeks. Mr. Smith is survived by his widow. He was employed by the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., and was a member of Pequot lodge, I. O. O. F., of New London.

Almira E., 88, widow of William P. Williams, died Saturday night at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. James Rathbun, 203 Howard street, following an illness of several years. Besides Mrs. Rathbun, Mrs. Williams is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Elmer Brown of New London and a grandson, Frank Brown.

Steamer Mount Hope of the Providence, Fall River and Newport Steamboat company, has arrived at the yard of the Thames Towboat Co., where she will be inspected and repairs made to the craft.

Joseph Flinchum, a sailor, stationed on one of the submarines at the base, who was sentenced to the reformatory at Cheshire at the present term of the superior court on a charge of statutory rape, was taken to the institution this morning by Sheriff Sidney A. Brown. Flinchum attacked and assaulted Catherine Shea, 11, the step-daughter of Patrolman Howard Sloan, when the sailor went to the Sloan residence on Broad street and finding the girl in bed, attacked her.

Edward Calvert of Groton, George Havens, Westerly, Mrs. John Hurlburt and infant daughter, Tilley street, Ernest Lanphere, Brooklyn, N. Y., Richard Bugbee, Blackhall, Chas. Corduri, Waterford, Master Frank Gardner, West Colt street and Daniel Westrick of Union street, were patients discharged today at Lawrence hospital.

Andrew Spese, an employe of the New Haven Dairy, and Miss Pauline Rubino of 50 Mountain avenue, were married this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, by Rev. John J. McGrath, by whom the nuptial mass was celebrated. Anthony Granato was best man and Miss Carmele Muscarello attended the bride. Little Mary Brillo was flower girl and Benjamin Rubino, brother of the bride, was ring bearer. This evening at Music hall, Bank street, a reception was held and was attended by a large number of Mr. and Mrs. Speses friends.

The Bulletin's telegraph news today told of the death in New York Sunday of Lewis Gordon Norrie, son of Gordon Norrie and a brother of Miss Emily Norrie of New York, and an annual resident of the Pequot colony. Mr. Norrie, a prominent athlete at Princeton university was the star player of the college hockey team. He sustained injuries in an automobile accident in New York Saturday night and died later at a New York hospital.

Ernest J. Murphy, driver of a truck from East Lyme, was packing along on the curbing at the Darrow & Comstock store just as William Coyle, driver of Uncle Sam's parcel post wagon came up Bank street. Murphy stepped away from the curb. Coyle passed, without giving any signal and as a result the truck struck the rear of the Coyle automobile a severe blow. Coyle sought the arrest of Murphy and in the police court today he was fined $10.

Joseph Reinacher was operating a Ford car on Howard street, some time ago, and backed into an alleyway that he might turn and go down the street. Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain was driving her car by and when Reinacher came from the yard he crowded the Chamberlain car over against a post on the opposite side of the street, damaging the car to the extent of $30 or more, as the mudguards were bent and the axel of the car was sprung. Mrs. Chamberlain sued Reinacher today and claimed that he played a trick on her, in that he got her to go to the police station and tell a story that modified her first version somewhat. That was on the promise that he would pay the damages his car occasioned to the Chamberlain car and because if he was arrested again for reckless driving that the case would not be so severe against him. "As yet," said Mrs. Chamberlain, "I have not seen anything of the check he was to send at once." The probability is that Mrs. Chamberlain will sue Reinhart for damages.

John R. Gregson of Norwich, John A. Morgan of Groton and Nell McDevitt of New London were scooped in by the police Sunday evening for parking their cars on the north side of Golden street. They got away with a reprimand, however, and avoided a fine. Gregson got the trio out of the mess. He drove his car up to a warning sign and parked it there. The sign read, "No parking after 8 a. m." Gregson said he construed that to mean that he could park in the evening and that was what he did. The others saw his car parked and they thought they drove right in behind him and there they stayed till they had attended the picture show. Judge Prince advised that the wording of the warning sign be changed and then he suspended judgment in the cases of the offenders.

Rev. Dr. T. M. Crowley, pastor of St. Mary's church, sent an inquiry to the city council this evening asking where the city got its authority to send officers of the police force from New London to adjoining towns. He wanted to know why the officers who are paid by the city, are allowed to do work in the performance of their duties in the other towns. He declared that he had no sinister motive in view but that he sought the information. The inquiry was referred to the city manager and to the legal representative of the city.

Judge Prince had his patience tried today when he heard the complaints against Philip Hausa and Mike Shasha, Syrians, in which assault with intent to kill was alleged. The trouble that led to the complaint ocurred on a trolley car a week ago last Saturday and it terminated at the car barn on Montauk avenue when Conductor Murphy was jabbed with a pocket knife.

Today Philip denied that he cut the officer, but claimed that he and Mike were pitched upon by the conductor and that they were beaten and knocked down. The Syrians were represented in court by an attorney and he desired to make an argument in the case so it was adjourned till Tuesday morning to give him an opportunity so to do.

Loren Davis, who has been a plumber hereabouts, and his wife have had such domestic troubles that they are living apart. They have a boy three years old who has been in the custody of the mother as she has applied for a decree of divorce and the court gave the custody of the child to her. Then Davis secured the child and took it to Syracuse where he was apprehended by Sergeant Smith of the New London police force on a warrant and extradition papers. The officers bill of actual expense was $104.44. Davis today pleaded guilty of abducting the child. He said he was willing to go to make his home with his wife and she declared that she was willing to have him do so if he would treat her as he should. The court continued the case for a month and placed Davis in the custody of Probation Officer Mansfield, it was said with the understanding that Davis should recompense the city for the money expended.

It was reported this forenoon that Mrs. Perry, who has been under medical treatment at the home of Mrs. Jennie Bolton at Station 22, since the accident had died, but though suffering considerable pain from the severe bruise she is recovering.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

CONNECTICUT HAY-YIELD INCREASED

While wheat has been much in the public eye of late, farmers are not forgetting the value of their other crops and the importance of producing them on the most economical basis.

George Cowles of Woodbury, Conn., has increased his yield of hay by practically 1 1-2 tons per acre simply by proper fertilization. An application of 400 pounds per acre of a fertilizer analyzing approximately 5-10-0 produced 3.75 tons of hay while an unfertilized area yielded at the rate of 2.3 tons. The ton and a half increase was obtained at a cost of only $5.75 per ton.

YOUNG COCKLEBUR PLANTS PROVE POISONOUS TO STOCK

The cocklebur variously thought to have been troublesome only as a weed and because of its stiffly armed burs, has been demonstrated definitely to be poisonous to livestock in the early stages of its growth, as was reported by other observers. The report on this demonstration is made by C. D. Marsh, G. C. Roe and A. B. Clawson of the United States department of agriculture. Only the very young plants, before leaves have formed, produce poisoning, and the dose which produces sickness or death is about 1 1-2 pounds to a 100-pound animal. This means that young pigs up to 50 pounds in weight, which have been found the most susceptible, are poisoned by 12 ounces or less of the small cocklebur plants. Cattle or sheep also may be poisoned if they eat enough of the plants in proportion to their weight.

Little can be said so far about medical treatment for this kind of poisoning. Feeding of whole milk was found to prevent pigs feeding on the cocklebur plants from being poisoned. Salted bacon grease, lard, and raw linseed oil also gave good results. The best method, says the circular, is to keep pigs off pastures infested with cockleburs until the plants are large enough to be harmless, or to kill out the plants by mowing them before they seed. It must be remembered in this connection that each bur contains two seeds and that ordinarily one of them will grow the first year after ripening, consequently it is not possible to kill out a patch of the plants the first year.

RATION SERVICE FOR SEPTEMBER

Short pasture feed, caused by the extreme dry weather, has caused a decided drop in the milk yield. Those dairymen who were foresighted put in some green crops early in the season and have thus been able to keep their cows from shrinking in their milk flow. Plan now to do this for next year so as not to be caught by pasture shortage again.

This shortage of good pasture feed is having its effect on the flesh conditions of all animals on pasture. This will call for better feeding. Young stock in many pastures are looking very thin. Don't let them stay on pasture feed too long. A little feeding of hay and grain may better be made now than wait till the cattle come to the barn for winter quarters. The way they look now would seem to indicate that they will be in mighty thin flesh by housing time.

Have you ordered your winter supply of grain? The grain market is steadily advancing and it does not look as if there would be any decrease in prices on grains in general.

All things considered, a mixture as follows should give fairly good results for feeding for the next four weeks:

| | Crude Protein |
|---|---|
| 400 bran | 60 |
| 300 ground oats | 37 |
| 300 corn meal or hominy | 30 |
| 500 gluten | 115 |
| 300 cottonseed 43 per cent. | 129 |
| 200 oil meal | 60 |
| 2000 pounds contains | 431 |

This mixture may be fed at the rate of 1 pound of grain to 3 pounds of milk for Jerseys and Guernseys, and 1 to 4 for Holsteins and Ayrshires. If it is desirable to feed a lower protein in mixture, 24 per cent. cottonseed may be used, although the 43 per cent. is the better to buy.—By A. R. Merrill, Dairy Specialist.

CAN DO MUCH TO IMPROVE SILAGE

As silage is considered second only to hay as home-grown feeds by Connecticut dairymen, any improvements in quality or reduction in expense in harvesting finds a hearty welcome. If no other factor were at stake, the strenuous labor involved in harvesting annually suggests the need for reconsidering our practices. Is not laziness the mother of invention?

When is corn in the best condition for harvesting as ensilage? Soon after the silk appears on the ears, the corn plant does not increase in size or weight and many are then inclined to think that all they need is to fill the silo. Yet between the time the silk appears and the kernels are glazed, there is a 100 per cent increase in dry matter content and fully 50 per cent increase in crude protein. From the glazed stage until maturity, the changes in composition are relatively slight. What then is the need for cutting corn before kernels are developed, when without extra cost in growing or labor in harvesting, a gain of at least 50 per cent can be secured by harvesting when nearly mature. Feeding trials now in progress at the Storrs Experiment Station indicate very clearly that silage from matured corn requires much less grain to maintain production than from immature corn.

Farm surveys in this state indicate that silage corn costs about nine dollars a ton regardless of whether it is mostly water or feed. The matter of feed value may therefore be a determining factor in whether or not it is a paying crop.

It must be clear that it is not merely weight that is desired in silage but feed as well. It is doubtful if the common practice of removing ears from corn before putting into the silo is good economy of labor. Ears improve the quality of the silage and if removed more grain feed is needed for a supplement. Would it not be as easy to buy grain for the poultry as for the stock fed silage? Furthermore, ears removed from ensilage corn are usually immature and may spoil.

Continued wet weather makes the curing of second crop clover or alfalfa in the fall difficult and sometimes impossible. These crops may be put into the silo does not seem to improve the feed value of legumes (clovers) over making them into hay but it is sometimes a convenient method of harvesting. Another advantage of preserving crops in the silo is the greater economy in storage space. A ton of alfalfa hay requires about 500 cubic feet for storage, while in the form of silage the same material including the extra water can be stored in less than 200 cubic feet.

To make silage it is necessary that air be excluded. To exclude air the cut material must be of sufficient weight to pack well. If the material is dry when it comes into the silo, air pockets will be formed and molding results. If the material coming into the silo has sufficient moisture it will pack firmly when trampled. Otherwise water should be added until it does pack firmly. While silage that is too wet is not desirable it is hard to injure silage by adding too much water. In case of doubt, add water. A stream of water running into the blower mixes the water and material thoroughly. Another method is to add the water in the silo as it is being filled. Careful distribution to avoid dry pockets is essential. Silage near the top needs more water than lower down as the lower part is always under great weight.

Continual packing by tramping reduces danger of spoilage and settling in fact careful packing is almost essential for good preservation and lack of it causes more trouble than many are aware. When small outfits for filling are used and intervals elapse between days of filling the silage will settle, but with continuous rapid filling one or two men are needed for tramping. A common method of distribution in the silo is to build the silage about two feet high around the walls and tramp this well; then fill the center and tramp it, equally and repeat the process.

If filling is stopped for more than two days, the top few inches will be spoiled and should be removed. After the filling is completed instead of sealing with corn, wet cut straw may be put in to make a covering of about ten inches. If the corn is allowed to remain uncovered, a sprinkling of salt will reduce the spoilage.

During the process of fermentation of silage, carbonic acid gas is given off. This gas is heavier than air and when the silo is closed, remains in the silo. Carbonic acid gas is poisonous and occasionally someone does not take needed caution. If the doors are put in as the silo is filled and not before, there will be no danger.—J. B. Owens, crop specialist, Extension Service, C. A. C.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, Sept. 24.—Irregular price movements in today's stock market continued to reflect the play of opposing speculative forces. The opening was strong in response to cable reports forecasting Germany's decision to capitulate to France in the matter of reparations. Considerable short covering took place in the initial dealings but when the bears discovered that there was little disposition on the part of operators on the long side of the market to press their advantage, they began to offer the recognized leaders freely and the whole list sagged again.

The market turned upward in the early afternoon with good buying noted in the low priced rails and a resumption of bullish operations in stocks in which favorable dividend developments are reported to be pending. Net gains largely exceeded net losses at the close.

The continental allied exchanges made the quickest and strongest response to the better tone of the foreign news. Belgian francs jumped more than 30 points to 5.45 cents. French francs advanced 15 1-2 points to 5.17 cents and Italian lire jumped 10 points to 4.61 cents, but all these quotations were shaded somewhat later. Demand sterling advanced 1-2 cent to $4.55 5-8.

The failure of a sharper rally in stock prices on foreign developments was attributed in many quarters to the general uncertainty concerning the future trend of domestic business. Commission houses generally had advised against the indiscriminate purchase of stocks while several have cautioned their customers to stay out of the market pending more definite developments of the ultimate trend, which probably explains the apparent lack of public interest.

Studebaker was the target of bear pressure, being forced down to 93 1-8 but snapping back later to 100 3-8, off 5-8. U. S. Steel common ranged between 86 5-8 and 88 1-8, closing unchanged at 87 3-4.

Some of the outstanding strong spots were Dupont, Continental Can, Corn Products, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, General Motors 7 per cent. Debentures and Phillips Petroleum, up 2 to 3 1-4 points, and Houston Oil, up 1 3-8.

Rails showed few important changes on the day. Baltimore & Ohio was again active on speculative expectation that the common dividend will be resumed before the end of the year, the stock closing at 52 for a net gain of 1-2 on the day.

Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent. but advanced to 5 1-2 before the close. The time money market was quiet with brokers biddings 1-4 for all dates and bankers asking 5 1-2

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Corn today scored new high price records for the season and brought about fresh upturns in the value of wheat. Assertions that the stock of old corn is the smallest ever known and that the movement of new corn will be extremely small for some time had a decided bullish effect. Wheat closed strong, 7-8 to 1 3-4c net higher, with December 104 3-8 to 104 1-2 and May 109 3-4 to 109 7-8. Corn finished 1-2 to 1 3-4c up, oats at 3-8 to 3-4c advance, and provision unchanged to 13 cents down.

Almost as soon as the market was open, September delivery of corn jumped above 97 cents, for the first time this season, and during the day May delivery had also attained a new top figure. Scarcity of immediate supplies of corn continued to be acute, and this circumstance was emphasized by further reports of frost damage to the new corn crop. Under such circumstances offerings of wheat were light and the wheat market reflected the upward swing of corn values. The fact that hedging sales of wheat at Winnipeg were small in proportion to the large receipts there was also a bullish influence, as was gossip about likelihood of an increased tariff on wheat imported into the United States.

Highest prices of the day were current both for wheat and corn in the final trading. Previous sellers of corn found themselves in a pinch, and made haste to extricate themselves but in doing so were forced to bid prices up. At the finish, No. 2 yellow corn available for immediate delivery commanded 90 cents a bushel, 1 6-8c over September.

CURB MARKET

New York, Sept. 24.—Alternate periods of strength and heaviness characterized today's curb market with a fair sized rally in progress at the close and net gains predominating.

Oils continued to show evidence of better support. Magnolia Petroleum was run up 4 points and Imperial of Canada, 3 1-8, while Vacuum, Pennsylvania-Mexico Fuel and Prairie Oil & Gas each gained about a point. Standard Oil of Indiana and a number of the other active issues improved fractionally. Standard Oil of Nebraska, making its first appearance in weeks, sold at 205, or 24 points below the previous sale.

Higher anthracite prices were held responsible for the 1 1-4 point gain in Glen Alden coal. Trading in the new Gold Dust common stock was started on a "when issued" basis, opening at 18 1-4, sagging to 18 1-2 and then rallying to 22, where it closed. Motors were again heavy.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Sept. 24.—Speculative interest in French and Belgian bonds, which advanced moderately, featured today's trading in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

Active U. S. government bonds were quiet with prices practically unchanged. Gains of a point or more were recorded by Lyons 6s, Framerican 7-2s and Belgian 8s. Some of the others closed fractionally lower on profit taking.

Some of the railroad mortgages displayed strength in the early trading, but net changes were small. New York, Westchester & Boston 4 1-2s moved up a point while Pennsylvania, General 4 1-2s declined 1 1-2.

Trading in industrial liags was dull and price movements irregular and within narrow limits. Sugar issues were fairly active but closed within fractions of yesterday's final quotations.

SOUSA'S BAND TONIGHT IN ITS 31ST SEASON

Lieut. Com. John Philip Sousa gave his first concert at the head of the band which bears his name on Sept. 16th, 1892. This season is the 31st during which he has headed his organization, and the 15th in which he has gone from coast to coast. During his career Sousa has raised his baton over his band for more than 10,000 concerts—an average of more than 300 concerts a season.

The following will be the program for the concert tonight in the Norwich state armory:

Breed Theatre.

For beauty of scenic backgrounds, both natural and built sets, for dramatic thrills, excellent acting and directing, the Cosmopolitan picture, Enemies of Women, which is now being shown at the Breed theatre, is far out of the ordinary. It lives up to the press agent's claims for it—and far exceeds them in gorgeousness of settings and costumes and in the spectacular element which runs through it. The continuity was prepared by John Lynch from Vincente Blasco Ibanez's latest novel; it was directed in Monte Carlo, Nice and Paris by Alan Crossland, one of the screen's foremost directors. Joseph Urban, noted scenic artist, made the settings.

The cast is one of the kind that can't be beat. Lionel Barrymore, featured as Prince Michael Lubimoff, is easily one of the half dozen greatest screen actors of the day. Playing opposite him is Alma Rubens, beautiful and gifted actress, who scored so decisively in Humoresque. Others in the cast are Gladys Hulette, Pedro de Corboda, Gareth Hughes, the late William H. Thompson, veteran stage actor, William Collier, Jr., Mario Majeroni and Betty Bouton.

Enemies of Women is produced on a magnificent scale that carries the spectator out of himself—even the most blase pictureg oer must yield to its spell. The story of Prince Lubimoff, for whom life holds no more thrills, and the Duchess Delile, starting in Russia with a sensuous and brilliant reception in the prince's palace, where he kills a Cossack officer in a duel, and then shifting to Nice and Monte Carlo, against a background of the World war, holds enchantment for all. It is as fine an example of motion picture art at its highest as we know of. It has everything that the film patron can demand of a picture. It is one of the few productions of the year that fans must see.

MOTHER RECOMMENDS COUGH REMEDY

"My mother had a severe cough. I bought her a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar and it helped her at once. Also gave my son several doses and his cough disappeared," writes Mrs. S. L. Givens, Greenfield, Virginia. For quick relief from coughs, colds, croup, throat, chest and bronchial trouble use Foley's Honey and Tar. Stood the test of time, serving three generations. Largest selling cough medicine in the world. Lee & Osgood Co.

President Of Congressional Club

At the Strand Theatre.

The four B. F. Keith vaudeville acts presented at the Strand yesterday proved a very fine program, judging from the way the acts were received by a large and enthusiastic audience.

Shean and Phillips in The Younger Edition are two likeable chaps who are presented by Gallagher and Shean.

Billy Beard, the great blackface comedian, upheld his reputation gained in every city he played and kept the audience in uproars of laughter.

It is easy to understand why Broken Chains, the feature at the Strand theatre, won the first prize of ten thousand dollars in the scenario contest conducted by Goldwyn Pictures corporation and the Chicago Daily News. This is an all-round fine production. Intensely dramatic in theme, well cast and beautifully directed.

Malcolm McGregor, who attracted considerable attention for his fine work in The Prisoner of Zenda, has the leading male role, that of a wealthy young easterner, Peter Wyndham, who undergoes a spiritual regeneration and learns the meaning of courage through love.

CHESTNUT HILL

LISBON

The Ladies' Aid society met Thursday afternoon in the town hall and tied a quilt. Tea was served at the parsonage. There was a large attendance including several gentlemen.

The early part of the week at least two different parties were in town looking up the homes of their ancestors or other relatives. Miss Maud Allen of New York, who has a summer home on Mason's Island, called at A. R. Barber's Monday. The grandmother of Miss Allen lived, when a girl, on the Barber farm in what is now the ell of the farmhouse and then stood near the spring house at some distance from the present site. The large farmhouse was built in 1791 and the older small house was moved down to serve as the ell.

Another inquirer was Mr. Meech, who said he was a cousin of H. L. Reade and wanted to visit the old Reads farm where he had lived for a time when a boy.

Rev. W. J. Reynolds was called to Ekonk Friday to officiate at the funeral of Mrs. Ezra Gallup.

The heavy frost Tuesday morning whitened the corn fields and ruined flower gardens on the low lands excepting along the rivers where the fog hung low. But little damage resulted on the hills.

LIBERTY HILL

Mr. and Mrs. Hollenback of Boston are guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnaird.

Selectman Everett C. Payson returned to his home from Willimantic Sunday.

Charles R. Winchester and daughter, Lula Winchester, of Hartford, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Goodrich.

A frost Friday morning did more or less damage to gardens and field corn.

Charles E. Goodrich and son Charles, Jr., are spending a few days in New York city with friends and relatives, going Thursday.

Rev. W. S. Woolworth is to give an illustrated lecture on Japan next Sunday evening.

Mrs. Mary A. Davoll, who has been spending a few days with relatives here, has returned to New Bedford.

Arthur F. Davoll, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Davoll, was operated on for appendicitis in Willimantic hospital Friday and is resting comfortably.

Mrs. John Clarke has circulated a paper for the Red Cross campaign for Japanese relief, securing $56, which is considered a large amount for the north end of the town.

Only a thick-headed person can successfully pose as a model of self-conceit.

MOSES LIFE SHOWN IN PICTURES AT Y. M. C. A.

Notwithstanding the rainy day, a goodly number attended the Sunday afternoon meeting at the local Young Mens Christian Association. Several popular hymns were sung, after which the scripture was read and prayer offered. Vocal solos were rendered by Hugh Kinder and George Stanton, all of which were pleasing to the audience.

The second part of the life of Moses was shown in moving pictures and these were most impressive. Among other things the suffering of the Israelites was shown, as their taskmasters imposed heavy burdens upon them; the pictures of the plagues sent by God were very realistic, and the parting of the sea for the Israelites and the smiting of the rock for water were true illustrations of the Bible narrative.

Between the reels, Secretary Hill gave a brief address, and among other things said: "The world, or parts of it has always been cursed by slavery. The slavery of the Israelites and the slavery of the black man concerned a certain number, small in proportion to those in the slavery of sin. Some nineteen hundred years ago, God planned to break this awful slavery, and sent his own beloved Son to live and died on calvary can you not see him hanging there bleeding, suffering, dying, and all that the chains of sin might be broken. It is strange how many there are all over this world, who seem not to care to be freed from this terrible bondage of sin; let those of us who have had our bonds broken, strive to lead those yet in that bondage to the great Christ, who alone can free them. There are many in the world who need to be thus freed, and Norwich has its share; let us do our best to help them."

Gilbert dated April 2, 1923, and the other for $1,000, dated April 19, 1923, the latter given to the Boston Ship Brokerage Co., Both notes were endorsed to the plaintiff, who asks an injunction to restrain the defendant from transferring certain stocks of the Ashland Cotton Co. and the Jewett City Trust Co.

WALLINGFORD MASONIC HOME MUST BE ENLARGED

At Grand Master's day exercises in the Masonic home in Wallingford Saturday Fred A. Verplanck of South Manchester, formerly of Norwich, president of the Masonic Charity Foundation, made a stirring plea for the enlargement of the institution to meet the growing demands on it. He felt that a hospital was needed. The $5,000 given in the will of Mrs. Annie S. Page of Waterbury was available for this purpose, as it had been left without restriction. Mr. Verplanck said that the home was almost filled. There are in it 177 persons and between 40 and 50 are cared for outside. Of the latter number, 14 are children.

Arthur M. Brown of Jewett City, grand master, made an address. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of Norwich, grand chaplain, told about the chaos into which much of the world was plunged and made a powerful plea for work by the order for a policy between conservatism and radicalism. Mrs. Bella Powell of Hartford, grand matron of the Order of Eastern Star in Connecticut, made an address.

M. McManus of Springfield and Miss Flora Hall of Meriden sang. Announcement was made that employes of the Southern New England Telephone company in New Haven had given to the home a radio receiving outfit with a loud speaker for use in the home.

A basket luncheon was eaten and Supt. Andrew J. Hallock provided coffee. About 800 were present.

FACE AND HEAD CUT, AUTO HITS TROLLEY

Frank De Paolo of 280 1-2 Franklin street was badly cut about the face and head a few minutes after noon Monday when the Oakland touring car he was driving crashed into a Norwich-bound New London trolley car in a head-on collision on Thames street in the vicinity of the Richmond stove works. The man's injuries were dressed by Dr. Louis T. Cassidy. The touring car was badly wrecked, the hood being crushed and twisted out of shape, radiator pushed out of place, left headlight smashed, front axle sprung, one tire ripped and the windshield smashed.

Mr. De Paolo was driving his car in a southerly direction when the trolley car, headed for Franklin square, hove in sight. An automobile parked by the roadside made it impossible to pass the car in time to avoid a collision. A passenger riding in the front seat with De Paolo escaped injury.

The trolley car was in charge of Motorman Stephen Wood and Conductor Frank Hill.

DEATH OF REV. JOHN T. SMITH, FOUNDER CATH. ACTORS' GUILD

Relatives in Norwich were notified Monday of the death in Misericordia hospital, New York city, Monday morning, of Rev. Dr. John Talbot Smith, 68, pastor of the Sacred Heart church at Dobbs Ferry, who had been ill since last March with stomach trouble. Dr. Smith was widely known as founder and the first chaplain of the Catholic Actors' guild of America and was treasurer of that guild at the time of his death. He was a scholarly writer and had published a number of books, also contributing to the high-grade magazines and to the newspapers.

Dr. Smith was born in Saratoga, received his early education at Cohoes, N. Y., and made his theological course at St. Michael's college, Toronto, having been ordained 43 years ago last June. He was appointed curate at Watertown, N. Y., and after a year and a half in that city was made pastor at Rouse's Point, N. Y. Later he was stationed in New York city as one of the editors of the Catholic News. About 12 years ago he was assigned to the pastorate of Dobbs Ferry. He was a most industrious writer, his work embracing a variety of topics, and for years he has been a conspicuous figure in the literary and ecclesiastical world. He was as witty as learned, one of the most genial of companions and did incalculable good in his influence, especially in rounding into shape the guild of Catholic actors, by the members of which he was greatly beloved.

Dr. Smith leaves a sister, Miss Mary Smith, in Cohoes, also two nieces in that city, an aunt, Mrs. Mary McNerney, of Norwich, also four cousins here, Mrs. Margaret E. McCormick, whose son is Rev. Dr. Patrick J. McCormick, a professor in the Catholic university, Washington—Mrs. J. F. Healey, Mrs. Frank J. Murtha and William H. Lynch. He was an occasional visitor to Norwich and impressed all who met him as a priest who upheld with rare sanctity and zeal the traditions of his high calling.

CHILDREN'S HATS THIS FALL MINIATURES OF GROWN-UPS'

This season, children's hats follow the types of those worn by grown-ups.

Sport shapes are among the leaders, but there is a great variety in the shapes and trimmings of the models on view.

The Bramley tam is greatly liked for sports, golf and the like by adult wearers and the same style is strong with the wee girls.

Broadcloth hats, hats in velvet, cute headwear with astrachan trimming, hats with a touch of the fashionable beaver, there seems an endless assortment on display in the lines which really are miniature hats as trimmed for women's wear.

So, too, as to colors. Coolidge brown is in strong favor, while many hats come in tints to match the coats worn by the little people. There are chenille trimmed, nasty little lids, many on the poke order, some have smart tassels, or feather banding, rosettes, cords, pompons, knots of French flowers, self-rosettes, a touch of fringe,—etc.

Some of the stores run a special line of headwear for children. Follow the guide of those merchants who advertise in The Bulletin today, when seeking the prettiest and most favorably priced hat for juniors.

Metropolitan Guessing Contest.

Miss Elizabeth Crandall, daughter of Prof. L. B. Crandall of Storrs College, has been declared the winner of the guessing contest conducted by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company in connection with their welfare exhibit at the recent county fair.

There were 31,115 policies in force in the Norwich district on Sept. 4, and a prize of $5 was offered to the person guessing the correct amount or nearest to it.

Miss Crandall's guess was 30,720.

It Is Easy to Lose An Unsightly Complexion

Have you ever exclaimed as you beheld your complexion in the mirror: "If I only could tear off this old skin!" And, do you know you can do that very thing? Not to actually remove the entire skin all of a sudden; that would be too heroic a method, and painful, too. The worn-out cuticle comes off in such tiny particles, and so gradually, it doesn't hurt a bit. Little by little the beautiful complexion underneath comes forth. No matter how muddy, rough, blotchy or freckled your complexion, you can surely discard it by this simple process. Just get an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at your druggist's, apply nightly like cold cream, washing it off mornings. The result will be truly marvelous.

TAFTVILLE

One of the prettiest autumn weddings took place at Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock, Monday morning, when Miss Elizabeth Dailey became the bride of Alfred Morin of Easthampton, Mass. Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor, celebrated the nuptial high mass and also performed the ceremony. As the bridal party entered the church, Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Professor Dugas. Previous to the ceremony Miss Dailey, who is a member of the Sodality of the Children of Mary, was escorted from the high altar to the Blessed Virgin's altar by Miss Nora Murphy and Miss Catherine Hasler. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Anne Dailey, as maid of honor and Edward Morin, brother of the gromo, acted as best man.

The bride was handsomely gowned in Spanish lace over white canton crepe, her veil being caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was a rope of pearls, the gift of the groom. Her maid was becomingly gowned in peach colored canton crepe with silver trimmings with hat to match and carried Ophelia roses. Her gift from the bride was a beautiful cameo ring. The gift to the groom was cuff links and a K of C. charm and to the best man a K. of C. ring.

Receiving with the bride and groom were Mr. and Mrs. James Dailey and Mr. and Mrs. Abel Morin. Mrs. Dailey wore black satin with jet trimmings and Mrs. Morin wore black Spanish lace over canton crepe.

An elaborate breakfast was served on the lawn. The tables were artistically decorated with cut flowers. Covers were laid for 150. Fenton's orchestra from Springfield, Mass., furnished music for the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Morin left by auto for an extended trip to Washington, D. C., and Annapolis, Md., and other southern cities. After November 1 they will reside at 110 Mount Pleasant avenue.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Abel Morin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Trudeau and family, all of Easthampton, Mass.; Mr. J. J. # 35,000 MEN IN OKLAHOMA VOLUNTEER SERVICE IN THE NATIONAL GUARD

For Duty During the Legislative Crisis—Adjutant General Markham Has Issued an Order Forbidding Convening of House in Special Session Today—Governor Walton Has Requested President Coolidge and Attorney General Daugherty to Use Their Good Offices to Prevent House Members Meeting in Federal Buildings.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 25.—(By the A. P.)—Thirty five thousand men in the state have volunteered for service in the Oklahoma National Guard during the legislative crisis, Governor J. C. Walton announced here tonight.

The executive made it plain, however, that he anticipated no necessity for calling the volunteers to duty.

Another unit of guardsmen will be brought to Oklahoma City early tomorrow to aid troops already stationed here in blocking the called session of the legislature at noon, the governor added. Because of the military censorship over troop movements, Governor Walton declined to say what battery had been called.

The executive made light of reports that there would be bloodshed and violence when the legislators attempt to meet tomorrow.

"Why I could take a cap-pistol and drive all of those fellows into the Red river," the governor said jocularly. "I don't think there will be the least bit of violence."

GOVERNOR WALTON APPEALS TO PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Oklahoma City, Sept 25.—(By the A. P.)—President Coolidge and Attorney General Daugherty were appealed to tonight by Governor J. C. Walton, to use their good offices to prevent members of the lower house of the Oklahoma legislature, from convening in any federal building in the state.

In a telegram sent the president and the attorney general, Governor Walton said that the afternoon newspapers stated that permission to use the federal court room for the proposed assembly had been granted by Federal District Judge John H. Cotteral.

Newspapermen called to the executive's attention the fact that Judge Cotteral had denied the statement attributed to him in a local newspaper that he saw no reason why the legislators could not assemble in the United States district courtroom.

"Well such a plan has been rumored at any rate," Walton replied.

"If the legislators meet on federal property then the governments has the baby on its hands to raise," the governor said.

"Commentionable mutilations have been inflicted upon numerous citizens of this state, and scores of others have been taken from their homes at night and beaten and flogged in a most unmerciful way. This state is now under martial law by proclamation issued by me and military courts are now sitting in Tulsa and Oklahoma City investigating these barbarous acts.

"These courts have taken testimony, much of it coming from the lips of klansmen themselves, showing that each and all of these atrocities have been committed by members of the so-called Knights of the Ku Klux Klan or the invisible government or the invisible empire. I have authentic information showing that a great majority of the members of the house of representatives of the Oklahoma legislature are members of the so-called invisible government. These klan members of the house constituting a majority of its membership in collusion with high klan officials are attempting to hold a session in Oklahoma City with the avowed determination of impeaching me and thereby halting my investigation and prevent subsequent exposures which will show the inner workings of this un-American mob organization.

"I will not permit this assemblage in the capital and the afternoon newspapers state that permission to use the federal courtroom here for the meeting has been granted by Judge John N. Cotteral, judge of the western district of Oklahoma.

"In view of the conditions existing in this state at this time and in the light of exposures already made and given to the American public, I appeal to you in the name of the people of Oklahoma and true Americanism to use your good offices to prevent this unlawful assemblage in any federal building in this state."

SESSION FORBIDDEN BY THE ADJUTANT GENERAL

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 25.—(By the A. P.)—A general order issued by Adjutant B. H. Markham, forbidding the convening tomorrow of a special session of the state house of representatives, was served late today on house members gathering here for the session.

As the order was served, each member asked if he was being served as an individual or as a legislator. Upon being told the service was in their capacity as legislators, each asked the name of Major J. J. McCartney, in charge of the service detail, and then took the names of witnesses to the service. This was regarded as indicating that the way was being paved for court action to test the Adjutant General's authority.

Despite its issuance, the opinion gained strength tonight that the stage had been set for the attempt tomorrow to convene the extraordinary session, at which opponents of Governor J. C. Walton have promised to seek his impeachment.

Authoritative sources could not be revealed expressed the belief that a "gentlemen's agreement" would prevent any danger of bloodshed.

It was indicated that the refusal of the military to give the legislators access to the chamber would involve nothing more than the formality of a guard officer informing the House members that they were not permitted to enter the doors.

Then, it is believed the representatives will leave the capitol, later assembling at some unannounced location where they will convene and where some of their number probably will be arrested.

Reports that he had stated that he knew of no reason why the legislature should not meet in the United States district court room of the federal building were denied tonight by Federal Judge John H. Cotteral.

"We stand where we have always stood; we will meet pursuant to our signed call," representative W. D. McBee, of Stephens county, in charge of the session, plans, said tonight. "Wednesday noon will find us at the capitol unarmed and unguarded."

Plans for holding a caucus tonight to organize the House were cancelled, the legislators deciding to wait until the body is regularly convened before electing officers.

Charles S. Brice, of McAlester, speaker pro-tempore, will call the session to order, it is understood. Election of a regular speaker and adoption of a resolution vacating the organization elected during the last regular session will follow, it is expected.

LEGISLATORS BARRED FROM FEDERAL BUILDINGS

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 25 (By the A. P.)—Federal buildings in Oklahoma will be barred to members of the state legislature for their proposed special session, Governor J. C. Walton was advised tonight in a telegram from Bascom C. Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge.

Use of federal buildings for purposes other than business of the United States government is contrary to regulations, Secretary Slemp telegraphed Governor Walton. The telegram added that the custodian of the Oklahoma City federal building had been instructed not to permit the building to be used for any unauthorized purpose.

Administration officials late tonight decided to prevent members of the Oklahoma state legislature from meeting tomorrow in the federal building in Oklahoma City.

FIERY CROSS BLAZING OVER MUSKEGEE KLAVERN

Muskogee, Okla., Sept. 25.—The fiery cross of the Ku Klux Klan is blazing tonight over the local klavern where a meeting is said to be in progress. High klan officials from Atlanta are reported in the city. The klan was recently barred in Oklahoma by Governor J. C. Walton under a martial law decree.

NEW TEST IN NEW YORK OF 18TH AMENDMENT.

New York, Sept. 25.—Emlen Hare Miller, a lawyer of this city, announced tonight he had filed a petition with Attorney General Sherman alleging that New York state's ratification of the eighteenth amendment was in violation of the state constitution, and asking for a public hearing of his charge with view to a test of the validity of the legislature's action.

The application was made, he said, at the suggestion of Governor Smith with whom he has been in correspondence in the matter.

Mr. Miller said he had called the governor's attention to the fact that a number of years prior to the ratification of the eighteenth amendment by the legislature the state court of appeals decided, in the celebrated opinion of Wynehamer vs. People that the legislation was forbidden by the state constitution from passing any act which confiscated progerty in alcoholic liquors heretofore owned by citizens of the state and legally acquired. This determination, standing unmodified, amounted to a prohibition of the action taken by the legislature, upon the eighteenth amendment, according to Mr. Miller.

Mr. Miller in one of his letters to Governor Smith, declared, in part that the proposed test "would be of direct interest to all the states since the private property guarantee contained in the New York constitution is, in effect, duplicated in every other."

Overcoming Strike Of N. Y. Pressmen

One Afternoon Paper Has Been Provided With a Full Complement of Men.

New York, Sept. 25.—Additional crews of pressmen were distributed today among the newspapers affected by the strike of members of the local Pressmen's Union who left their posts a week ago last night, it was announced by officials of the International Union who have invited out-of-town members of their organization to fill the places of members of the outlawed local. They said others were arriving from widely separated sections of the country in response to a call of their president, George L. Berry. One afternoon paper was furnished its full complement of men, it was stated.

Spokesmen for the Publishers' Association, which signed an agreement under which the International was to man the presses left idle more than a week by the outlawed local union, announced that enough men had arrived, or were en route, to end the strike as far as the employers were concerned. They said it had not been determined, however, when the combined morning and afternoon editions would resume their individual make-ups.

International Union officials told of a steady stream of telegrams from other cities announcing departure of more pressmen to fill the vacancies, and dissipating fears that the additional men requested would refuse to come to New York.

Representatives of the local union, which was declared dissolved after the International's directors had held the walkout illegal, denied that any substantial number of competent pressmen was arriving asserting they had telegraphic assurances from 22 of the 32 locals in other cities that their members would remain away from the Metropolis."

Guards at the door of the newly established offices of the International stated that a number of strikers had applied for reinstatement. Officials said they were too busy to see newspapermen, but the guards asserted the applications were given cards in the International and their union standing restored.

District Attorney Banton today ordered a thorough investigation into the death of George Davis, mailing room employe of an afternoon paper who was killed at work by a blow from a blackjack or hammer Saturday.

A closed meeting of about fifty foremen of Local No. 25 was held late this afternoon, after which it was said by one of those present that the pressmen were willing to sign the contract made between the International and the publishers, under two conditions:

That President Berry of the International step aside, and that Local No. 25 be recognized.

District Attorney Banton announced that he had received from the Western Union a copy of the alleged forged telegram sent out over the name of "Berry" to local pressmen's unions all over the country. It read:

Mr. Banton said the Western Union company had offered him every assistance in running down the supposed forger. He will not announced what action he will take until he has studied all the evidence in the case.

Mr. Berry, in a statement issued tonight, declared that arbitration was the one and only means for the sane adjustment of differences between employers and employes after conciliation had failed.

The strike leaders disregarded the principle of arbitration, he declared, and attempted by force to compel the acceptance of theories and policies which, if made operative would be followed by censorship and stifling of the principle of a free press.

"Force has never succeeded in permanently destroying fact," Mr. Berry said, "and fact cannot survive if conciliation and arbitration is denied. That every citizen, whether employer or employe, should seek in every industrial difficulty to prevent a knockout by either side is obviously an obligation that cannot be escaped, and for the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America we hold that when conciliation fails the one and only human instrumentality yet conceived for the sane adjustment of differences should be applied. That is arbitration.

"The international union seeks to confiscate no man's property. A lock out or a strike precipitated in face of conciliation or arbitration is nothing more or less than confiscation. A strike has never been won in America against newspapers when such strikes have been inaugurated in violation of contracts or in face of a tender of conciliation by publishers.

"Their (the local's) persistence in a policy of continuing every embarrassments to a great industry which is vital to the interests of the workers as well as to the publishers and, moreover, essential to the well being of the citizenship of our country and, to some extent, of the world, makes it impossible for the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union to hesitate in its position.

"It must and does uncompromisingly declare that ignoring the maudlin sentiment and bogus trades union ethics now being urged by those engaged in this illegal strike, it is meeting and will squarely meet every responsibility and do everything necessary to defeat and eliminate from the international union the policies that have obsessed the former local union and that were responsible for the most unfortunate situation."

NEW YORK LONGSHOREMEN TO VOTE ON WAGE SCALE

Will Have Difficulty In Restoring the Ruhr

Nationalists Liable to Endeavor to Separate Bavaria from the Reich.

Paris, Sept. 25.—(By the A. P.)—The political situation in Germany as the aftermath of the decision to abandon the passive resistance in the Ruhr is being watched by the French government with some anxiety in view of the possibilities of a nationalist movement, such as one tending to separae Bavaria from the Reich, the outbreak of mild bolshevism in Prussia, and fresh impetus to the separatist movement in the Rhineland. Should serious disturbances of any sort arise in the rest of Germany, it is thought they would most certainly have the results of increasing the number of Rhinelanders desiring to asure continuation of their tranquility by separation.

The allied troops, it is asserted in official circles, will not be allowed to take sides in any conflicts, as in the absence of other military forces responsibility rests upon them for the maintenance of order in the occupied territory. There is good reason for the conclusion that the French attribute little importance to the separatist movement thus far, but that they will not intervene to prevent the inhabitants from taking any action they see fit, so long as order is not disturbed.

In the event the cessation of passive resistance is not attended by violent outbreaks, the allies will, it is assumed here, be faced at once with the necessity of providing for a new regime of occupation.

Information gleaned from official circles here indicates there will be no stout objection to a change in the occupational regime, and that the French government is quite willing to rid it as far as possible of its disagreeable features, the return of the German functionaries, however, is a more serious matter, since most of them are Prussians and, it is feared by the allies, are likely to raise new forms of obstruction. Clemency toward those Germans imprisoned is regarded as certain to follow a show of good will on the part of the German government in execution of its obligations and a disposition on the part of the industrial leaders to cooperate with the allies.

The difficulties before the allies under a new regime in the Ruhr, which are being dwelt on here, are the necessity of keeping the district supplied with food and in finding markets for the exports. It is remarked in French circles, however, that the idea is not to take over the task of exploitation but on the contrary, since the passive resistance is ending, to leave it in the hands of the Germans.

Premier Poincare, it is understood, will also favor leaving it to the Germans to decide what reforms are required to put their finances in order and how to make ready to pay reparations, reserving it to the reparation commission to supervise the work of those reforms and report whether they are sufficient to accomplish the end in view.

Until the character of the German financial reforms is known, the French government will maintain an expectative attitude, reserving its appreciation of the events now passing in Germany until it appears clearly whether there is a real "change of heart" on the part of the Germans regarding the execution of their obligations. If such change has taken place, then it is thought here the other steps toward a reasonable settlement of the reparation question will be comparatively easy.

EXPERTS ARE TO REPORT ON LEAGUE COVENANT

Geneva, Sept. 25.—(By the A. P.)—That speed is the guiding principle in the League of Nations determination to have its covenant subject to jurisdicial interpretation was evidenced tonight by the fact that the special committe of legal experts had already framed its preliminary report. This examination was decided upon because of Italy's refusal to admit competency of the covenent with respect to her recent dispute with Greece.

The League Council met tonight and received the report of the experts, who were appointed to frame suitable questions on which the covenant could be judged, the idea being to submit them to the permanent court of international justice for an advisory opinion and to secure illuminating rulings which will serve as a basis for the future. Just what does the covenant mean is the general end which the League seeks to attain.

There will be no abandonment of the question apparently, because the council plans to make a full report to the assembly before that body adjourns next Saturday, and allow no suspicion to linger in the mind of any delegate that the grave issue of the covenant interpretation has been thrown aside.

INTERNATIONAL BALLOON RACE WON BY BELGIUM

Brussels, Sept. 25 (By the A. P.)—Belgium appears to have won the international balloon race for the Gordon Bennet cup again this year, either with DeMuyter or the landing of whose balloon Belgica, at 1 o'clock Mondy about the centre of Sweden, gives him a distance of about 600 miles, or with Veenstra, piloting the Prince Leopold, whose fate at the moment is still unknown.

DeMuyter's distance last year, when he won the trophy, was 875 miles, and his time then was 25 hours, as compared with 21 hours this year.

The tragic race which started Sunday from the broad plain of Solbosch, outside of Brussels, caused the death of five pilots or aides, the grave injury of one and less serious injuries to four others, the destruction of several of the balloons and the fall of of two of them into the sea—all of which may lead to the race rules being changed for future contests.

BUCKLAND IN DEFENSE OF THE N. Y. N. H. & H. RAILROAD

Tells of $30,000,000 Deficit Due to Partial Federal Control During the War—Quotes Reduction of $18,000,000 in Deficit in Refuting Charge of Inefficient Management—President Willard of the B. & O. Advocated Consolidation of All New England Railroads Into a Single System—Shoe Producers Complain of Poor Service.

Boston, Sept. 25.—Endorsement of proposed consolidation of New England's railroads into a single system by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and by representatives of three Massachusetts Chambers of Commerce and two business exchanges, and a defense of the New York and Hartford railroad, whose operation had been criticised by one of the officials, were features in the Interstate Commerce Commission's hearing here today, on railroad consolidation.

Mr. Willard went one step beyond the joint New England Railroad Committee in declaring that a consolidation to include the Boston and Albany as well as the Central Vermont and other Canadia lines in New England was the only way to insure economic operation and efficient management and service. The committee would leave these roads under their ownership.

Approval of the committee's plan as against mergers with "foreign" trunk lines was reported from the Massachusetts Chamber of Commerce, the Chambers of Commerce of Haverhill and Newburyport, the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange and the New England Shoe and Leather Exchange.

Every shoe producing concern in New England is spending thousands of dollars yearly for express service, Charles H. Jones, first vice-president of the last named body and himself the director of large factories at Whitman, Mass., and Gardiner, Maine, told the commissioners. He said he regularly sent shoes by motor truck twenty miles from Whitman to Boston for shipment west over the Boston and Albany, although Whitman is on the New Haven. This he did, he said, because of the poor service on the New Haven as well as on the Boston and Maine from Boston, west.

"We are losing customers in the middle west all the time," he continued, "for they are beginning to buy from Chicago, Milwaukee and other centers that may be near them, because they cannot be sure that our shoes will get to them in time. Our only alternative is express which always means a dead loss. That is a tremendous handicap to the business."

The situation of the New England roads was far from hopeless Mr. Jones asserted, for there was far more freight in their territory than they could handle, and the question was primarily one of management which on both the New Haven and the Boston and Maine was inefficient."

Defense of the New Haven was then begun by Edward G. Buckland, vice-president and general counsel of that road who asked Mr. Jones whether he realized that the road's ills were due to its partial federal control during the war, and its return to its present managers by the government with a $30,000,000 deficet.

"If that had happened to your plant," Mr. Buckland went on, "and if you reduced that deficit to $18,000,000 in the second year in the face of the shopmen's strike and the coal strike, would you think that that should be attributed to inefficent management?"

Mr. Jones asserted on behalf of the membership of the Shoe and Leather Exchange, which he said included every shoe manufacturer and dealer in New England, that state control and state trusteeship, as suggested by the joint New England committee in its report, was the only solution of the situation, made serious he said, by the weak condition of the two major New England systems.

The New Hampshire section of the joint committee, which has filed a dissenting opinon n the report, recommending consolidation with outside trunk-lines, entered the controversy with sharp questioning of Mr. Jones. Clarence E. Carr, one of the five New Hampshire committeemen.

"Do you expect that that consolidation within New England of its weak roads is gong to result in the formation of a strong one?" Mr Carr inqured.

"Not until they are rehabilitated," Mr Jones replied.

The hearings will be continued tomorrow.

BODY OF EMMA DICKSON IS TO BE EXHUMED

Millville, N. J., Sept. 25.—Announcement that the body of Emma Dickson, 15 year old high school girl, found slain near her home in Brickaboro last week, would be exhumed for examination tonight or tomorrow and that an important clue suggested by the girl's father, would produce an arrest tomorrow were today's developments in the case.

The clue which county detectives declare would lead to the arrest was developed from the information of Thomas Dickson, the girl's father, that Emma had for some time tried to shield someone. "Find out who is the person Emma was shielding and you will find the guilty person," he is declared to have said.

A young Philadelphian, scion of a wealthy family, County Detective Frank Lore declared tonight, would probably be arrested within the next 24 hours as the alleged slayer of Emma Dickson, 15 year old high school girl, of Bricksboro, whose body was found in a clump of weeds near Port Elizabeth, N. J., last Saturday.

After three days constant study and investigation the county detective and members of the Millville police force, who have been working with him, declared this climax to South Jersey's mystery was but a matter of hours.

The suspect, the officers assert, had been friendly with the young girl for some time. They believe she expected him to marry her. The afternoon of the day she met her death, Miss Dickson was seen driving with this man.

SIX AMENDMENTS APPROVED TO FEDERAL RESERVE ACT

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 25.—Six amendments to the Federal Reserve Act "to prevent the deterioration of the entire Federal Reserve Board" were urged today in a report approved by the executive council on recommendation of the economic policy commission of the American Bankers Association.

3. Provision that members of the board, at expiration of their terms, may be reappointed by the president without senatorial confirmation.

4. Provision that members of the board shall designate the governors and vice governors, instead of having the president of the United States charged with the duty.

5. Amendment to the Federal Reserve Act to make the governor of the Federal Reserve Board the chairman of the board, the under secretary of the treasury an exoffecio member instead of the secretary of the treasury.

6. Amendment to the Federal Reserve Act providing that the major functions of the comptroller of currency shall be transferred to the Federal Reserve Board, with a view to bringing about a simplification and uniform system of examinations and rulings.

NO EXCITEMENT AMONG POPULATION OF THE RUHR

Duesseldorf, Sept. 25.—(By the A. P.)—The decision of the Berlin government to cease passive resistance in the Ruhr and the Rhineland thus far has not produced a single ripple of disturbance among the population of the Ruhr.

As to whether the lack of visible excitement was due to stupefaction caused by the abruptness of the Berlin government's decision, or whether the population generally fully realized that passive resistance already had petered out on its own accord, opinion of the leading Germans today was divided. Some of today's newspapers declared that the government's decision was the only thing to be done, and that it was really "the natural course of events."

Other newspapers satisfy the pride of their readers by saying that while Chancellor Stresemann and his cabinet apparently decided to give up passive resistance, there really were mental reservations and a successful resumption of the economic activities in the Ruhr depended on how France decided to treat the population.

Besides the usual songs, musical hits were rendered by a special sextette comprising Charlie Pomeroy, Patsy Carey, Charlie Alpaugh, Tim Weatherhead, Gus Greene and Harry W. Standish with George W. Hickey as leader.

The meeting was then turned over to John F. Ahern, who introduced the speaker, Stanley Dodge, son of Professor Dick Dodge. Mr. Dodge gave a most interesting discourse on the conditions in the west as he saw them while engaged in farm management survey for the U. S. Department of Agriculture the past summer. He said the farmers on the so-called Missouri slope country, west of the Missouri river, are never sure of their crops, rain occurring at intervals of months, in violent squalls and crops being destroyed by hail storms and grasshoppers. The remoteness of the market is another handicap to the farmer must dispose of his crop for what he can get

In referring to the election of Magnus Johnson to the United States senate, Mr. Dodge attributed this to the fact that the condition as he described them have caused economic instability which in turn has given way to political instability.

JEWETT CITY

Stanley Sekula, 24 Ashland street, and Stanley Koriot, 10 Hill street, 9 and 10 years old respectively, stole fifteen dollars and packages of chewing gum from Casper's store, corner of Ashland street and Burleson Lane Monday night at half past twelve. On Tuesday morning Supt. F. H. P. Clement of Riverside grammar school, was told by the boys that there was some money hidden near a tree and they asked permission to get it. He investigated the matter and sent for Officer Henry Viegard. The latter questioned the boys, took them to the tree, found the money and returned it to the owner. Mr. Clement also learned that Stanley Koriot and Bosera Taper, of North Main street had mutilated a headstone in the Baptist cemetery by painting it with red paint. The stone marks the grave of George Bliven. The oil has sunk into the grain of the stone, and cannot be removed with turpentine, now that the paint is dry. John Eichelberg used everything that will remove paint, Tuesday, but made no impression at all. Deputy Sheriff John Dolan visited the cemetery with Supt. Clement and notified the Dean family of Plainfield. Mrs. George Dean came to Jewett City Tuesday afternoon and put the matter into the hands of Sheriff Dolan.

Next Sunday morning at one minute past midnight, all regulations in Jewett City relative to daylight saving time, will become inoperative and eastern standard time will be the only time. Sunday morning the Boston boat train will arrive at 6.12 instead of 5.12. Several important services to be held in the churches of the borough next Sunday, notably the Rally day at the Baptist church, will be on standard time. Some have been of the opinion that the change did not take place until Monday morning. Such, however, is not the case.

Deputy Sheriff Dolan has received complaints from residents near the Aspinook woods at the borough line in Tadpole, of the insulting and annoying actions and language of men who frequent these woods. They have been remonstrated with, but to no avail. Monday night a man attempted to enter a chicken yard in that vicinity, and the owner sent the dog out to protect his property. The dog bit the man in the leg. Deputy Dolan states that on account of these numerous complaints he shall make it his business to clean out those woods.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Motorcycle fans hereabouts are interested in the fact that William Harley and William Davidson, both of Milwaukee and manufacturers of the Harley-Davidson machines are numbered among those who recently have met with disaster on Dark Lantern hill, about four miles east of Danielson, while en route from Danielson, where they visited their representative, Frank A. Moore, to Providence, a destination that would have ended a trip of more than 7,000 miles.

A slippery highway, together with the fact that they were unfamiliar with the route and were not informed about the steep hill figured in bringing about the accident, as did the leaving of some boulders on the highway by some person, whose machine evidently had been stuck, the stones having been used to block the wheels.

When Messrs Harley and Davidson applied the brakes on their motorcycle sidecar outfit, the machine skidded because of the wet highway surface and the front wheel struck one of the boulders left in the road by some lazy and careless motorists and turned over, throwing them out. They were treated at the office of Dr. F. P. Tedd here and then proceeded to Providence, where Mr. Davidson, who had a severe injury to a bone near his knee, was admitted to a hospital for further treatment. Mr. Harley had cuts on the head.

During the trip that ended so abruptly the injured men had traveled from their home in Milwaukee into the eastern states and had toured New England, calling upon their dealers. Danielson was the last stop, and after the run of 25 miles to Providence they were to have left their machine and returned to Milwaukee by train.

What likely is the last carnival of the year in Danielson has been drawing a large attendance the past two nights to the Franklin street grounds, near the Franklin street crossing. The Frank J. Murphy shows are the attraction, the same that exhibited here last spring, also a year ago. This carnival is under the auspices of the Minnetexit Hook and Ladder company of the fire department. The Murphy shows are again living up to their reputation of allowing no objectionable features on the grounds and of making their carnival a success without appeal to anything that is gross or sordid. The attractions are all interesting and have furnished much amusement for the throngs attending.

PUTNAM

One more man—S. L. Cardinal, of Willimantic—joined other violators of the liquor law in Brooklyn jail Tuesday, after appearing before Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin in the superior court here and pleading nolo contendere to a charge of selling intoxicants illegally. The standardized penalty of $100 and 15 days in jail was imposed upon him by the court, as on all other first offenders. Attorney Howard C. Bradford, from the office of State Attorney Charles E. Searls, appeared for the state in the absence of Mr. Searls, who is ill. Mr. Cardinal was represented by his nephew, Attorney Harry S. Gaucher of Willimantic.

Attorney Bradford in addressing the court said that the case was much the same as others that had been taken up in the superior court for this county during the past week, as to liquor law violations, and that the attorney for the state believed it should be disposed of in the same manner as those that had preceded it. Attorney Gaucher in brief remarks to the court said that Mr. Cardinal had been an offender only in a small way and had never before appeared in court, and that he was agreeable to the recommendation made by the attorney for the state.

It was established Tuesday that still other bench warrants have been issued from the office of the state attorney and more offenders are to be brought into court Friday morning of this week.

The criminal court has not been adjourned this fall, as has been the custom in the past, but recesses from time to time, as was done after Tuesday's proceedings, in order that criminal business may be taken up almost any day. This rule will be followed, it is understood, right through the fall and early winter period and up to the opening of the January term, a fact that will leave no leeway for apprehended violators of the liquor laws from deferring their cases for any considerable period.

Business assigned for the civil term during the present week has been so disarranged by the illness and absence of attorneys engaged with other cases that adjournment of the court was taken Tuesday, until Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Clerks in Putnam's stores were delighted Tuesday morning when it was announced that at a meeting of merchants arranged by the chamber of commerce it was voted 19 to 11 to allow a half-holiday on Thursdays throughout the year, excepting during the month of December. This is a concession for which the clerks have been contending for several years and they were enthusiastic on Tuesday at final realization of their desire.

Ordinarily, this week Thursday would have marked the end of the weekly half-holidays for the year, it being the last week in September. Now, however, the arrangement will continue and the clerks, as well as the proprietors, will have their Thursday afternoons off through the fall, winter and spring, as well as in the summer, with the exception of December and with the additional exception of weeks in which there are generally observed holidays.

Indications Tuesday were that there would be a general adherence to the plan approved at the meeting of the merchants. Drug stores will not close, nor will some of the chain stores of the city, the latter being unable to obtain the approval of their managements, but it is probable that approximately the same list of stores as have closed Thursday afternoons during the summer will abide by the new arrangement.

At the opening of the fall school term, the trade school enrollment is considerably increased. The work done by the trade school as a means of instruction in the various trades is in demand and all the departments are finding the very best types of jobs for training the students.

The electrical department has completed installation of wiring for light and power in the pumping station located on Woodstock avenue. This proved valuable experience for the boys and the general opinion among electrical men is that they performed a creditable job. An important feature in work of this kind is the responsibility involved which develops a dependability of character in the boy, bringing to his mind the necessity for neatness and accuracy. This can be used in an ethical manner as a comparison of the necessity for truthfulness and accuracy in all things. Motor re-winding is a feature of the work done in this department and is a development of considerable educational value to young men entering the electrical field.

During the last year the school has constantly received inquiries for graduates from the various courses. With the present scarcity of skilled labor of all kinds this condition will probably be more pronounced in the future. There is little question that the agencies engaged in the training of artisans is inadequate to meet the demand considering the amount of work to be done in our country.

The carpentry department boys are engaged in the building of cabinets, bookcases and are finishing up several outside jobs.

The machine shop boys have more demand for their product than they can supply. Two of the more important items going through the shop are special tools for the S. C. S. Box Co., Willimantic, and machine tool equipment for Crompton & Knowles, Worcester. They are also building two large arbor presses for their own use.

The textile department is working on several orders for cotton cloth in a variety of designs and the making of warp yarn. With the splendid equipment in this department and the quality of instruction, variety of experience afforded the students, this department should be of inestimable value to the community.

Involved in all these items of trade experience is a large quantity of academic knowledge such as mathematics, drawing, blue print reading and science. These related subjects are as closely correlated to the actual job as possible, and are carried on in the drafting department.

In addition to the regular and cooperative students' work the school is giving pre-vocational work to approximately 100 students from the seventh and eighth grades for two hours each week. This has no specific value as definite occupational training but is intended to assist the boy in deciding what line of endeavor he wishes to follow after finishing his common school education.

Considerable repairs are being made on the heating equipment in anticipation of cold weather. The trade school heating plant supplies heat for the high school building.

In addition to the required work in cooking and sewing, as taken by the freshman girls, a large class of advance girls have elected these subjects this year.

Evening classes at the school open Oct. 1st and the trade school office will be open on Sept. 28th from 7.30 to 9.30 and those desirous of enrolling in evening classes may report and register.

Even in the nethermost precincts of Woodstock the newly established rule that violators of the liquor law, even in the cases of first offenders, shall pay a substantial fine and go to jail, is being observed, as illustrated in the case of Stanley Smith, who appeared before Justice Charles M. Perrin at North Woodstock and after being found guilty was fined $100 and ordered to jail for 15 days. Attorney C. L. Torrey of this city, representing Smith, a foreigner, appealed and his client was released under bonds of $1,000 furnished by George Howard of Southbridge for appearance in the superior court at a later date. Attorney H. C. Bradford of this city prosecuted for the state.

Announcement has been made that the case of the State vs. C. F. Colcord, of Woodstock, has been settled out of court, Mr. Colcord paying $105.37. He was charged with violating a cattle law of the state, it being specifically charged that a cow he disposed of proved to be a reactor, although it was held by the defence that Mr. Colcord was not aware of the animal's condition. Mr. Colcord pleaded not guilty when the charge was preferred against him in a justice's court in Woodstock, but he was found guilty and appealed. The settlement, now completed, takes the case out of court finally.

Constable Neri Coderre, of North Grosvenordale, has made such a considerable physical comeback from injuries received when knocked down and seriously injured by a speeding automobile that he tried to halt while he was on duty at North Grosvenordale, a few weeks ago, that he was going out for an effort to break his own record as champion hog killer of eastern Connecticut. Mr Coderre said while in Putnam Tuesday that he has killed as many as 104 big hogs during a season extending from November to February, but he hopes to top that in the season he will inaugurate with the coming of next week.

"JUST a word to every motor truck driver who reads this paper. I've wanted to say something especially to you for a long time, but have kept putting it off. I was afraid you fellows might think I'm one of those high-brows trying to preach a sermon on something I know nothing about.

"Far from it! I've driven a truck a good many times, and I know what it is. It's a man's job. And what I want to say is simply this: because the average truck is so much bigger than the average car, why not give the car driver just a shade better than an even chance to pass you, without having to slide off the macadam or asphalt in doing it?

"I don't believe that a single truck driver ever really means to hog the road. But a good many times he forgets. All he's got to do is to stick to his half of the road, and he's 'done his duty'. And it's better for everyone concerned. Incidentally, I understand that every driver in the big, attractive Socony fleet of trucks has special instructions to keep his machine well over to the right—never to hog the road."

COLUMBIA

When the state highway department completed building the roads at the Center, about two years ago, the land on the front and side of Clinton Lewis' store on the northwestern corner of the intersection of the roads on the Green, was left in a very careless and unsafe condition. There was no way to approach his store on the Pine street side, as a high and unsightly terrace had been cut there, with a deep ditch at the bottom to provide for drainage from the Green. Later drain pipes were laid in the ditch for a few feet and were covered with dirt, enabling vehicles to approach the store on the Pine street side and leave by the road on the Green. The corner was left in such a rough and ungraded condition that it has put Mr Lewis to considerable expense to put it in a safe and passable condition for pedestrians and vehicles. He has already had 50 loads of gravel placed there, but the condition of the grade is such that rains wash it away. He expects to have some top soil brought there and sodded.

Mr. Lewis planted beds of flowers on the Green near the store and at his own expense planted beds of decorative plants around the monument erected on the Green in honor of the men from Columbia who went to the World war.

"I'm Greatest Living Pianist"

COPYRIGHT UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

Valdimir de Pachmann, the Russian pianist, who recently arrived in the United States. When asked by those who greeted him to these shores, who was the greatest living pianist in the world, the maestro modestly replied, "I am the great player.....the grandest player." He considers Brahms one of the greatest composers, and said that Godowsky is his only living equal. He will tour the country, as he said he liked Americans because they liked him. De Pachmann carried an old Russian passport issued thirty years ago under the regime of the Romanoffs and would use no other, so the various countries have kindly humored the aged musician in his whim.

FINE TOWN GOVERNMENT,

Good management, whether it is of a business or a municipality, never fails to awaken appreciation, but it is particularly pleasing when it features town government.

For the past eight years Norwich town government has been under the guidance of Casper K. Bailey as first selectman and associated with him on that board has been Charles P. Bushnell and Norwich has had good reason to be well satisfied with the administration of affairs.

The report of the town for the past year is a glowing valedictory for Mr. Bailey. According to the board's report, made public today, town affairs have been efficiently handled as can readily be appreciated when it is observed that in addition to the reduction of the town's indebtedness by about $28,000 there remains a balance on hand at the end of the year amounting to over $24,500 and it is the recommendation of the board that the tax for the ensuing year for actual running of the town be 7 3-4 mills, a half mill less than the recommendation of a year ago.

Further ground for elation exists in the fact that this reduction is made possible in spite of the fact that a county tax must be raised during the coming year, involving nearly $14,000. Good management of town affairs makes possible the meeting of that additional burden over which the town has no control and still cut the tax rate.

While Norwich deeply regrets that Selectman Bailey's services are soon to end in this field where he has been so successful, there is satisfaction nevertheless in knowing that the republican party which picked Mr. Bailey has had the continuance of the same good government in mind in the nomination of William S. Murray and Charles P. Bushnell as selectmen for the coming two years. Their aim will be the same high grade of town government that has been experienced and the citizens of Norwich are justified in relying upon such well known and substantial citizens for such service.

They head a ticket that has been selected with good government as the object, wherein ability and experience are conspicuous and in which full confidence can be placed.

FIGHTING CHILD LABOR.

Movements for the reduction of child labor have been before the country for a long time. There has been a determined effort to put an end to the conditions surrounding such employment, prompted by the disclosures in those sections where child labor has been most flagrant.

Legislation for the betterment of conditions has been successful in many states. Public sentiment has responded to the demands and improvement has resulted. Because of the inability to get the needed remedial action in other states and to give the children the opportunities to which they are entitled federal legislation has been sought.

The sentiment of the country, as reflected in the congressional action, displays decided opposition to the toleration of child labor conditions that prevail in a number of states, but it appears that the federal constitution stands in the way of the action taken. As a constitution supporting people it doesn't call for the abandonment of the effort for the relief of children who are put into factories and mills at tender ages, but it does call for tackling the problem in another manner.

Because of the good results which have been obtained in other states there are those who favor intensive campaigns of education in those states where the conditions are worst, while there are those who believe that the handicaps of the federal constitution should be removed by so amending the Constitution that federal control of the situation can be obtained. The situation is one that ought to be properly dealt with by the respective states, and it is only where the states fail to live up to their responsibilities to their constituents that basis is furnished for federal action or constitutional amendment. States which are forcing action by the nation set bad examples not only in this direction but in others.

THE FINDING OF FACTS.

Formal notice is awaited of the outcome of the investigation of the assassination of members of the boundary commission for which Greece was held responsible. As the report of the members of the international mission that conducted the inquiry was forwarded to the council of ambassadors, it was claimed that the investigators had been convinced that the Greeks were innocent, but that they showed negligence in endeavoring to ascertain who were responsible for the murders.

Such a report, if it is true, will go far toward substantiating the position that was taken by Greece when the demands were made upon it by Italy, and it is significant that the report comes from all those representatives on the inquiry commission except those representing Italy.

It is of course from a disinterested, rather than an interested, standpoint that Greece was due to be judged. It was for that reason that it took exception to the Italian demands and sought adjustment at the hands of those who were not actually involved in the dispute. The report reveals the injustice that was done to Greece by the manner in which it was prejudged by Italy without getting at the facts or permitting others to do so. And it was on such unwarranted assumption that Italy took possession of the island of Corfu and with its warships deliberately caused the death of 16 innocent children. That act was in keeping with much European conduct in the past that has been responsible for needless friction and wars. A willingness on the part of Italy to accept a sensible adjustment of the matter, while insisting upon the punishment of those guilty, would have created a much more favorable impression than the action it took. Its action is rebuked by the international inquiry commission if the report of its finding is correct.

RECKLESS DRIVING.

For the past week the motor vehicles department reports a marked improvement in the general driving conditions on the highways of the state, and it is attributed to the effective use of the suspension power that has been exercised by the commissioner, in keeping with his announcement made earlier in the month to the effect that operators' licenses would be suspended on first convictions for reckless driving.

It was a case where reckless driving had continued to increase. Those indulging in it knew that if they were arrested and brought into court they could expect to get a fine and still go out and continue their dangerous driving. They had come to realize that the charge of reckless driving was nothing to fear. The many and increasing cases of it made it evident that conditions needed correcting and convinced the motor vehicle department that the policy of leniency was not appreciated and different steps must be taken

If the state police find a marked improvement in driving conditions because of the notice, the 35 suspensions of licenses the past week will furnish additional reason for decreasing the number of reckless drivers.

Maintaining safety on the highways and enforcing the rules of the road is a big responsibility. When, however, those who are a menace fail to profit by the opportunities given them to conform to requirements there's nothing else to do but apply a penalty that will mean something.

HUMILIATING BUT WISE.

When the German cabinet declares for unconditional surrender in the Ruhr and the termination of the passive resistance it acknowledges the glaring failure of that policy and faces the problem of retreating from a bad mess. After having encouraged just what has been done, after having brought about heavy losses in life and property, the German government now faces the necessity of getting back where it was before it instituted such a policy and also take care of the increased burden.

In coming to this decision the cabinet has obtained no promises from the French. It knows full well why France occupied the Ruhr, it knows also what the French conduct would have been had the occupying forces not experienced the passive resistance. It is not too much to expect that it can now bank upon such statements as have been made by France based upon non-interference with the collection of the revenue for which the invasion was made.

With the cabinet ordering all activities resumed in the Ruhr, it is of course a humiliating admission of failure, but it is nevertheless the sensible course and the one that should have been followed from the outset. Let the sincerity of the German government be disclosed and the distrust of France removed and there will be no great delay in the ending of the Ruhr situation and the adjustment of the reparations question.

WHY DO THEY CRY?

"What's happened?" inquired the surprised brother when he came in unexpectedly and found his sister in tears. "Anything terrible?"

"N-n-o," his pretty sister said, applying her handkerchief daintily to her pink nose. "I had a letter—Lemont is going to be here tomorrow for three days! I was so happy that I just couldn't help crying!"

"Well I'll be dashed!" the surprised brother exploded, sitting down prepared to figure it out. "Crying because you are happy! And think of the presence of any mere man being enough to make a girl happy as all that! I suppose a girl considers it a sort of duty to be deliriously happy at the presence of the man she is engaged to!

"But what I can't understand is why you cry. Girls cry when they get stepped on and when they see a mouse and when the family dies and when they are hopping mad, and it seems to me that all that totals up a sufficient number of occasions and that they could skip just being joyous and happy. I should think they'd like a change and would enjoy chortling and clapping their hands and singing when affairs go to please instead of to annoy them!

"You can't convince me that crying isn't the pleasantest and most popular occupation a girl can have—at any rate it is the most overworked one. Most anywhere you look around you it is possible to see some beauteous creature dissolved in tears, snuffling her life away. And if you try the Samaritan act and pat her on the shoulder, murmuring in deep, rich tones, 'My child, tell me your troubles,' she will turn her tear-drenched eyes upon you and stammer that she's cr-cr-crying because she's so h-h-happy!

"All men ponder hours and hours on this phenomenon of which they cannot find the slightest key. There isn't any logic which explains it satisfactorily. After thinking hard on the subject for some time almost any man will kick the family cat and growl.

"It is a frightful mistake to annoy men after this fashion because men instinctively lean toward women who make them feel contented and wonderful and mighty, and a man is far from feeling mighty when he is up against a simple little problem which he cannot solve. He wants to be able to explain things offhand so that the girls will sigh and say he is simply wonderful the way he understands them!

"It is the greatest possible shock to a newly married man to have his little young wife cast herself upon his chest in a whirlwind of tears when he has just presented her with a diamond tiara or a costly car. Thinking to make her happy, he apparently has picked a lemon. When he aggrievedly remonstrates she stutters that the weeps are because she is so h-h-happy! His astonishment overcoming him, he probably swears, after which the war is on and all the divorce lawyers within gunshot begin to prick up their ears and get ready for business!

"The funny thing is that when a woman actually does have something to cry about nobody ever sees her. Her husband or father or brother is never there and so it does absolutely no good, besides making her eyes red. She choose her occasion so poorly!

"Another thing I feel it my duty to point out to you is that about one man only in several billion is worthy of being cried over. Most of them are just ordinary dubs and it is a great shock and surprise to their fiancees after they have married them and picked up a few hundred times the ties and shirts and socks and newspapers, cigar butts, pencils, clippings and such like with which every man strews his path.

"This one thing alone does more to yank a man off his pedestal in the eyes of the girl than anything else, I verily believe. The wife realizes that she has a whole lifetime of it before her and she never is the same again. She might be justified in crying over this, but she doesn't. She usually goes down town and charges something. And the one man worth crying over never does anything to make her cry, so I suppose when you come right down to it that is the reason she has to cry when he does something to make her happy.

"Only in that case every man engaged or married to a girl would be the one man in several billion and as he can't be it makes my figures all wrong—and figures never lie. Whatever it is I am trying to prove that I have accomplished my purpose and you should be a wiser girl from now on. I take it you consider Lemont worthy of your tears?"

"The very idea!" sniffed his sister drying her eyes indignantly. "If you were one-thousandth as wonderful and clever and considerate as Lemont you might be thankful. He is absolutely different from any other man I ever met——"

"Oh, go ahead and cry," said the interested brother, beginning to walk away. "In that case I wouldn't dream of interfering with your good time."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

John O. Walton, whose vigorous opposition to the Ku Klux and its ways has made him an outstanding figure in the day's news, is serving the first year of his fouryear term in the governorship of Oklahoma. Governor Walton is an Indianian by birth, and of Southern Quaker stock on his father's side. His boyhood was passed in Fort Smith, Ark., to which place he had removed with his parents at an early age. Equipped with a high school education he started on his career as a locomotive fireman, later becoming an engineer. With money saved from his earnings he took a course in engineering at a St. Louis school and then settled in Oklahoma City, where he attained marked success as head of an engineering and construction company. After a residence of only two years in his new home he was elected mayor of Oklahoma City. His success as a municipal executive led to his nomination and subsequent election to the governorship on a fusion ticket, supported by the farming and laboring elements.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Professor Fisher's Position.

Mr. Editor: You are apparently laboring under the impression that I had no right to publish my 1920 interview with Mr. Harding.

1—Let me call your attention to the fact that Walter Wellman, the publisher, regarded it as his duty, now that the president had died, to publish similar interviews and a personal letter written by the president shortly before he died—a duty to Mr. Harding as well as the public. The letter and interviews showed that Mr. Harding intended next year to call a world conference, aimed to secure amendments in the present league covenant, to fashion out of it the promised association of nations.

2—If that was Mr. Wellman's duty it was certainly my right to publish such material, nor was there anything in what Mr. Harding said to me which limited my freedom. If Mr. Wellman is right, Mr. Harding would now wish it to be done, under the circumstances.

3—The really important news was Mr Wellman's, namely that the president intended to take active steps next year toward his long promised association of nations. My interview only stated explicitly what Mr. Harding himself made public a few weeks later in the campaign, that any good remnants of the existing league should be used in building the association of nations. Moreover the manifesto of "the 31" said the same.

4—It was natural and proper that President Harding should take one step at a time and, in view of the real obstacle, namely the senate irreconcilables, try to get us into the court before reminding them forcibly of the platform promise for the association.

5—But the public seem to forget what is not constantly thrust before them and seem to have concluded that Mr. Harding had given up the greater project altogether. They have a right to know that Mr. Harding was in earnest and planned to make good on this if it cost him a second term.

Very truly yours,
IRVING FISHER.
New Haven, Sept. 24, 1923.

Stories That Recall Others

Peaches For Ears.

A small boy was taken into a room for the first time to see his baby brother. He carefully scrutinized the tot; and, with some surprise, inquired: "Daddy, did they put dried peaches on baby for ears?"

The same boy, at another time, after taking his bath, was told by his mother to dry himself carefully with the towel.

"Why, so, mother," said he, "Do you think I will rust?"

Of Course!

Sitting in the station the other day waiting for another train a passenger became interested in a bright little chap, who had arrived from another city and was waiting for relatives to take him to their home.

The passenger wishing to know the home city of the boy, asked, "My little man, where did you get on the train?"

SELECTMEN CLOSE YEAR WITH $24,600 BALANCE, RECOMMEND 7 3-4 MILL TAX

Three features that appear in the annual report of the selectmen, which has just been prepared by the board—Casper K. Bailey, Charles P. Bushnell and Erroll C. Lillibridge—give it such a distinction as has not been known in years in the conduct of the business of the town of Norwich.

As first selectman, Casper K. Bailey prepares to retire at the end of eight years in administering that office, he is able to report for the past year that the town debt has been reduced $28,000, there is a current balance on hand of $2,600 after all debts of the year have been paid, and the tax recommended is 7 3-4 mills, which is half a mill less than recommended last year.

Selectmen's Report.

Norwich, Conn., Sept. 25th, 1923.
To the Citizens of the Town of Norwich, Greeting:—

The following is a brief report of the more important affairs of the town for the year now closing, to which is appended an estimate of receipts and expenses for the coming year.

Owing to the general conditions of prosperity throughout the town during the past year, expenses in some cases have been somewhat less than estimated, while the receipts have been fully up to the expectations, and your board is therefore pleased to be able to report an unexpended balance on hand of about $24,600, this sum being equal to nearly 1 1-4 mills on our grand list. That this unexpended balance is not due to any neglect to meet any of the obligations of the town is shown by the fact that all bills are paid to date and that the indebtedness of the town has been reduced some $28,000 during the year.

As in the past it has been the endeavor of the board to keep expenses down to as low a figure as possible without permitting the interests of the town or any of its inhabitants to suffer thereby. The expense of the outside poor has been notably low during the past year but no deserving cases have been neglected while employment has been found for a number of those who otherwise would have been forced to become charges upon the town. A number of repairs have been necessary at the almshouse notably a new roof, and and the building is believed to be in excellent condition at present. During the year Mr. and Mrs. James B. Chapman, who have served so efficiently for a number of years past as superintendent and assistant at the almshouse, tendered their resignations, which were received by the board with regret, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Ellis were selected to fill the vacancies. In selecting Mr. and Mrs. Ellis we believe that we have chose npersons who will continue to maintain the high standard of service which was set by Mr. and Mrs. Chapman. The highways and bridges of the town have been kept in good repair throughout the year but no important new work has been done, with the exception of a gravel highway on a portion of the Scotland road. The greater part of the work done on the highways has been in the nature of surface repairs, which were especially necessary in the spring after the unusually severe and icy weather which prevailed during a considerable portion of the winter.

The issue of school bonds which was authorized by the town has been placed during the past year in the form of serial bonds bearing interest at the rate of 4 1-4 per cent. per annum. It is owing to the excellent credit of this town, and to the valuable assistance furnished us by our local banking institutions, notably the Norwich Savings society and the Uncas National bank, that despite this low rate of interest the town was able to sell these bonds at a slight premium which, however, was sufficient to more than pay all costs connected with their preparation and issue.

Through no fault of the town officials, or the special committee in charge thereof, there has been a considerable delay in the receipt of the memorial for those of our citizens who served in the late war, but this has now been received and erected and it is hoped that it will be dedicated at an early date.

Your board would recommend for the coming year a tax of 7 3-4 mills, one-half a mill less than the year just past. This is possible owing to the favorable conditions mentioned above and in spite of the fact that a county tax has been laid, of which the share of this town will be about $14,000. The above rate will be sufficient to provide for all the recommended expenditures of your board, but in addition to these you will be called upon to vote at the annual town meeting upon a number of requests for appropriations made by petitions emanating from various citizens, and much of these as may be approved by the town will of course necessitate an additional tax.

CASPER K. BAILEY,
CHARLES P. BUSHNELL,
ERROLL C. LILLIBRIDGE,
Selectmen of the Town of Norwich.

Town School Committee.

The town school committee requests that the town appropriate the sum of $242,557.99 for the support of the public schools during the coming year, this sum being equal to about 12 mills on the dollar. The report and recommendation of the committee will be presented for action at the annual town meeting.

In the expenses as estimated by the selectmen the amounts of the items are all the same as last year, except that there is $1,000 for the Taftville Fire Engine Co., $500 more for street lighting, $300 more for town clerk's office, and the county tax of $13,934.41 which was not called for last year.

The amount to be raised by tax for the schools is $242,557.99. This was $241,828.61 last year, but the rate of tax, 12 mills, is the same both years.

Extras.

Besides the expenditures recommended by the selectmen, there are petitions which will be voted upon at the annual town meeting. These ask for the following appropriations, which are included in the warning for the annual town meeting:

$5,000 for state aid highways.

For Otis library, no amount named.

$6,000 to continue preparing tax map.

FLYING SQUADRON HERE TO WATCH MOTOR DRIVERS

State Policeman M. R. Sterling who has been in charge of the state police barracks at Groton since it was opened has resigned, according to an announcement made Tuesday. Officer Sterling has been located in this vicinity for sometime past and for several years conducted the weekly examination for drivers' licenses in this city.

The flying suadron of the state police department consisting of ten members in charge of Officer Walter A. Lynehan is covering Norwich and vicinity on the watch for violators of the motor vehicle laws. Their visit here is part of a campaign which has been conducted in other parts of the state having for its object the cleaning up of drivers who violate the laws.

Norwich Town residents are hoping that the officers will give special attention to that section, especially around the green where they say the drivers continually drive to the left of the silent policeman and make the turn in front of the church a danger point.

YANKS WIN TOSS AND WORLD'S SERIES OPENS AT YANKEE STADIUM ON OCT 10TH

New York, Sept. 25 (By the A. P.)—The 1923 world's series will open on Wednesday, Oct. 10, at the Yankee stadium, greatest baseball park in the country, regardless of whether the New York Giants or the Cincinnati Reds win the fight to represent the National league in the annual classic.

This was decided today at a meeting of local club officials with Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, when Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, won the toss to decide which league should have the honor of opening the series.

"That is a good start, anyway," said Colonel Ruppert afterward.

Last year, the Yankees lost the toss and also the series to their Gotham rivals.

Should the Giants stand off the eleventh hour challenge of the Reds and capture the pennant, thus making the series an all-Metropolitan affair for three successive years, the title games will alternate between the Yankee stadium and the Polo Grounds, until one club wins the necessary majority of four contests.

In the event that Cincinnati upsets calculations and wins the flag by a "miracle" finish, the first two games will be played in the Yankee stadium and the next two at Redland field, with a probable lapse of a day for the shifting of battle fields.

The scale of prices at both local parks will be similar to that of last year at the Polo Grounds, where the entire series was contested. These prices were $6 for box seats, $5 for reserved seats, $3 for general unreserved admission and $1 for bleachers. The scale that would prevail at Redland field, in event Cincinnati wins, will be determined later.

The games will start at 2 p. m., the same as last year, it was further decided. Commissioner Landis was understood to have favored starting them at 1.30 p. m., to avoid as far as possible the necessity of calling extra inning games, such as the famous tie of last fall, but it was believed this time would be unsatisfactory, from the point of view of the fans.

Those who attended today's meeting, besides Commissioner Landis and Colonel Ruppert, included Edward G. Barrow, secretary and business manager of the Yankees; Charles A. Stoneham and J. J. Tierney, president and secretary, respectively, of the Giants. The Cincinnati club was not represented.

Some surprise was occasioned in baseball circles by the fact that John A. Heydler, president of the National league, did not attend the session, which was held within a few blocks of his uptown office.

"I was not aware of the meeting, nor did I know that Mr. Landis was in town," said Mr. Heydler when his secretary was called to the announcement of series arrangement. Beyond this, he declined to comment.

It was pointed out that while the settlement of series details rested between Commissioner Landis and the club owners, they also were of direct interest and concern to President Heydler.

Commissioner Landis, in announcing the business transacted by the meeting, did not refer to President Heydler. He left New York early this afternoon for Chicago. Officials of the two New York clubs, when questioned about the situation, refused to comment on the meeting in any way, declaring that the publicity concerning it had been left entirely in the commissioner's hands.

BROWNS MAKE IT THREE STRAIGHT FROM RED SOX

Boston, Sept. 25.—St. Louis made it three straight over Boston by bunching hits with Boston errors today and winning 8 to 2. The visitors stole five bases. A bare-handed stop over third by Ezzell on which he started a double play, was a brilliant fielding feature. In the third Ezzell's shoe was partly torn off as he slid into second base. Manager Chance of Boston granted him the privilege of having P. Collins as a temporary runner. The latter scored a run and then Ezzell returned to the game. The score:

GIANTS NEED BUT ONE MORE GAME FOR PENNANT

Cincinnati, Sept. 25.—The champion New York Giants advanced to within one game of their pennant goal by winning the last game of their western tour from the Cincinnati Reds today, 3 to 2. Luque was hit hard in the early rounds, but with good control and excellent support, managed to keep the score close. The Giants scored in the second inning on Meusel's triple to the scoreboard and a single by Stengel. They bunched four singles for two earned runs and the game in the third, after four singles for two earned runs and the game in the third, after which they could do little with the Cuban who struck out six men. Watson was very effective except in the first and last innings. Burns and Daubert opened the first by driving out consecutive doubles on two pitched balls, the former scoring. With two out in the last half of the ninth, singles by Duncan, Hargrave and Pinelli yielded one run, but Fowler ended the game with a grounder to Bancroft.

The Giants need only one more victory to cinch their third straight flag. They left for the east tonight and will close their season with four games with Brooklyn, and one with Boston. If they win any one of these five games, the Reds vanot overtake them, even by winning all four of these remaining contests, two of which are with St. Louis and two with Pittsburgh. Score:

MANAGER TROLAND SIGNS WORCESTER TO REPRESENT TAFTVILLE IN OPENER

Determined that Taftville shall win a series from Norwich, Manager Troland had secured one of the strongest teams of the Eastern league to represent his town in the Norwich-Taftville series which opens Sunday at the fair grounds. With this team he claims O'Leary is a beaten man, and plenty of Taftville "green" is ready to say that Troland has shown himself an "experienced" manager in picking his team.

Taftville will be represented Sunday by Worcester which finished third in the league race, having at times threatened the leader, Hartford. The lineup presents one of the best seen in Norwich in many a day and the game should be a thriller from the word go.

Facing the Norwich team will be Streyker as pitcher, the man who has pitched 45 games this season and is credited with winning 26 and losing but 11, his average being .703. With this man in the box Troland claims O'Leary will be compelled to put a fast team in the field to win.

With Streyker will be the regular Worcester players, including Em'rick in the center garden, Reis in right field, a man who hit the pill this season for an average of .307. Third base will be covered by Shay, another dangerous man, with a season batting average of .339. Conway will romp around second and Bagwell will travel in left field. In Bagwell, Manager Troland has secured the best hitter in the Eastern league as Baswell's average for the season has been .504, many of his hits going for extra bases. He is considered a dangerous man to face. Stur'gen will handle first and Smith will play at short. Lefler, also a first baseman, completes the team to fight for Taftville, and has laced the apple for an average of .369 for the season.

Worcester will arrive in Taftville early in the day Sunday and will leave for the grounds at 3.30 all set for the fight with O'Leary's warriors, and Manager Troland guarantees to have every man he has announced in the game.

As a team to take to Taftville the first win over Norwich, Manager Troland has secured a powerful machine. Worcester has played 152 games this past season and marked up 894 runs on various scoreboards. The team is the second best in the league in batting and scoring and the team average is .305 for the season.

Against this formidable team O'Leary is forced to send in a team to uphold the honors of Norwich but he promises to bring out one to beat Taftville, no matter who Manager Troland signed, and it will be interesting to await his lineup which is to be completed by Thursday morning.

Both managers have come out into the open for the fray and have signed the best there is to represent their domains and the history of the 1923 series yet remains to be written, a thing looked forward to by every fan in the eastern part of the state who knows the bitter rivalry that exists between Norwich and Taftville in every sport played.

PIRATES POUND OUT 22 HITS AND BEAT PHILLIES

Pittsburgh, Sept. 25. — Pounding four Philadelphia pitchers for a total of 22 hits, Pittsburgh had no trouble in capturing today's game 18 to 5. Credited four times at bat, Moore, who comes here from the Southern Association, scored five runs and three hits. The score:

NORWICH ROTARIANS SWAMP NEW LONDON CLUB TEAM

After a certain game played at Storrs the New London Rotary club believed itself invincible in the baseball world, having beaten the Norwich Rotarians, but since yesterday at the sub-base there is a different tale to tell.

Determined to wipe out the disgrace of the first beating by New London the local club team went to the base Tuesday detremined to win, and they did. In the first inning the Whale City team hit and run and when the dust cleared three big runs had been scored and it looked like hard times for Norwich. This was a whale of an inning for New London, but it was the only one in which they saw figures that had solid backgrounds, all other innings being ended with a blank.

Norwich angry at New London for starting so roughly hit the pill and took two runs in the first and after that scored in every inning until nine runs had been piled up in the sixth, and they did not need their bat in the seventh and last inning.

The playing of "Alex" Abbott, the backstop man for Norwich, was a feature of the game. As a speaker he is well known in these parts and Tuesday he made his bow in local baseball and made his bat speak for Norwich, cracking out three hits, one double and two singles and drew a base on balls in four trips to the plate. His throwing was good and kept the New London runners close to the base. His hits accounted for several runs for Norwich and won him a place in the heart of every fan present.

Harris pitched a fine game for his club, fanning 10 men and held the hits to 5, only one a double. At bat he was a dangerous man and hit safely three times out of four. To Bliven went the honors for the longest hit. Poling one to left that was foul by inches, 'Al" laid' on the next ball and rested on third when the atmosphere cleared. Standish, Cary, Madden and Clapp also hit when hits were wanted and "Bill" Parks provided some comedy with his sketch of Casey at the Bat in the 4th.

For New London Curran pitched a fine game and hit well as did Nowrie, who poled out New London's only double. Regan was a dangerous man, but hit when needed only to be left on base. The score:

TIA JUANA MAY GET DEMPSEY-GIBBONS BOUT

Chicago, Sept. 25—Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, who stopped here today on his way to Salt Lake City to join the champion, said tonight that tentative negotiations were under way with James Coffroth to match Dempsey for a fight at Tia Juana, probably around the first of the year.

No opponent for the champion had been selected, he said, but added that it would not be Harry Wills, the negro fighter. He indicated that Tom Gibbons was being considered.

Johnny Dempsey, brother of Jack, who is with Kearns, took occasion to deny reports that he had struck Babe Ruth the night of the Dempsey-Firpo fight in New York while brother Jack was doing the same to Firpo.

"The only fighting the Dempsey family does is done by the champion, and that only in the ring," he asserted. "Why, Babe and I are good friends. Then, again, the Babe is a big fellow. Why, I'd be a sucker to go for him."

"ELEPHANT" OF FOOTBALL IN COLGATE ELEVEN

Hamilton, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Colgate boasts the heaviest man in college football in the person of "Bus" Doody of Newark, N. J., who tips the scales at 289 pounds. When "Bus" reported for practice, no football outfit large enough for him could be found and he was forced to wear knickers. Doody's weight apparently does not slow him up and he is one of the strong center bulk. Last year he weighed a mere 255.

POETRY

OLD TRAILS.

Tang o' sage and a low-swung star
And Twilight creepin' over the rim
O' the purple weld where the fairies are,
And a coyote breakin' the heart o' him.

Wispy wee bit of a new-blown moon
How many nights have you shown down so,
Chasin' the yesterdays over the dooms
Into the Land-of-the-Long-Ago?

How many nights since I went away
And what have I found in the city street
In the clang and glare and grime o' the day
In the beckonin' hands and hurryin' feet?

Never a smile to pay me for This!
This that I lost and longed for so;
Far dim hills that the low stars kiss

O my rope's to the wind and my hoss on the trail
And Loneliness lurin' me over the rim
An' I'll follow a Star when the rose-lights fail,
To a light in a Shack when the Stars grow dim.

—Violet Bailey Gondier, in The Lariat.

AUTUMN TINTS.

Coral-colored yew-berries
Strew the garden ways.
Hollyhocks and sunflowers
Make a dazzling blaze
In these latter days.

Marigolds by cottage doors
Flaunt their golden pride,
Crimson-punctured bramble leaves
Dapple far and wide
The green mountain side.

Far away, on hilly slopes
Where fleet rivulets run,
Miles on miles of tangled fern,
Burnished by the sun,
Glow a copper dun.

For the year that's on the wane,
Gathering all its fire,
Flares up through the kindling world
Ere they expire,
Flames leap high and higher.

—Mathilde Blind, in Indianapolis News.

Women afoot, on soap boxes and in rocking chairs, settled themselves in Highland boulevard, the chief thoroughfare leading to the Hollywood (Cal.) bowl, and successfully diverted a steam shovel and a gang of workmen that had begun arrangements to tear up the avenue. Boy, oh boy—what a picture! It's a wham-dazzling comedy drama with a twenty-mule kick—a humdinger peachering with enough laughs to bring joy to the eyes and shimmies to the shoulders of the Sphinx—it's a bang-clattering screen stopper with enough crashing drama, shivering thrills and heart-wrenching romance to make the most hopeless old maid feel like a beautiful flapper debutante. If you don't do anything else this year—see this picture!

Real Estate Sold.

Through the offices of the Norwich Land Title and Insurance Co., the titles to the following property have been transferred. August J. Bergman to T. F. and Mary Brewer Title to property at No. 53 Dunham street. E. Tombari to August J. Bergman title to lots on Spring Garden avenue. The new holders purchase these properties as an investment.

Breed Theatre.

A boudoir set that vies in its exotic beauty with any ever fashioned for a motion picture is the one which was designed by Joseph Urban, celebrated scenic artist, for a scene in "The Enemies of Women," Cosmopolitan's picturization of Vicente Blasco Ibanez's popular story, which will be shown for the last times today at the Breed theatre.

The boudoir revealed is that of Alicia, the Duchess de Delille, impersonated in the picture by Alma Rubens. In the story and picture, Alicia is represented as a beautiful woman who, is a little beyond her youth and who is in dread that Prince Labimoff, portrayed by Lionel Barrymore, with whom she is in love, may learn that she is the mother of a sixteen-year-old son.

The boudoir itself is a most luxuriously furnished room, while a dressing room, which is revealed attached to it in the rear, is cunningly fashioned to contribute to the appearance of a woman who is beginning to lose her youth. Both rooms are exotic in character. In neither are there any chairs, but in both rooms cushions are piled high on the floor. There is also in the dressing room a long cheval glass in the elaborate frame, in which Alicia is revealed anxiously studying herself in different poses—a perfect picture of the tragedy of a woman getting old.

Lionel Barrymore and Miss Rubens are featured in "The Enemies of Women," the cast of which also includes Pedro de Cordoba, Gareth Hughes, W. H. Thompson, Gladys Hulette and William Collier, Jr.

BOHEMIAN GIRL MAKES NETS IN BOSTON STORE WINDOW

A crowd surrounds the show window of The Boston Store daily, to watch the nimble fingers of Miss Matilda Taka, from Prague, Bohemia, who is demonstrating Unicum hair nets. Miss Taka, who has been in the United States since she was 14, learned to make nets in her native country when only seven years old.

She can complete a net in forty minutes and at the most can finish but twelve nets a day, for her work is done thoroughly and well. Her fingers fly, as she works with the different strands of human hair, and her skill is very interesting to the crowds before her window. With Miss Taka is Miss R. L. Butler, of Boston; they represent the Thomas H. Gary Company, of New York, which company put out the first hair net 23 years ago. Miss Taka will continue her demonstration all this week.

Beit Bros. to Open New Store.

Nothing but the best meats and provisions will be carried at the new store and the quality and prices will be the same that have made customers for them in all parts of the city.

An invitation is extended the public to attend the opening of the new store on Saturday.

Announcing—The Greatest Advance since the Self Starter

TRAFFIC TRANSMISSION

1924 CHANDLER

Easiest and Safest Car to Drive

As the feature of its 1924 models, Chandler presents the biggest advance in motor car construction since the self-starter—the Traffic Transmission.

Change at Any Speed
Gears Cannot Clash
Anybody Can Do It
Safest Brake on Hills
Nothing New to Learn

The starter overcame the evils of cranking. The Traffic Transmission does away with the terrors of shifting gears, eliminating completely the great trial of motoring—the difficulties of maneuvering through congested city traffic.

A totally new principle is involved. Its first appearance on passenger cars is made in the 1924 Chandler. So sound are its fundamentals that it seems destined for general adoption. For the present, however, only Chandler owners can enjoy the unusual delight it gives to driving. It is built complete in the Chandler plant.

Many manufacturers would have been content to give the public, in any one year, the

Pikes Peak Motor

But Chandler now adds to its triumphs the Traffic Transmission so that even the most inexperienced and timorous driver may fully enjoy the masterly performance powers of the motor which so rapidly won America's respect and admiration.

In the 1924 Chandler, the Pikes Peak Motor remains essentially unchanged, save for an important improvement in the oiling system and certain refinements that make its operation flawlessly smooth and noiseless. These changes are based on the experience of thousands of users, many of whom have driven Chandler cars with Pikes Peak Motors 15000, 18000, and 20000 miles, since January last.

All those who have vainly battled with the perplexities and noise of the old-fashioned gear shift, will naturally want to test for themselves the amazing improvement in driving convenience provided by the Traffic Transmission.

At all speeds in the normal driving range, whether going up hill or down, the change is made without clashing or grinding, and with perfect safety and surety.

For braking purposes it is possible to change from high gear back to second at 35 miles an hour, and from second to low when occasion arises. No dexterity, experience or practice is necessary. Anyone can do it the first time—and with the pressure of the little finger on the gear shift lever.

Gone forever is the uncertainty of shifting gears and its attendant danger on hills and in heavy traffic. Thousands who have been kept from the driver's seat by the perplexities of the old transmission can now become happy motorists.

The Traffic Transmission insures a positive, silent, instantaneous change under every condition because its construction eliminates the fundamental fault of the old transmission—that of trying to mesh two gears that are spinning at different speeds. The gears of the Traffic Transmission are always in mesh. Their teeth, instead of being chipped and shattered by unsuccessful shifts, actually improve with service.

Silence Despite Power

With the revolutionary Traffic Transmission, the improved and practically noiseless Pikes Peak Motor, the long-lived Chandler chassis with its rugged rear axle, its efficient brakes and feather-weight steering, with handsome comfortable bodies and at record prices—the 1924 Chandler offers value without precedent.

Do not fail to see it! Do not fail to drive it!

THE CHANDLER MOTOR CAR COMPANY CLEVELAND

NEW LONDON CANDIDATES FILE ELECTION EXPENSE ACCOUNTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 26.—Philip Hausa and Mike Shasha, Syrians, charged with assault with intent to kill Conductor Walter T. Murphy of the Connecticut company, put up the best defense they could in the police court this morning when their attorney spoke for them and claimed they were not guilty as alleged.

Judge Prince decided that he would not punish the youths for attempting murder but he fined Hausa $100 and Shasha $30. The former is from Detroit and thought the fine a stiff one.

It is understood that the Connecticut company is to equip practically all its cars with the device which will obviate the necessity of having a conductor and motorman on each car. The cars will be treated as are the one-man cars of the safety sort where all entries and exits are at the front. The motorman will sell the token now in use and he will make change as do the operators of the little one-man cars at present. Just now the company is operating its cars with two men, but they are both at the front and and there the man at the controller has charge of the cars and the fares and money.

Paul Hilliken, who came here from Baltimore and managed the affairs of the submarine Deutschland, when Capt. Koenig brought the craft under sea from Bremen on the Rhine to New London on the Thames, is in New London for a short stay. The Deutschland astonished the world for she was the first undersea craft to make any such trip as the one that carried her across the Atlantic. Capt. Hilliken was feted and with the master and the crew of the Deutschland was honized in this city. Capt. Koenig was presented a watch inscribed with the names of the donors, etc. Then came the war, and there was nothing more said about the Deutschland—nothing that was in praise of the ship or of her commander.

Tom Meighan, the motion picture star who here built up a motionplay that had the scenes enacted along the Thames and out in the Sound, is in town to renew the pleasant acquaintances made when he was doing his turn for the screen. He is at the Mohican.

The funeral of Maurice Murphy was held at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church this morning at 9 o'clock. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlager. The bearers were John Keating, Morris Curran, Charles McCormick, Lawrence Keating, John Sullivan and Daniel O'Connell. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

A daughter, Jane Hullivan, born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hullivan of 20 Thames street, died a few hours later. The funeral was held this afternoon, from the residence of the child's parents and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

At funeral services for Osee O. Smith, formerly of New London this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First of Mr. Smith at Uncasville, Rev. J. Church of Christ, officiated. Members of Pequot lodge, I. O. O. F. acted as bearers and conducted the committal service in Elm Grove cemetery, Mystic.

Mrs. Ellen Agnes O'Connell, 35, of No. 9 Hope street, died this morning at Home Memorial hospital, where she had been under treatment but a short time. Mrs. O'Connell is survived by a son, James and a daughter, Miss Margaret O'Connell, both of New London and by five sisters, Mrs. Bridget Ennis, Mrs. Margaret McQuade, Mrs. Annie Sherman, Mrs. Margaret Callahan and Mrs. Catherine Wilder and by a brother, Daniel Moriarty. Burial will be in Moosup.

Harry Twiss, inspector on the employ of the Connecticut company has returned, having visited his brother, Merton Twiss, formerly of New London who has been under treatment at a sanatorium in Stamford many months. The condition of the latter is greatly improved.

Charles J. Borg, 58, a native of New Haven, died at the Odd Fellows' home, Groton, this morning, where he had been for a number of years.

Jennie S. Pierce, 36, wife of Wallace Z. Pierce, of Mystic, died suddenly of acute indigestion at Lawrence hospital late yesterday. Besides her husband, she is survived by two children, Rachel and Thurman Pierce; six brothers, George, Erastus, Elmer, Avery, Amons and Allen Main, of Herbert Pierce of Old Mystic and Mrs. Ledyard and by two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Williams of Ledyard. Mrs. Pierce's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Main of Ledyard, also survive.

James Darling of Shaw street, reported to the police this forenoon that a suit of clothes belonging to him had been stolen from his home. A short time afterwards Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond recovered the clothes at a Bank street second hand store, where the garents had been disposed of.

Michael McGrail of Bellevue place, veteran employe of the New Haven railroad, who suffered the loss of a portion of his leg by being run over by a Central Vermont passenger train in the depot yard a number of week ago, was discharged at Lawrence hospital this afternoon. Other patients discharged were Courtland Alexander of Groton, and Mrs. Van Buren Moody and infant son of Oakdale.

Abraham Shasha of Hill street, reported to the police today that while waiting to cross at the corner of State and Main street, an automobile, owned and operated by Leon H. Barnard of Philadelphia, ran over his foot. Shasha, however, did not complain of any ill results from the mishap.

Groton postal authorities have received instructions from Washington to increase the carrier delivery in the borough. The service includes deliveries on Poquonnoc road as far as High street, and High street and on Benham road, as far as its intersection with High street.

The condition of Edward Bindley, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bindley, of Pittsburgh, annual summer residents at the Pequot, who has been under treatment at Lawrence hospital several weeks, is reported as greatly improved and the young man's discharge from the institution will probably come next week.

Mrs. Kate J. Bacon of Richmond, Va., has returned home having spent a month with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frederick J. Bacon, of the Hotel Mohican apartments.

R. E. Totts of 27 West Coit street today lodged a complaint with the police because of the alleged violation of the law by the New Haven railroad, in blocking the crossing at Hallam street for a period longer than five minutes. Totts alleged that the crossing had been blocked by a freight train a considerable time this forenoon and that it frequently occurs that autoists and pedestrians are compelled to wait a long time before being able to cross the tracks because of freights occupying the crossing.

William Doucette was arrested here this afternoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith upon the request of Chief of Police M. J. Grandy, of Peabody, Mass. who holds a warrant for Doucette on a charge of non-support. Doucette was taken in charge this evening by Inspector Pierce of the Peabody police, who took Doucette back to that city for trial. It is alleged that Doucette, who resided in Peabody until a comparatively short time ago, suddenly disappeared, leaving his family to provide for themselves.

Complaint was made to the police this evening that boys have been amusing themselves by hurling stones through the windows of the building of the Norwich Automatic Feeder Co., at Fort Trumbull. Many of the windows have been smashed.

Hilton C. Kinney, of 108 Squire street was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning by Traffic Officer John Courtney who observed Kinney violating the traffic laws this afternoon by parking his machine on Bank street for a period longer than is allowed.

The month old male infant found abandoned in the doorway to the home of Mrs. Charles Rogers, 10 Montauk avenue a fortnight ago and which has since been thriving under the care of nurses at Lawrence hospital, is to be provided with a home where a loving couple will assume the task of bringing up the infant. Selectman Lawrence S. M. Cook has found a family that will take the infant into their home. No trace of the inhuman parents of the child has ever been found.

At a meeting in the municipal building late yesterday residents of Alger street and Alger place assembled for the purpose of considering the petition of Luther G. Stebbins of Montauk avenue, that the name Alger place be changed to Alger street. Of the many residents of Alger place none desire that the name be changed, while the residents of "Alger street" were not averse to both thoroughfares being known as "Alger place.' Nothing definite in the way of changing the name of either highway was decided upon. The petitioner is not a resident of either thoroughfare, but petitioned the council to make the change in name because of the numerous mistakes in the delivery of mail. Alger street is a direct continuation of Alger place.

The body referred to was buried as an unknown as there was nothing about the person of the man that would tend to reveal his identity.

State Policeman J. K. Palmer was engaged this evening serving supoenas upon members of the New London police force and others in the case of the state against John Carney, proprietor of the Pequot Casino, raided a fortnight ago, Carney being arrested charged with illegal liquor selling. The case is scheduled to be tried in the superior court in Norwich tomorrow. # ROUND OAK
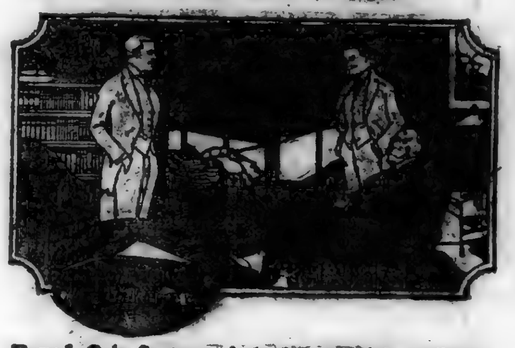
PIRELESS HEATING SYSTEM

Because a Round Oak Heating System is accurately fitted together in every part and then anchored permanently leak-tight by bolts (the patented Round Oak construction), no drafts through leaks can affect the wood and cause it to burn up too fast and kill the fire. This same feature saves the coal and keeps the fires under perfect control.

In fact, Round Oak Heating Systems are built as sturdily and are as accurately fitted as the famously good Round Oak stoves—for generations so well known—to give the same long-time satisfaction, economy and easy control of a coal or wood fire.



Round Oak Systems, indeed, out-weigh ordinary furnaces as much as half a ton. These sturdier oversize parts we use add years and years of life besides keeping the system always sound and tight to save fuel and insure steady circulation of clean moistened warmth.

In the light of our immediate offer, now is none too soon for you to investigate and choose your heating system. Everything favors the man who decides now. Investigate this week! Learn whether your home or place could be satisfactorily heated by the guaranteed-to-satisfy-or-money-refunded Round Oak System.

with which you operate a Round Oak is a decided advantage. A wall regulator upstairs permits you to open or close the heater without going to the basement. Put in fuel only twice a day in the dead of winter when you
Own a Round Oak
With the extra deep ash pit, which holds water, you take ashes out as clean as wet sand.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

REACTION IN STOCK MARKET.

New York, Sept. 25.—A sharp reaction in prices took place in today's stock market, many of the leaders closing at losses of 1 to 3 points on the day.

The decline was generally regarded as proof that domestic trade developments were the paramount force in the determination of quotations at the present time. Early weakening was attributed in response to official reports that Germany had decided to abandon passive resistance in the Ruhr, but the rally was not sustained and the market turned decidedly heavy on publication of unfavorable news and gossip concerning the domestic trade situation.

Heavy selling of Studebaker, which broke 3 3-4 points to 96 5-8, a new low for the year, on unconfirmed rumors of a prospective cut in auto prices, eventually unsettled the general list after a number of food, copper and miscellaneous shares had been run up 1 to 3 points. Baldwin, American Car, American Can, New York Air Brake, Dupont, Goodrich and Woolworth all dropped 3 to 3 1-2 points while Burns Bros. A broke 6 points.

The coppers showed a firm tone and some of them succeeded in retaining part of their early gains. The action of these stocks was clearly attributable to the reparations news as copper producers have repeatedly stated that a settlement of the Ruhr problem would naturally be reflected in an increased export demand for the red metal. Oil shares, which have borne the brunt of recent selling pressure, also held relatively well. Reports were circulated in Wall street during the day that some of the leading producers were planning to pool their surplus product and issue certificates against it, similar to the copper export financing plan a few years ago, but Standard Oil officials disclaimed any knowledge of such action and a canvas of the leading independents failed to develop that any such plan was under consideration. It was pointed out, however, that some of the Pennsylvania producers had found this expedient in years past.

United States Steel broke below 86 for a new low on the movement on reports of a continued slackening of demand. Independent steels sagged in sympathy, Gulf states losing nearly 3 points on the day.

Rails yielded with the industrials despite the publication of some very favorable August earnings statements. Heaviness of Baltimore & Ohio was associated with reports that the resumption of the common dividend would be delayed until the end of the year, the stock closing 1 1-2 lower at 50 1-2. It is understood that the first declaration will be at the annual rate of 5 per cent.

Foreign exchanges made a good response to the foreign political news to which they are highly sensitive. French francs advanced 10 points to 6.25 1-2 cents and Belgian francs advanced 13 points to 5.54 cents, but both reacted from the high quotations in later trading. Demand sterling closed 3-8 of a cent higher at $4.56. German marks also improved, being quoted at 32 cents a hundred million.

Call money opened at 5 per cent, advanced to 5 1-2 and then fell back to 5. Time rates were unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Although ending of Germany's passive resistance gave a lift to wheat prices today, the effect was afterward more than offset by heavy sales to realize profits. Closing quotations were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-2c lower, with December 1.04 1-8 to 1-4c to 1.04 1-4 and May 1.08 3-8, corn finished unchanged to 1 1-8c higher, oats a shade to 3-8c up and provisions at gains varying from 2 to 20 cents.

With news at hand that Germany had officially surrendered in her economic struggle against France, the wheat market took a decided upward swing during the first hour of trading. Removal of hedges on 1,500,000 bushels, chiefly Canadian wheat taken for Europe, tended further to hoist values. However, after the December delivery here had risen more than four cents above its recent low point and had virtually overcome all the loss occasioned by recent big Canadian crop estimates, profit-taking sales reached such volume that a downturn in prices ensued. All months dropped below yesterday's finish, but something of a rally was again in progress as the day drew to an end.

Bears in the wheat market put stress mainly on the continued liberal receipts at Winnipeg and on the fact that cash premiums there were lower. Besides, more hedging pressure was noted at Minneapolis than for some time, and in this connection it was said Canadian wheat was nearly at a price basis for import into the United States. The fact that the cabinet at Washington today considered raising the tariff on wheat was practically unknown here until the market had closed.

Corn and oats were dominated as heretofore by frost damage and corn scarcity. New high price records for the season resulted both in corn and oats.

Provisions reflected the better foreign outlook.

BOND MARKET.

Active United States government issues held steady in dull trading. French and Belgian bonds improved moderately on the favorable news from abroad, Bordeaux 6s advancing a point. Tokio 5s moved up 1.

Railroad mortgages generally were inclined to be reactionary. The market, however, was very narrow. Losses of a point each were recorded by Wheeling & Lake Erie Consolidated 4s, Western Maryland first 4s and Interborough Rapid Transit 6s.

Industrial liens were mixed, Republic Steel 5 1-2s advancing nearly two points and Fisk Rubber 8s 1 1-2, while Wilson & Co., Convertible 6s dropped 1 3-4 and Brooklyn Edison 7s, Series D, 1.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Sept. 25.—Prices in today's curb market opened firm but developed considerable irregularity later with the major activity on the downward side. Rumors of new financing by some of the smaller companies were revived and had a depressing effect on a number of the oil shares.

Standard Oils of Indiana and New York each closed 3-4 of a point lower while losses of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Vacuum, Gulf of Pennsylvania, Pennsylvnaia-Mexico, and Imperial of Canada.

Motor shares were the conspicuously heavy spots of the industrial group, Durant dropping 1 1-2 points to 29. These issues were sold on the theory that the automotive industry would be among the first to suffer by a falling off of business in other commercial lines. Gillette Safety Razor broke 5 1-2 points on a small turn-over. Gold Dust common, selling on a "when issued" basis hit a new high at 24 and then dropped about 2 points.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR MISS LILY C. STOCKDALE

Last Friday evening 31 friends of Miss Lily C. Stockdale planned and successfully, with the aid of Mrs. Stockdale, carried out a complete surprise. Miss Stockdale returned to her home at 8 Union street unaware of anything unusual and found herself hostess to a large, happy group of friends.

The evening was delightfully spent in dancing to the syncopated strains of Kyle's orchestra. Later in the evening a huge candle-lighted birthday cake was produced in the tastefully decorated dining room, where dainty refreshments were served.

JUDGE BROWN RAISES BAIL FOR RUM RUNNERS TO $10,000 EACH

Four Westerly men, Caesar L. Pietro, Frank Stilliliaro, Giuseppe Barcellona, and Salvatore Paldino, were brought into the superior court here Tuesday morning before Judge Allyn L. Brown on bench warrants, charged with unlawful transportation of liquor and carrying firearms.

Attorney H. I. Rathbun appeared for the men and asked the court to reduce their bail which had been set by the Stonington town court at $4,000 in three of the cases and $3,000 in the other.

State Attorney Hull opposed the motion for lower bail and represented that the men had been found with guns in their hands while preparing to transport the liquor. Judge Brown denied the motion and set the bail in each case at $10,000 in default of which the four men went to the Norwich jail.

The quartette was arrested about 1.50 on the morning of Sunday, Sept. 16, at the Watch Hill dock in Stonington where they were found preparing to load 20 five-gallon cans of alcohol from a cabin cruiser into an automobile that was waiting close by.

The men were scheduled for a hearing in the Stonington town court on Tuesday morning and Judge W. A. Wilcox was ready to hear the case but Deputy Sheriff William H. Casey of Pawcatuck served bench warrants issued by Judge Allyn L. Brown and the quartette was brought to Norwich by the deputy sheriff, accompanied by Constables Ledwith and Conners.

ARREST FOLLOWS CRASH; INTOXICATION IS CHARGE

New London, Sept. 25.—An automobile owned and driven by Thomas Manning of Colman street and a machine operated by Harry Eaton of Montauk avenue were in collision late this afternoon in Waterford. Both machines were damaged and Mrs. Manning and her child sustained painful injuries. Eaton was taken into custody by State Policemen Comstock and Soulig, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was locked up at the police station and will be given a hearing in Waterford tomorrow. A short time before the accident occurred a motorist appeared at the police station and informed Desk Sergeant Frank Howard that an automobile which bore the registration of the Eaton machine was being operated in a reckless manner and that an accident was liable to occur. Within five minutes of the time that the report was received State Policemen Comstock and Soulig appeared at the station house with Eaton. Manning was headed toward Norwich to visit relatives and when near Quaker Hill the car operated by Eaton came along. The Eaton machine, it is claimed, was guided from one side of the highway to the other, but Manning could not prevent the two machines from coming together.

SALVATION ARMY TAG DAY FOR JAPAN WORK

The Norwich corps of the Salvation Army is to conduct a tag day next Saturday for the work of rebuilding its properties in Japan and for relief work in Japan. Permission has been kindly granted by Mayor M. R. Waters and Chief of Police George Linton to carry on this effort.

Commandant Samuel V. Furman states that this is not a duplication of the Red Cross appeal but is solely for the work in restoring the Salvation Army property and homes in the devastated area. The army has taken over the whole task of supplying milk there as it has the trucks to do the work. Already $115000 has been sent, clothing is being gathered and arrangements made for free shipments immediately, as the Japanese winter is very severe.

Commandant Furman has decided that the proceeds of the harvest festival will all be used for the Japanese aid.

The officers and the workers will be out early Saturday and will look to see Norwich respond to this appeal as it always does to worthy objects.

HAD NERVOUS INDIGESTION

COULD NOT SLEEP—LOST WEIGHT ONLY WINCARNIS HELPED HER

"Let anyone who may question the truth of your claims for Wincarnis come to me and I will soon dispel their doubts.

A year ago I had a very bad spell of nervous indigestion and although my doctor did all he could for me, nothing he gave me relieved me of the dreadful attack.

I lost my appetite, I could not sleep, my nerves got worse and I rapidly lost weight.

I had read about your wonderful tonic Wincarnis and decided to give it a trial. Almost immediately my appetite came back and soon I was able to get a refreshing night's sleep. My nerves grew steady, my indigestion disappeared and I began to put on flesh. In fact, I gained 8 pounds while taking Wincarnis."

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Welcomed by the Feather Duster.

The morning after the giant had told the wonderful story about the magician, Little Jack Rabbit said goodbye and continued on his way, leaving his beautiful black horse who had lost a shoe with the giant.

The bunny boy still had has seven league boots and they were good enough to travel in, let me tell you.

By and by, he came to a strange looking little house and knocking on the door, it was opened by you'd never guess who, not if I gave you until next Christmas.

The bunny boy was so surprised that he could make no answer and while he stood there the dish and the spoon of Old Mother Goose Country leaned over the Feather Duster's shoulder and asked:

"Where is the cat and where is the fiddle
And where is the cow that went high diddle diddle
Over the meadow and over the moon,
While the Dish ran away with the Silvery Spoon?"

"With dear old Mother Goose, I imagine," answered the little rabbit. "But I have traveled far today. Will you not take me in?"

"Come in and be welcome" said the Feather Duster, waving his feather plumes in quite a grand manner.

Right there in the room of this queer little house, way off in one corner, a little gray mouse sat curling her whiskers and winking her eyes, for Little Jack Rabbit was quite a surprise.

There goes my typewriter making up poetry without putting it into verse. Isn't that a shame?

As the bunny boy sat down, Mrs. Baking Pan, full of nice fresh dough hopped down from the cupboard and jumped into the oven and Old Maid Tea Kettle lighted the fire and began to sing. Mr. Potato Masher danced up and down on the boiled potatoes and Miss Cake Dish brought in an armful of frosted cake. Dear me! I can't begin to tell of all the little people who started to get supper ready. But I will say this—it was

When the weather is cold and stormy outside
I sit by the fire and sing,
Tra la la la, tra la la la,
Just like a bird in the Spring.
Everyone knows that the wood fire glows
Brighter because of my song.
Crickerty, crick, crickerty creek,

Pretty soon the bunny boy curled himself up on a chair and went fast asleep and while the little cricket kept watch all night to see that the little gray mouse didn't eat the frosting off the cake, the Feather Duster cleaned up the house.

FLAYS HAYNES' CONCEPTION OF THE PROHIBITION LAW

Eugene C. Brokmeyer, Attorney of the National Association of Retail Druggists, Believes the Commissioner "Doesn't Understand What the 18th Amendment Is" —Asserts That It Has Been Intimated That the Anti-Saloon League Has Promised to Swing the Ohio Delegation for Coolidge in Exchange for Allowing a League Appointee to Administer the Prohibition Law—Chairman Stone Resents the Inference That Every Retail Druggist is a Potential Bootlegger.

Boston, Sept. 26.—The administration of the Federal prohibition law was attacked by Eugene C. Brokmeyer, of Washington, D. C., general attorney of the National Association of Retail Druggists, in an address before the association today. In the course of his remarks he said it had been intimated that the Anti-Saloon League had promised to swing the Ohio delegation for the nomination of President Coolidge with the understanding that he would permit an appointee of the league to administer the prohibition law. He expressed the belief that Prohibition Commissioned Haynes "Doesn't understand what the eighteenth amendment means."

"The retail druggists today," he are in the lamentable position of requesting and demanding protection as law-abiding citizens who are serving the public. I am sure that a large majority of the people in this country are in favor of law enforcement. That goes without saying. But how many have stopped to think or find out just what the prohibition law is? Judging by the way the present prohibition commissioner has endorsed— or rather has not enforced it in the past year—I am constrained to believe that even he doesn't understand what the eighteenth amendment is.

"The commissioner has been enforcing what many people are pleased to term fanatical prohibition. I credit the commissioner with sincerity and with honesty, with being well meaning and backed by the tremendous sentiment in the United States, but the people, like him, seem to overlook the fact that there are limitations in the constitution."

He said that President Coolidge had referred to Commissioner Haynes a letter from the secretary of the Druggists' Association," offering the friendly offices and experience of this body to the President for his benefit and the benefit of the governors who meet with him in October when federal and state cooperation on the prohibition act will be determined. Ordinarily, he remarked, such a letter would have been referred to the secretary of the treasury or the commissioner of internal revenue.

"If the present incumbent of the White House or any other" he went on, "is going to play politics, and if, as has been intimated, the delegation from Ohio has been promised him by the Anti-Saloon League, favoring his nomination on the pledge that he is going to permit an appointee of the Anti-Saloon League to administer the prohibition law regardless of the limitations of the federal constitution, I want to know it. There has been too much law-making and law enforcement for political gain on the checkerboard of politics. I ask the cooperation of the 50,000 retail druggists of the United States to put this information before the American public. If you in your states will do your duty the voters will understand when it comes time to elect the next president of the United States.

"The president of the United States —I want to excuse him. He has been imposed upon, deceived. I want this convention to pass a resolution expressing confidence in the secretary of the treasury and the commissioner of internal revenue, for Mr. Coolidge's benefit. I want to be fair to Mr. Coolidge. He hasn't had time to grasp the organized opposition to us and to the people we serve."

Mr. Brokmeyer charged that the administration of the Harrison Narcotic Drug Act was "in the hands of a moral crusader who hasn't the remotest idea of what it means and cares less."

"It is not the narcotic drugs imported by reputable manufacturers for the sick which make drug addicts," he said.

Frank T. Stone, chairman of the association's legislative committee, asserted that the prohibition commissioner had arbitrarily limited the quantities of liquor needed by druggists for medicinal and other non-beverage purposes and had proceeded on the theory that every retail druggist was a potential bootlegger."

BEES EVILS RESULTING FROM VOLSTEAD LAW

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Dire consequences will result unless the Volstead act is changed, Rev. Francis E. Young, assistant pastor of St. Raphael's German Catholic church, declared in a statement today. It was at his church that the funeral of George "Spet" Bucher, who was shot and killed with George Meeghan, September 17, by unidentified assailants, supposedly in a war between rival beer-runners, was held.

"The Volstead act is a law. It is, however, one of the biggest farces in our country and must be changed," said the assistant pastor. "The general disregard for the Volstead law is the cause of much of the present disrespect for all law.

"Why are bootleggers and beer runners in such large numbers, if there is no demand for their stuff?

"There is no doubt in my mind that the majority of the people want the Volstead law changed. This can be done. Let those who represent you understand that it must be modified if they are to get your support in the future."

"Until the law can be changed," the minister said, the authorities must enforce the law and the people must respect it."

The state's attorney's office today gave special attention to the investigation of the killings of Meeghan and Bucher, ten days after Jerry O'Conner was slain.

The police continued their drive against places suspected of selling beer and liquor.

ADVOCATES CANCELLATION BY U. S. OF WORLD WAR DEBTS

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 26.—Cancellation of the debts owed the United States by its allies of the world war was advocated today by Fred I. Kent, vice president of the Bankers Trust Company, of New York, in an address before the annual meeting of the American Bankers Association, "provided agreements are obtained in return that would re-establish peace in Europe."

Mr. Kent also urged official American representation of the allied reparations commission. Occupation of the Ruhr by French troops, he said, was justified since it brought to a head the problem of final settlement of the reparations question.

Cancellation of the allied indebtedness without the securing of agreements that would re-establish peace in Europe, abolish the causes of militarism in Europe and allow the unrestricted development of trade and commerce, Mr. Kent said, would be the height of folly and undoubtedly against the wishes of the people of the United States.

He asserted that a cancellation which secured such guarantees in return would not mean that the United States would be loser of the full amount of any indebtedness that might be canceled. "It is conceivable," he said, "that during the period it would take for the indebtedness to be paid, if it were paid, that increased domestic and foreign trade profits could far exceed the amount of the cancelled debts."

STATEMENT OF DIRECTORS OF THE BOSTON & MAINE

Boston, Sept. 26.—A plea by the directors of the Maine Central railroad for a merger of that road with the New York Central lines, by an excision of the Boston and Maine's Worcester, Nashua and Portland division was made at the third day of the Interstate Commerce Commission's railroad consolidation hearings here today.

Commissioners Hall, Eastman and Cox are hearing arguments for and against the proposal of the Joint New England railway committee for a grouping of roads within New England (excepting the Boston and Albany and Canadian-owned lines) as against consolidation with trunk lines west of the Hudson.

"There are decided objections to trunk line plans which include the Maine Central with the Boston and Maine or with both the Boston and Maine and the New Haven," the directors' statement read to the commissioners by Morris McDonald, president of the Maine Central, asserted. "These plans offer no appreciable opportunity for improving the conditions now prevalent, either by relief to the Maine Central in the form of car supply or by the more prompt movement of through traffic.

"A system independent of trunk line interests is also objectionable. Competition within a New England would cease.

"Nor would the bargaining power of a New England system necessarily be the means of obtaining increased revenues through divisions (of revenue received from trunk line traffic). Any reduction in local rates would also be quite improbable, and to support such an independent system even higher rates might be required."

The directors then pointed out that Maine was the only New England state which did not have direct connections with the trunk lines at the Hudson River, a situation little appreciated."

The proposal for uniting the Maine Central with the New York Central by taking over the section of the Boston and Maine mentioned, was then put forward.

NO DEFENSE WITNESSES IN WARD MURDER TRIAL

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 26.—(By the A. P.)—The case of Walter S. Ward was pleaded before a jury in state supreme court today without a single witness having been called in defense of charges that he murdered Clarence Fekete, ex-sailor, 11 months ago.

This day marked the third successive one in which the trial has been a series of surprises. The prosecution had rested its case last night with abrupt unexpectedness, after summoning only 32 of the 72 witnesses whose testimony before the extraordinary grand jury caused Ward's indictment. The defense was to have begun calling its witnesses this morning.

Instead, a few moments after Justice Wagner took the bench, Isaac N. Mills, Ward's aged senior counsel, arose and without preface or emphasis, said in a voice so low that few heard his words: "The defense rests, your honor."

COUNCEL DECISION GIVES 50,000,000 LIRE TO ITALY

Paris, Sept. 26.—(By the A. P.)—The Greco-Italian affair was brought to a close today so far as the interallied council of ambassadors is concerned, when that body decided that the 50,000,000 lire deposited by Greece in the Bank of Switzerland as security for indemnity should be paid over to Italy.

The payment was ordered as a penalty for Greece's dilatoriness in searching for the assassins of the Italian boundary mission near Janina, the slaying of which brought about the Greco-Italian crisis and the subsequents occupation of Corfu island by Italy.

The ambassadors upheld their decision that, in view o Greece's action in fulfilling the terms laid down by the council, including payment of indemnity, saluting the allied fleet at Phaleron and rendering honors to the bodies of the slain commissioners, Italy was in duty bound to evacuate Corfu. It was announced that this evacuation was already begun, and would be completed tomorrow.

Regular Editions of New York Papers

After Nine Days the Places of Pressmen on Strike Have Been Filled.

New York, Sept. 26—Morning newspapers tomorrow will resume their individual identities, after nine days of anonymity as The Combined Morning Newspapers of New York, it was announced today at the headquarters of the publishers' association. The combined newspapers bearing the names of all the morning dailies affected by the strike of pressmen who left their posts a week Monday night, and printed in curtailed size, will be discontinued.

The newspapers, by returning to their customary and individual typographical styles, it was stated, will serve notice on the public that the strike of pressmen and the resultant curtailed newspaper output is over, despite the fact that only a few of the strikers have returned.

Press room forces the publishers assert have been brought virtually to normal by the importation into New York of members of the International union in other cities.

The out-of-town pressmen continued to arrive today it was stated in response to the call of George L. Berry, head of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union, which declared the walk-out illegal, outlawed the striking local union and signed a separate agreement with the employers Friday.

Officials of the Publishers' association predicted that the city's newspapers would increase in size tomorrow. Sixteen page papers will be printed tomorrow, it was said.

David Simons, leader of the outlawed local union, declared the strikers had ignored completely the publishers' offer of a last chance to return to work with international union cards under the Berry agreement. He asserted it was a "fight to the finish" and predicted failure for Mr. Berry's efforts to maintain out-of-town forces on New York presses. He said sympathetic unions had contributed $150,000 in cash and offered $200,000 in loans toward supporting the strike, adding other unions would raise funds by membership assessments.

Police formed an "armed lane" along Park Row today to protect newspaper delivery trucks from attacks by strike sympathizers. Three motorcycle policemen escorting some of the trucks were hurt when their machines skidded on wet pavements.

GREECE PROTESTS AWARD OF COUNCIL OF AMBASSADORS.

Geneva, Sept. 26—(By the A. P.)—Nicholas Politis, representative of Greece on the League of Nations council, tonight made public protest against the alleged decision of the Council of Ambassadors to compel Greece to pay Italy 50 million lire in connection with the assassination of the Italian members of the Greco-Albanian boundary commission.

M. Politis declared that if the Council of Ambassadors had officially decided to award the money, deposited by Greece as security for indemnity, it would be an act of outrageous injustice by big countries against a little country. He insisted that the inquiry into the killing of the Italians had not been finished and declared that the Greeks have evidence that the Albanian authorities were responsible for the murders.

Proclamation by the President of Germany

"On January 11 French and Belgian troops occupied the German Ruhr territory against right and treaties. Since then the Ruhr and Rhineland have endured most grievous oppression. Over 130,000 Germans, men women, old men and children, have been driven from their homes. For millions of Germans the idea of individual liberty no longer exists.

"The occupation was accompanied by numberless acts of violence. Over 160 of our countrymen lost their lives, hundreds of others are still languishing in prison. Sentiments of justice and patriotism were stirred by the illegality of the invasion. The population refused to work under foreign bayonets. The whole German people is grateful for the fidelity to the German Reich and steadfastness that stood the test of the hardest times.

"The government of the Reich undertook to watch over its distressed compatriots so far as it was able. There was thus an ever increasing drain upon the resources of the Reich. The funds in aid of the Ruhr and Rhineland last week reached the sum of 2,500,000,000,000 marks, and an expenditure of at least double that amount was foreseen for the present week.

"The former production of the Ruhr and the Rhineland ceased and the economic life in occupied and unoccupied Germany became disorganized. It is most seriously to be feared that should the same line of action as hitherto be proceeded with, the creation of a regular currency, the maintenance of economic life, and existence itself would be impossible for our people. In the interest of Germany's future, as in that of the Rhineland and the Ruhr, this danger must be removed. In order to preserve the life of the people and the state we are today faced with the dire necessity of relinquishing the struggle.

"We realise that in doing so we are calling upon the inhabitants of the occupied territories to make sacrifices of a moral character still greater than those in which they acquiesced up until now. Their struggle has been heroic, their self control incomparable. We shall never forget what the occupied territories afforded and what what has been given up by those who preferred to leave their native country rather than be disloyal to the Fatherland.

"The government's first duty is to see that the prisoners are released and that those who have been expelled may return. The fight for the elementary rights of humanity comes before all economic and material concerns. Germany has declared her readiness to assume most severe material sacrifices for the liberty of German subjects and still, but that liberty is for us not an object of negotiations for barter.

"It depends on the powers which have invaded our territory and on their allies by adhering to this idea to give peace to Germany or bring about rejection of this peace all the consequences which would ensue with respect to the relations between peoples. We invite the German people to stand closely together in the days of dire moral and material strife which are to come. Only thus shall be frustrated all projects for dismemberment of the Reich, and the nation recover its honor, life and liberty, which is its imprescriptible right."

CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS IN GERMANY CURTAILED

Berlin, Sept. 26.—(By the A. P.)—A presidential decree has been issued curtailing a number of constitutional rights in Germany and conferring executive power in the minister of defense.

TO PROTECT, MUNICH AGAINST INSURRECTION

Munich, Sept. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Dr. Von Kahr, former premier, was tonight appointed general commissioner for Bavaria, with full power to proclaim an exceptional state and adopt any other military or police measures to protect Munich against insurrection from reactionary or radical sources. The appointment follows upon the activities of the Hitler guards or other so-called patriotic leagues, who are mobilizing for a general review on Friday.

This official action is viewed as a purely local precionary measure, and is in no wise aimed at the central government.

The executive power passes into the hands of the general commissioner. His orders and decisions take precedence over those of all the other authorities, excepting judicial and administrative, and miltary courts. The commissioner may, if necessary, have recourse to armed force.

Appeals against his roders or decisions are forbidden, except with his authorization. The commissioner is empowered to make arrangements for the maintenance of public safety, to prescribe penalties for those who contravene his orders and to restrict the period in which individuals may reside in a district.

STRIKE ALONG WATER FRONT IN NEW ORLEANS

New Orlean, Sept. 26.—Accommodations for 500 dock workers will be provided on the former passenger steamship "Minnesota" which will be anchored off the naval station at Algiers, it was announced today by the New Orleans Steamship Association.

This arrangement was adopted to assure protection to workers who have taken the places of striking longshoremen, screwmen and marine transport men who yesterday were joined by cotton loaders and teamsters.

Peace reigned along the waterfront today, according to police reports, but several workers were attacked and beaten last night.

OKLAHOMA SOLONS TO HAVE RECOURSE TO THE COURTS

Were Prevented from Meeting or Even Caucusing by the Military Authorities—Have Promised Adjutant General Markham That There Would be No Immediate Attempt to Assemble Again in Defiance of Martial Law—May Bring Injunction Suit Against Governor Walton and National Guard Officers—Governor Has Decided to Extend Martial Law to Another County.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Undaunted by the result of the first skirmish with military forces of the state, members of the lower house of the Oklahoma legislature prepared tonight for the next move in their attempt to meet to consider the official acts of Governor J. C. Walton.

Despite the fact that they were dispersed when they gathered at noon today before the barred doors of the House chamber at the capitol, the legislators contended that the House formally was convened and that it now is in recess pending the call of the presiding officer.

A statement by representative W. L. McBee, a leader in the assembly move, declared that proceedings constituted a meeting of the House, notwithstanding its interruption by troops acting under orders of Governor Walton.

With the statement, Representative McBee made public what he declared to be the official journal of the House.

It detailed the brief action which terminated in the clearance of the capitol corridors by the military.

Prevented from meeting or even caucusing, the House members tonight pinned their hopes for protection against the military authorities upon the efforts of a legal committee which is preparing to mark the next stage in the conflict.

That there would be no immediate attempt to assemble again in defiance of martial law regulations was the promise made late today by House leaders to Adjutant General Baird H. Markham. Observers predicted that the solons would await a court ruling before essaying another assembly.

Representative W. B. Disney, chairman of the legal committee, said tonight that the court proceedings could not get under way before morning. He refused to indicate what form the action might take or whether it would be instituted in the state supreme court or the federal court here.

It is expected, however, thatan injunction will be sought against Governor Walton, with the possibility that National Guard officers will be made parties to the suit.

Attorney General George F. Short, who will oppose the action in behalf of the state when the court battle begins, told newspaper men that several types of legal action might be filed. He added that he did not know what to expect.

The "Journal of the House," designed to show that the session was regularly called today and that it was dispersed, is expected to be made the basis for the suit.

The journal, written on stationary of the local hotel where the legislators make their headquarters, describes the proceedings as follows:

"Corridors of the Hall of Representatives.

"12 Noon, Sept. 26, 1923.

"Representative Charles B. Brice, ascertaining that sixty-six members of the house of representatives were present, called the house to order, at which time Colonel William S. Key intervened and commanded that the house of representatives disperse, after which he read his order from the governor of the state of Oklahoma, authorizing such command.

"Representative Stovall: 'Will you please explain the order, Colonel Key?'

"Colonel Key: 'The order which I have just read is self-explanatory.'

"Representative Stovall: 'You have the entire military force of the state at your command, do you?'

"Colonel Key: 'I refuse to answer the question.'

"Representative Disney: 'Did you state that you would not answer any questions?'

"Colonel Key: 'No, sir.'

"Representative Disney: 'Are you dispersing us as members of the house of representatives?'

"Colonel Key: 'Yes, sir.'

"Representative Disney: 'Very well, sir.'

"Colonel Key: 'Please do us the courtesy to move on.'

"Representative Boyer: 'Am I dispersed as a member of the legislature?'

"Colonel Key: 'I refuse to answer any individual questions. The orders have been very explicit.' (Turning) 'Major McCarty, please see that the room is cleared.'"

With rifles on their shoulders, two private stood before the doors of the house and the senate chambers. Officers wearing service revolvers stationed themselves at vantage points.

The hands of the clock swung to noon.

Suddenly above the noise arose a voice—that of Charles S. Brice, of McAlester, speaker pro tempore. It came from the rear of the crowd that pressed up to the armed barrier to the hall of the house.

"As it is noon the house is in session——" Brice began.

"You are commanded to disperse." This sharp command interrupted Brice and the crowd turned and saw Colonel W. S. Key, military commander of Oklahoma county, step to the speaker's side.

There was a shuffling of feet as the assembly moved forward to face the officer.

With upraised hand, Colonel Key shouted: "Stand where you are!"

Then his officers sprang into action to hold the crowd in place.

With a semblance of order restored, Colonel Key began reading an order forbidding the house members to convene.

"I, as a military commander of the District of Oklahoma county, forbid this attempted meeting and direct conscription.

that you disperse immediately," he concluded.

Another order to disperse was rasped out by Colonel Key and officers began moving through the assembly repeating their chief's injunction. The crowd wavered, then broke and within five minutes the rotunda was deserted.

Guards made no effort to stay the demonstration until the throng pressed forward to meet the legislators. Then they ordered it to disband.

The house members went immediately to a downtown hotel, where an unofficial headquarters is maintained.

Within a short time a member of Colonel Key's staff arrived and instructed Representative McBee that no caucuses would be permitted. McBee assured the guard officer that there would be no attempt to hold either a caucus or assembly.

A score of Governor Walton's secret service operatives were scattered through the hotel. A guard captain also stationed there.

One of the governor's policemen arrested Campbell Russell, former chairman of the state corporation commission, and one of Walton's political enemies. It was charged that Russell had been circulating copies of a cartoon attacking Walton. He was booked at the police station on charges of disorderly conduct, and inciting to riot and was released immediately on bond of twenty dollars. Russell returned to the hotel.

When legislators appealed to Adjutant General Markham to have the state policemen removed from the hotel, declaring that they were being shadowed and intimidated by "Governor Walton's gum men," they received prompt action.

Colonel Key went to the hotel and ordered John Glenn, in charge of the operatives, to clear the hotel of his men, "in 10 minutes," Glenn withdrew his force immediately.

Ten members of the senate met late in the day in a hotel and after a conference issued a statement that the upper house would make no attempt to assemble itself until the legality of the representatives' action today had been passed upon by the courts. "While only 10 of the forty-four members of the senate were present at the meeting" Senator Joseph C. Looney of Wewoka said, "We have canvassed the sentiment of the entire body and it is our decision that the proper course is to follow the law."

GOVERNOR TO EXTEND MARTIAL LAW IN OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept 26 (By the A. P.)—Rigid martial law will be invoked in another county in Oklahoma tomorrow, Governor J. C. Walton announced tonight.

The name of the county was not made public but the executive said a delegation headed by the mayor of one of its cities had called upon him with a request for "military protection."

Governor Walton declined to elaborate further on the announcement. Three counties—Oklahoma, Tulsa and Creek—now are under a decree of absolute military rule, although troops never have occupied Creek county.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN AS WRITER AND DIRECTOR

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Charlie Chaplin has retired from custard comedies and is resting, he said today, when in Chicago en route to New York to view a picture story he wrote and directed but in which he does not act.

Chaplin says he hopes to do better things for the screen, and will return to comedy acting but will be whimsical humor rather than the slapstick variety.

"Only in the movies do the eaters register emotions with strange facial distortions," he said.

So in the new Chaplin order of things, the characters live the plot, "but do not make the fatal mistake which ruins the average movie of today, of showing their emotion by distorted facial expression," he said, adding: 'They do not 'register,' they act. They do what they can to remedy their situation. They struggle. That is drama."

TROLLEY COLLISION ON LINE AT HILLIARDVILLE

Rockville, Sept. 26.—Fully 125 persons on two Connecticut company trolley cars escaped serious injuries when the cars collided on the single track line at Hilliardville between Manchester and Rockville at 6.25 o'clock tonight. Mrs. William Alley of Rockville was the only passenger removed to a hospital. A score of others either were bruised or suffered from being shaken up.

The force of the crash was so great that each car was forced upright, the front ends meeting and forming what resembled an inverted letter "V." Confusion over signals was said to have ben the cause of the collision.

The car from Hartford was in charge of Motorman Miller and Conductor Sargent of Manchester and the car from Rockville, bound for Hartford, was manned by Motorman Ranson and Conductor Davis, also of Manchester.

FLAYS HAYNES' CONCEPTION OF THE PROHIBITION LAW

Eugene C. Brokmeyer, Attorney of the National Association of Retail Druggists, Believes the Commissioner "Doesn't Understand What the 18th Amendment Is" —Asserts That It Has Been Intimated That the Anti-Saloon League Has Promised to Swing the Ohio Delegation for Coolidge in Exchange for Allowing a League Appointee to Administer the Prohibition Law—Chairman Stone Resents the Inference That Every Retail Druggist is a Potential Bootlegger.

Boston, Sept. 26.—The administration of the Federal prohibition law was attacked by Eugene C. Brokmeyer, of Washington, D. C., general attorney of the National Association of Retail Druggists, in an address before the association today. In the course of his remarks he said it had been intimated that the Anti-Saloon League had promised to swing the Ohio delegation for the nomination of President Coolidge with the understanding that he would permit an appointee of the league to administer the prohibition law. He expressed the belief that Prohibition Commissioner Haynes "Doesn't understand what the eighteenth amendment means."

"The retail druggists today," he "are in the lamentable position of requesting and demanding protection as law-abiding citizens who are serving the public. I am sure that a large majority of the people in this country are in favor of law enforcement. That goes without saying. But how many have stopped to think or find out just what the prohibition law is? Judging by the way the present prohibition commissioner has enforced— or rather has not enforced it in the past year—I am constrained to believe that even he doesn't understand what the eighteenth amendment is.

"The commissioner has been enforcing what many people are pleased to term fanatical prohibition. I credit the commissioner with sincerity and with honesty, with acting well meaning and backed by the tremendous sentiment in the United States, but the people, like him, seem to overlook the fact that there are limitations in the constitution."

He said that President Coolidge had referred to Commissioner Haynes a letter from the secretary of the Druggists' Association, offering the friendly offices and experience of this body to the President for his benefit and the benefit of the governors who meet with him in October, when federal and state cooperation on the prohibition act will be determined. Ordinarily, he remarked, such a letter would have been referred to the secretary of the treasury or the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

"If the present incumbent of the White House or any other" he went on, "is going to play politics, and if, as has been intimated, the delegation from Ohio has been promised him by the Anti-Saloon League, favoring his nomination on the pledge that he is going to permit an appointee of the Anti-Saloon League to administer the prohibition law regardless of the limitations of the federal constitution, I want to know it. There can been too much law-making and law enforcement for political gain on the checkerboard of politics. I ask the cooperation of the 50,000 retail druggists of the United States to put this information before the American public. If you in your stores will do your duty the voters will understand when it comes time to elect the next president of the United States.

"The president of the United States—I want to excuse him. He has been imposed upon, deceived. I want this convention to pass a resolution expressing confidence in the secretary of the treasury and the commissioner of internal revenue, for Mr. Coolidge's benefit. I want to be fair to Mr. Coolidge. He hasn't had time to grasp the organized opposition to us and to the people we serve."

Mr. Brokmeyer charged that the administration of the Harrison Narcotic Drug Act was "in the hands of a moral crusader who hasn't the remotest idea of what it means and cares less."

"It is not the narcotic drugs imported by reputable manufacturers for the sick which make drug addicts," he said.

Frank T. Stone, chairman of the association's legislative committee, asserted that the prohibition commissioner had arbitrarily limited the quantities of liquor needed by druggists for medicinal and other non-beverage purposes and had proceeded on the theory that every retail druggist was a potential bootlegger.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

STATEMENT OF DIRECTORS OF THE BOSTON & MAINE

Boston, Sept. 26.—A plea by the directors of the Maine Central railroad for a merger of that road with the New York Central lines, by an excision of the Boston and Maine's Worcester, Nashua and Portland division was made at the third day of the Interstate Commerce Commission's railroad consolidation hearings here today.

Commissioners Hall, Eastman and Cox are hearing arguments for and against the proposed of the Joint New England railway committee for a grouping of roads within New England (excepting the Boston and Albany and Canadian-owned lines) as against consolidation with trunk lines west of the Hudson.

"There are decided objections to trunk line plans which include the Maine Central with the Boston and Maine or with the Boston and Maine and the New Haven," the directors' statement read to the commissioners by Morris McDonald, president of the Maine Central, asserted. "These plans offer no appreciable opportunity for improving the conditions now prevalent, either by relief to the Maine Central in the form of car supply or by the more prompt movement of through traffic.

"A system independent of trunk line interests is also objectionable. Competition with a New England would cease.

"Nor would the bargaining power of a New England system necessarily be a means of obtaining increased revenues through divisions (of revenue received from trunk line traffic). Any reduction in local rates would also be quite improbable, and to support such an independent system even higher rates might be required."

The directors then pointed out that Maine was the only New England state which did not have direct connections with the trunk lines at the Hudson River, "a situation little appreciated by the commission."

The proposal for uniting the Maine Central with the New York Central by taking over the section of the Boston and Maine mentioned, was then put forward.

NO DEFENSE WITNESSES IN WARD MURDER TRIAL

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 26.—(By the A. P.)—The case of Walter S. Ward was pleaded before a jury in state supreme court today without a single witness having been called in defense of charges that he murdered Clarence Fekers, ex-sailor, 17 months ago.

This day marked the third successive one in which the trial has been a series of surprises. The prosecution had rested its case last night with abrupt unexpectedness, after summoning only 32 of the 73 witnesses whose testimony before the extraordinary grand jury caused Ward's indictment. The defense was to have begun calling its witnesses this morning.

Instead, a few moments after Justice Wagner took the bench, Isaac N. Mills, (Ward's aged chief counsel arose and without preface or emphasis, said in a voice so low that few heard his words: "The defense rests, your honor."

COUNCIL DECISION GIVES 50,000,000 LIRE TO ITALY

Paris, Sept. 26.—(By the A. P.)—The Greco-Italian affair was brought to a close today so far as the interallied council of ambassadors is concerned, when that body decided that the 50,000,000 lire deposited by Greece in the Bank of Switzerland as security for indemnity should be paid over to Italy.

The payment was ordered as a penalty for Greece's dilatoriness in searching for the assassins of the Italian boundary mission near Janina, the slaying of which brought about the Greco-Italian crisis and the subsequents occupation of Corfu island by Italy.

The ambassadors upheld their decision that, in view of Greece's action in fulfilling the terms laid down by the council, including payment of indemnity, saluting the allied fleet at Phaleron and rendering honors to the bodies of the slain commissioners, Italy was in duty bound to evacuate Corfu. It was announced that this evacuation was already begun, and would be completed tomorrow.

The accident occurred in a congested district and crowds of mothers and fathers had to be held back by police reserves.

Regular Editions of New York Papers

After Nine Days the Places of Pressmen on Strike Have Been Filled.

New York, Sept. 26—Morning newspapers tomorrow will resume their individual identities, after nine days of anonymity as The Combined Morning Newspapers of New York, it was announced today at the headquarters of the publishers' association. The combined newspapers bearing the names of all the morning dailies affected by the strike of pressmen who left their posts a week Monday night, and printed in curtailed size, will be discontinued.

The newspapers, by returning to their customary and individual typographical styles, it was stated, will serve notice on the public that the strike of pressmen and the resultant curtailed newspaper output is over, despite the fact that only a few of the strikers have returned.

Press room forces the publishers assert have been brought virtually to normal by the importation into New York of members of the International union in other cities.

The out-of-town pressmen continued to arrive today it was stated in response to the call of George L. Berry, head of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' union, which declared the walk-out illegal, outlawed the striking local union and signed a separate agreement with the employers Friday.

Officials of the Publishers' association predicted that the city's newspapers would increase in size tomorrow. Sixteen page papers will be printed tomorrow, it was said.

David Simons, leader of the outlawed local union, declared the strikers had ignored completely the publishers' offer of a last chance to return to work with International union cards under the Berry agreement. He asserted it was a "fight to the finish" and predicted failure for Mr. Berry's efforts to maintain out-of-town forces on New York presses. He said sympathetic unions had contributed $1,000,000 in cash and offered $300,000 in loans toward supporting the strike, adding other unions would raise funds by membership assessments.

Police formed an "armed lane" along Park Row today to protect newspaper delivery trucks from attacks by strike sympathizers. Three motorcycle policemen escorting some of the trucks were hurt when their machines skidded on wet pavements.

GREECE PROTESTS AWARD OF COUNCIL OF AMBASSADORS

Geneva, Sept. 26—(By the A. P.)—Nicholas Politis, representative of Greece on the League of Nations council, tonight made public protest against the alleged decision of the Council of Ambassadors to compel Greece to pay Italy 50 million lire in connection with the assassination of the Italian members of the Greco-Albanian boundary commission.

M. Politis declared that if the Council of Ambassadors had officially decided to award the money, deposited by Greece as security for indemnity, it would be an act of outrageous injustice by big countries against a little country. He insisted that the inquiry into the killing of the Italians had not been finished and declared that the Greeks have evidence that the Albanian authorities were responsible for the murders.

Proclamation by the President of Germany

"On January 11 French and Belgian troops occupied the German Ruhr territory against right and treaties. Since then the Ruhr and Rhineland have endured most grievous oppression. Over 130,000 Germans, men women, old men and children, have been driven from their homes. For millions of Germans the idea of individual liberty no longer exists.

"The occupation was accompanied by numberless acts of violence. Over 100 of our countrymen lost their lives; hundreds of others are still languishing in prison. Sentiments of justice and patriotism were stirred by the illegality of the invasion. The population refused to work under foreign bayonets. The whole German people is grateful for the fidelity to the German Reich and steadfastness that stood the test of the hardest times.

"The government of the Reich undertook to watch over its distressed compatriots so far as it was able. There was thus an ever increasing drain upon the resources of the Reich. The funds in aid of the Ruhr and Rhineland last week reached the sum of 3,500,000,000,000 marks, and an expenditure of at least double that amount was foreseen for the present week.

"The former production of the Ruhr and the Rhineland ceased and the economic life in occupied and unoccupied Germany became disorganized. It is most seriously to be feared that should the same line of action as hitherto be proceeded with, the creation of a regular currency, the maintenance of economic life, and existence itself would be impossible for our people. In the interest of Germany's future, as in that of the Rhineland and the Ruhr, this danger must be removed. In order to preserve the life of the people and the state we are today faced with the dire necessity of relinquishing the struggle.

"We realize that in doing so we are calling upon the inhabitants of the occupied territories to make sacrifices of a moral character still greater than those in which they acquiesced up until now. Their struggle has been heroic, their self control incomparable. We shall never forget what the occupied territories achieved and what what has been given up by those who preferred to leave their native country rather than be disloyal to the Fatherland.

"The government's first duty is to see that the prisoners are released and that those who have been expelled may return. The fight for the elementary rights of humanity comes before all economic and material concerns. Germany has declared her readiness to assume most severe material sacrifices for the liberty of German subjects and will, but that liberty is for us not an object of negotiations for barter.

"It depends on the powers which have invaded our territory and on their allies by adhering to this idea to give peace to Germany, or bring about rejection of this peace all the consequences which would ensue with respect to the relations between peoples. We invite the German people to stand closely together in the days of dire moral and material strife which are to come. Only thus shall be frustrated all projects for dismemberment of the Reich, and the nation recover its honor, life and liberty, which is its imprescriptible right."

CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS IN GERMANY CURTAILED

Berlin, Sept. 26.—(By the A. P.)—A presidential decree has been issued curtailing a number of constitutional rights in Germany and conferring executive power in the minister of defense.

The decree, which is termed "a decree for the restoration of public security, was issued by President Ebert's name tonight.

Among the rights restricted by it are freedom of the press and the right of meeting. It also authorizes domiciliary searches and seizures

TO PROTECT MUNICH AGAINST INSURRECTION

Munich, Sept. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Dr. Von Kahr, former premier, was tonight appointed general commissioner for Bavaria, with full power to proclaim an exceptional state and adopt any other military or police measures to protect Munich against insurrection from reactionary or radical sources. The appointment follows upon the activities of the Hitler guards or other so-called patriotic leagues, who are mobilizing for a general review on Friday.

This official action is viewed as a purely local precionary measure, and is in no wise aimed at the central government.

The executive power passes into the hands of the general commissioner. His orders and decisions take precedence over those of all the other authorities, excepting judicial and administrative, and military courts. The commissioner may, if necessary, have recourse to armed force.

Appeals against his roders or decisions are forbidden, except with his authorization. The commissioner is empowered to make arrangements for the mantenance of public safety, to prescribe penalties for those who contravene his orders and to restrict the period in which individuals may reside in a district.

STRIKE ALONG WATER FRONT IN NEW ORLEANS

New Orlean, Sept. 26.—Accommodations for 500 dock workers will be provided on the former passenger steamship "Minnesota" which will be anchored off the naval station at Algiers, it was announced today by the New Orleans Steamship Association.

This arrangement was adopted to assure protection to workers who have taken the places of striking longshoremen, screwmen and marine transport men who yesterday were joined by cotton loaders and teamsters.

Peace reigned along the waterfront today, according to police reports, but several workers were attacked and beaten last night.

OKLAHOMA SOLONS TO HAVE RECOURSE TO THE COURTS

Were Prevented From Meeting or Even Caucusing by the Military Authorities—Have Promised Adjutant General Markham That There Would be No Immediate Attempt to Assemble Again in Defiance of Martial Law—May Bring Injunction Suit Against Governor Walton and National Guard Officers—Governor Has Decided to Extend Martial Law to Another County.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Undaunted by the result of the first skirmish with military forces of the state, members of the lower house of the Oklahoma legislature prepared tonight for the next move in their attempt to meet to consider the official acts of Governor J. C. Walton.

Despite the fact that they were dispersed when they gathered at noon today before the barred doors of the House chamber at the capitol, the legislators contended that the House formally was convened and that it now is in recess pending the call of the presiding officer.

A statement by representative W. D. McBee, a leader in the assembly move, declared that proceedings constituted a meeting of the House, notwithstanding its interruption by troops acting under orders of Governor Walton.

With the statement, Representative McBee made public what he declared to be the official journal of the House.

It detailed the brief action which terminated in the clearance of the capitol corridors by the military.

Prevented from meeting or even caucusing, the House members tonight planned their hopes for protection against the military authorities upon the efforts of a legal committee which is preparing to mark the next stage in the conflict.

That there would be no immediate attempt to assemble again in defiance of martial law regulations was the promise made late today by House leaders to Adjutant General Baird H. Markham. Observers predicted that the solons would await a court ruling before essaying another assembly.

Representative W. B. Disney, chairman of the legal committee, said tonight that the court proceedings could not get under way before morning. He refused to indicate what form the action might take or whether it would be instituted in the state supreme court or the federal court here.

It is expected, however, thatan injunction will be sought against Governor Walton, with the possibility that National Guard officers will be made parties to the suit.

Attorney General George F. Short, who will oppose the action in behalf of the state when the court battle begins, told newspaper men that several types of legal action might be filed. He added that he did not know what to expect.

The "Journal of the House," designed to show that the session was regularly called today and that it was dispersed, is expected to be made the basis for the suit.

The journal, written on stationary of the local hotel where the legislators make their headquarters, describes the proceedings as follows:

"Corridors of the Hall of Representatives.

"12 Noon, Sept. 26, 1923.

"Representative Charles S. Brice, ascertaining that sixty-six members of the house of representatives were present, called the house to order, at which time Colonel William S. Key intervened and commanded that the house of representatives disperse, after which he read his order from the governor of the state of Oklahoma, authorizing such command.

"Representative Stovall: 'Will you please explain the order, Colonel Key?'

"Colonel Key: 'The order which I have just read is self-explanatory.'

"Representative Stovall: 'You have the entire military force of the state at your command, do you?'

"Colonel Key: 'I refuse to answer the question.'

"Representative Disney: 'Did you state that you would not answer any questions?'

"Colonel Key: 'No, sir.'

"Representative Disney: 'Are you dispersing us as members of the house of representatives?'

"Colonel Key: 'Yes, sir.'

"Representative Disney: 'Very well, sir.'

"Colonel Key: 'Please do us the courtesy to move on.'

"Representative Boyer: 'Am I dispersed as a member of the legislature?'

"Colonel Key: 'I refuse to answer any individual questions. The orders here been very explicit.' (Turning) 'Major McCarty, please see that the room is cleared.'"

With rifles on their shoulders, two private stood before the doors of the house and the senate chambers. Officers wearing service revolvers stationed themselves at vantage points.

The hands of the clock swung to noon.

Suddenly above the noise arose a voice—that of Charles S. Brice, of McAlester, speaker pro tempore. It came from the rear of the crowd that pressed up to the armed barrier to the hall of the house.

"As it is noon the house is in session——" Brice began.

"You are commanded to disperse." This sharp command interrupted Brice and the crowd turned and saw Colonel W. S. Key, military commander of Oklahoma county, step to the speaker's side.

There was a shuffling of feet as the assembly moved forward to face the officer.

With upraised hand, Colonel Key shouted: "Stand where you are!"

Then his officers sprang into action to hold the crowd in place.

With a semblance of order restored, Colonel Key began reading an order forbidding the house members to convene.

"I, as a military commander of the District of Oklahoma county, forbid this attempted meeting and direct that you disperse immediately," he concluded.

Another order to disperse was rasped out by Colonel Key and officers began moving through the assembly repeating their chief's injunction. The crowd wavered, then broke and within five minutes the rotunda was deserted.

Guards made no effort to stay the demonstration until the throng pressed forward to meet the legislators. Then they ordered it to disband.

The house members went immediately to a downtown hotel, where an unofficial headquarters is maintained.

Within a short time a member of Colonel Key's staff arrived and instructed Representative McBee that no caucuses would be permitted. McBee assured the guard officer that there would be no attempt to hold either a caucus or assembly.

A score of Governor Walton's secret service operatives were scattered through the hotel. A guard captain also stationed there.

One of the governor's policemen arrested Campbell Russell, former chairman of the state corporation commission, and one of Walton's political enemies. It was charged that Russell had been circulating copies of a cartoon attacking Walton. He was booked at the police station on charges of disorderly conduct, and inciting to riot and was released immediately on bond of twenty dollars. Russell returned to the hotel.

When legislators appealed to Adjutant General Markham to have the state policemen removed from the hotel, declaring that they were being shadowed and intimidated by

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
31 Church Street Telephone 1062

"If you're out of patience, murder the clerk!" believes a well known local young man who waited so long for service in a hardware store Wednesday that he lost control of his temper and threw a monkey-wrench at the clerk, striking the latter on the leg. When the injured clerk attempted to get some light on the trouble he was given an abrupt answer and the prospective customer walked out and rode away on a bicycle. The clerk gave chase, to secure either an explanation or an apology but he returned to the establishment half an hour later and had received no satisfaction. There was some talk of consulting an attorney but the matter was finally dismissed, at least for the present.

The request made by the Clerks' Protective association that the stores of Willimantic close for a half holiday Thursday afternoon throughout the year with the exception of December, was not granted, at a meeting of the mercantile association held Wednesday evening in the chamber of commerce rooms. J. B. Fullerton presided at the session and Frank M. Lincoln was chosen secretary. When the motion on the closing of the stores was put before the meeting, which included about 30 local business men, James F. Bath and T. Frank Cunningham moved that the request be granted. Remarks were called for and John E. Brick, Fred D. Jordan, John C. Tracy, Philip Cohen and John F. Carr expressed themselves as being absolutely opposed to the plan. Various reasons were given for this attitude. The annual election of officers resulted as follows: President, Jeremiah E. Sullivan; vice president, Fred D. Jordan; secretary and treasurer, Lyndon Little. The officers were unanimously elected after their names had been presented by a nominating committee comprising T. Frank Cunningham, Harry W. Standish and Joseph Riordan. James B. Fullerton spoke on advertising, stating that some of the members had violated article seven of the by-laws by advertising in non-regular publications. Upon a motion made by Mr. Cunningham it was voted to place the Mansfield Agricultural fair catalogue on the list of constitutional advertising mediums.

Over one hundred were in attendance at an open meeting of Willimantic lodge, No. 214, Ancient Order, United Workmen, at Labor Union hall Tuesday, to accentuate the interest of the members in the organization and to secure new members. Judge John E. Fahey of Rockville and John Buckley of Hartford, both past grand masters of the state, were the speakers. Vocal selections were rendered by Misses Ruth Herrick and L. Monica McKeon and by Charles E. Jordan. Mr. Perkins of South Coventry gave a saxaphone solo. The meeting was followed by a luncheon and dancing.

Miss Alice Johnson was tendered a shower at the home of Miss Margaret M Ryan on Windham road, in honor of her approaching marriage with John Regan. Miss Johnson was presented a 23-piece tea set, a casserole and a cut glas swine set of beautiful design. The set was the gift of ten intimate friends. The Ryan home was handsomely decorated in pink and white and asters of the same colors. A buffet lunch of salad, sandwiches, olives, pickles, cake, coffee, ice cream and candy was served and an entertaining program was carried out. Others present were, Mrs. John Griffin and Misses Ethel Connor, Margaret Ronan, Anna Ronan, Ruby Belding, Blanche Hallahn, Helen Hallahan Ruth Russ, Elizabeth Flynn and Margaret Ryan.

Mrs. R. G. Remington won from Mrs. George M. Graves in the semi-finals five and three, in the women's golf tournament in progress at the links of the Willimantic Country club. The next match in the semi-finals will be between Mrs. Don Carlis and Mrs. John F. Ahern. The winner of this match will play Mrs. Everett Herrington and the victor in this game will play Mrs. Remington for the golf championship.

Jabez Maine, 79, died Wednesday morning at five o'clock at the town house on West Main street after a long illness. The deceased is survived by several nieces and a nephew.

Daylight saving time comes and daylight saving time goes, but the city of Willimantic remains the same and unaffected. Standard time will come back into its own September 30 and the fall schedule of passenger trains will go into effect Sunday morning at 12.02 a. m. All of the trains will then leave an hour later than at present. Train No. 121 leaving Putnam at 5 a. m. and Willimantic at 5 a. m. for Hartford, starting Monday will be made up in this city, leaving for Hartford at 7 a. m. and continue on to Waterbury. Train No. 7019 will leave Boston at 11 a. m., arriving in Willimantic, its new terminal, at 1.30 p. m.

Henry Couchon of the lower village, fractured two ribs and sustained slight cuts about the face and hands, Tuesday evening, when he tripped and fell on a narrow stone stairway leading onto the pedestrians' walk of the bridge over Willimantic river, at the bottom of Jillso ahill, on Windham road. Couchon was said to be on his way home after attending the weekly drill of Company L, 169th Connecticut Infantry at the state armory. He was assisted to the office of Dr. Charles A. Jenkins by a companion and Officer Laramee of the local police force. Couchon was later taken to his home where he will be confined for several days.

One case of typhoid fever was reported from Willimantic to the state board of health bureau of preventable disease for the week ending Monday, September 24. Other cases of communicable diseases in Windham county included one case of scarlet fever at Danielson and one case of whooping cough in Thompson. One case of whooping cough was also reported from the town of Lebanon.

The resignation of David L. Mason as treasurer and vestryman was received and accepted with much regret, at a special meeting of the members of St. Paul's Episcopal church, held in the parish house. Mr. Mason was given a hearty vote of thanks. Frank M. Lincoln was unanimously elected his successor.

Another meeting of Lions' club organizers was held in a local tea room Wednesday noon. Among those present were Henry McKinnon of Providence, R. I., field organizer, and Ralph W. Fistered of New London with a delegation of New London Lions. Field Director McKinnon gave a fine talk. No action was taken Wednesday toward the organization of a club here. A similar meeting will be held here Monday at the same hour. In the meantime the sponsors of the movement here will interview business and professional men favorable to the organization of a local club with the idea in view of having them in attendance at Monday's meeting. The local sponsors will speak and the field director will deliver an address.

Herman E. Prince came to this city last August and purchased the store at 406 Main street. Business was not as it should have been and last week Prince disappeared to the concern of a number of creditors. There is some mystery connected with the leave-taking as Prince cannot be located. One of the creditors has instituted civil proceeding against Prince but the papers have not been served yet.

Mrs. Minnie Smith entertained the W. B. A. of the Maccabees at the second in a series of whists, at her home, Tuesday evening. Four tables were in play. Later cakes and coffee were served. The first prize was won by Miss Mary Vegard and Mrs. Lina Hoffman had second honors. Mrs. Aldea Parent took third honors. A social time follows. The proceeds are for a fund for free nursing services for members of the organization. The third in the series is to be held at the home of Mary Brooks.

Rumors have had it that the Willimantic mills of the American Thread company would be affected by the plans of the company to erect a $2,000,000 plant at Dalton, Georgia, but an announcement to the contrary was made Wednesday when a local official of the company emphatically denied the rumor. Another report had been circulated in Holyoke that the company intends to devote the new mill to the manufacture of card-ed yarn which is now made at the Hadley division of the Merrick mills there. Holyoke officials have also denied their knowledge of any such plans being made and they do not anticipate that the Holyoke mills will be affected by the new plans in the south.

Freight business at the local station of the New Haven railroad is in fine condition at present, it was stated Wednesday. With the terminal of four divisions of the system, Air Line, Providence, Hartford and Midland located here, besides the through trains, much of the transferring of freight has to be done at the local freight house. Two switching crews are engaged during the day, one crew working from 8.15 to 4.15 p. m., and the other from 3:30 p. m. to 5.30 p. m.

Basing his statement on the fact that he is the only man in Willimantic who can rightfully answer to the name of Andrew Johnson and that has never been before the court, Andrew Johnson of 99 Oak street wishes it known that he is not the man who was convicted in the local police court Monday morning for intoxication. According to the police records, however, the man convicted in the police court Monday morning gave his name as Andrew Johnson and answered to that name when the charge was read.

SLATER HALL COURSE FOR PRESENT SEASON

For the Slater hall music course of the 1923-24 season, the committee, H. A. Tirrell and Archibald Mitchell, 4th, has arranged an unusually attractive and well balanced series, which will appeal to lovers of fine music.

The opening number will be on Nov. 2 when Jeanne Gordon, one of the first string contraltos of the Metropolitan Opera company, will be heard in a recital. Miss Gordon has sung all the leading contralto roles on the Metropolitan sage during the last two years and has a nation-wide fame.

On Jan. 11 Percy Grainger, the composer pianist, will appear. Mr. Grainger was to have played here the previous season but due to the illness of his mohter it was necessary to cancel the engagement. His ability as a pianist is too well known to need any explanatory comment.

For Feb. 6 a joint recital has been arranged, which will serve to introduce Olive Marshall, one of the foremost oratorio sopranos of the country, and Jean Bedett solo 'cellist of the Boston Symphony orchestra. For two years Miss Marshall has been the soloist of the New York Oratorio society, conducted by Albert Stoessel.

Erna Rubenstein, the remarkable 16-year-old Bavarian violinist, will be the final attraction of the course, coming on March 7. Miss Rubenstein was brought out by Mengelberg, the famous Amsterdam conductor, two years ago and is considered by many to be the superior of Morini, the young girl violinist who was heard at Slater hall two seasons ago. She had a very successful tour in this country last winter and was acclaimed as a prodigy.

It was the intention of the committee to bring Hascha Heifetz, the celebrated violinist, here this season, but owing to the lack of prompt response on the part of the subscribers to the series, it was necessary to let the option on his services expire. It is hoped to bring this world famed artist to Norwich at some future time.

The price for the course tickets will be $6. Single tickets will be $2 and $3. Subscribers may apply at Cranston company's store. It is considered that the coming attractions compares favorably with the high standard maintained in previous Slater hall courses. All the artists are of the first rank and their programmes promise to give local audiences an artistic musical treat.

The Strand.

A real super-program of B. F. Keith vaudeville and photoplay will be seen at the Strand for the last half of this week.

The feature attraction is Charlie Hart's Lunatic Chinks who present a comedy entitled Fun in a Chinese Laundry, "an old-time" variety offering which includes three knockabout midgets. It is one of the fastest and funniest acts of its kind. This act was the late feature of the New York Hippodrome.

Bert Rule and John O'Brien, the singing composer and the singing comedian, offer a fest of fun and melody. They are the composers of Have a Smile for Everyone You Meet; That's How I Believe in You; An Irishman's Dream; Ireland Must Be a Garden, and Gates of Gladness.

The photoplay is The Speed King. It's a comedy-dramatic cocktail with a twenty-mule kick. Kick? Yes Bo! —it's got the wallop that wins the hand-stitched ice-cream freezer. The recipe? Oh yeah. You take equal parts of spontaneous laughs, delightful romance, smashing drama, thundering thrills, sizzling action and breathless suspense and mix them in a six-reel cocktail shaker. Shake till bubbling and serve on the screen! Such is the feature. The Speed King, with Richard Talmadge at the Strand.

Breed Theatre.

One of the most entertaining plays ever written about the stage and its people is Success. A film version of this Broadway hit is booked for the Breed theatre for today, Friday and Saturday with Brandon Tynan, the well known actor, in the role which he created on the stage several years ago.

The story is concerned with the life of Barry Carleton, a famous actor, who loses his prestige through dissipation. He refuses to accept minor roles, and he drifts apart from his family and friends. When he does put in an appearance, it is at a time when his presence counts for a good deal. A reconciliation with his wife and daughter takes place under unusual circumstances.

Mr. Tynan enacts the difficult part of Carleton with much sympathy and real understanding. He receives able support from the lovely Mary Astor as his daughter; from Naomi Childers as his wife; and from Dore Davidson as a theatre manager. Others in that splendid cast are Lionel Adams, Stanley Ridges, Robert Les Kipling, Billy Quirk, Helen Macka, and Gay Pendleton.

The photoplay, a Ralph Ince production, is presented by Murray W. Garsson and is released by Metro Pictures Corporation. It was written and adapted by Adeline Leitzbach and Theodore A. Liebler, Jr.

Opening of Broadway Theatre.

Thrilling rescues at sea, terrific storms, said to equal in realism nature in her angriest mood, an unusually appealing love theme—these are the principal features of Homeward Bound, a new Paramount picture starring Thomas Meighan, which will be on view at Broadway theatre for four days beginning Sunday next. Lila Lee, who played opposite Mr. Meighan in The Ne'er-Do-Well, is his leading woman in this new screen offering.

Mr. Meighan is a seaman in this delightfully crisp story, while Miss Lee is the daughter of a ship owner who unaccountably detests the sailor in his employ. Of course, the finish, although surprising, is pleasing to the spectator.

The supporting players are well known screen artists, all of whom add value to the picture as pure entertainment. These include, among others, Charles Abbe, William T. Carleton, Gus Weinberg, Mande Turner Gordon and Cyril Ring. The production was directed by Ralph Ince and the story was written by Peter B. Kyne, under the title, The Light to Leeward.

A comedy and news will be the short subjects on this opening program.

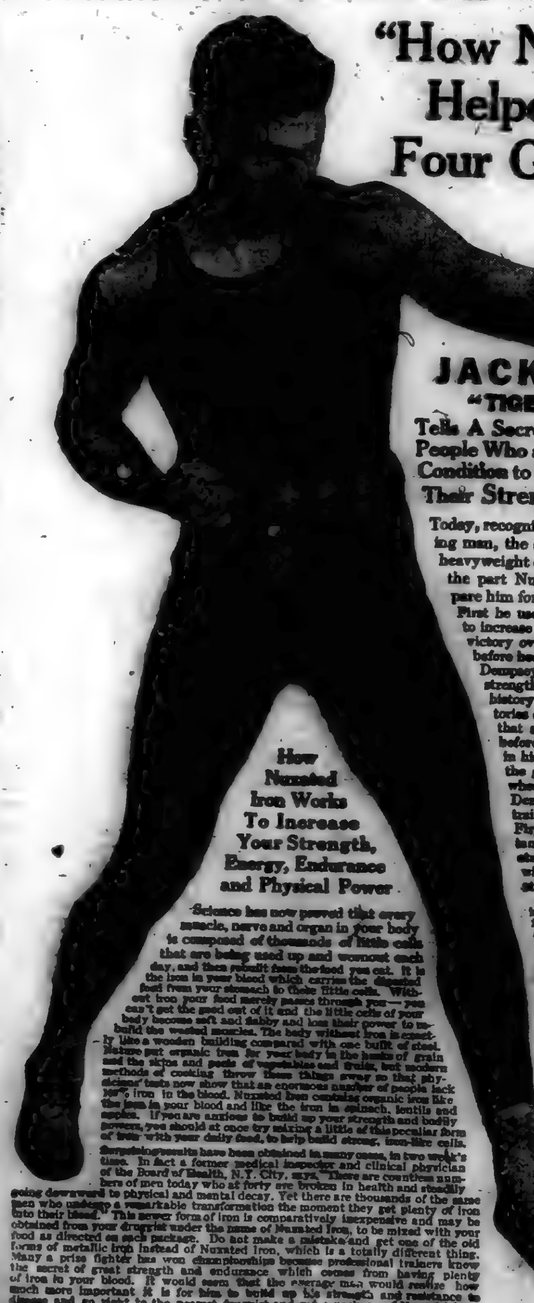
"How Nuxated Iron Helped Me Win Four Great Battles"



JACK DEMPSEY
"TIGER OF THE RING"
Tells A Secret Of His Training—Advises People Who are in a Weakened, Rundown Condition to Use Nuxated Iron to increase Their Strength, Vigor and Vitality.

Today, recognized as the physical superior of any living man, the superman of the age, Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, explains below the part Nuxated Iron played in helping to prepare him for the four supreme tests of his career.

First he used Nuxated Iron as a part of his training to increase his strength and endurance in his decisive victory over the mighty Willard who had never before been knocked from his feet. In this battle Dempsey displayed a dynamic, overwhelming strength and power never before known in the history of the ring; then in his phenomenal victories over Carpentier and Gibbons he displayed that same indomitable force and nerve never before seen in any human being. Now again in his victory over Firpo, he has demonstrated the great advantage possessed by an athlete whose blood is rich in iron. The fact that Dempsey took Nuxated Iron as part of his training for Willard, Carpentier, Gibbons and Firpo is convincing evidence of the importance he attaches to keeping his blood rich in strength-giving iron, and the high regard in which he holds Nuxated Iron as a master strength and blood builder.

In a statement made at his headquarters after his last fight Jack Dempsey said: "In training for the Firpo fight I felt that the basis for all my other work was to be sure that I would possess that stamina and power that is impossible unless one's blood is rich in iron. I took Nuxated Iron faithfully all through my training for the Firpo battle as I felt that it had helped put me in superb condition for Willard, Carpentier and Gibbons. The result with Firpo proves that I possessed all my old time strength and punch." It should occur to every thinking person that if a man as physically fit as Dempsey should consider it advisable to take Nuxated Iron, in training for his battles, how much more important it is for the average man or woman to see that there is no lack of iron in the blood. Thousands of men and women are weak, rundown and old before their time, their nerve force shattered and their health wrecked simply because they have allowed worry, overwork, grief, constant nervous strain and excesses of various kinds to sap the iron from their blood. In such cases one may suffer from terrible physical torture such as great nervous irritability, heart palpitations, indigestion, splitting headaches, pains across the back, dizziness, sleeplessness and extreme weakness. In such cases it is often worse than foolish to take mere stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs. What you need is something to put more iron in your blood. This is most effectively accomplished by the free use of Nuxated Iron.

How Nuxated Iron Works To Increase Your Strength, Energy, Endurance and Physical Power

Science has now proved that every muscle, nerve and organ in your body is composed of thousands of little cells that are being used up and renewed each day, and then rebuilt from the food you eat. It is the iron in your blood which carries the digested food from your stomach to these little cells. Without iron from your food merely passes through you—you can't get the good out of it and the little cells of your body become soft and flabby and lose their power to rebuild the wasted muscles. The body without iron is exactly like a wooden building compared with one built of steel. Nature put organic iron for your body in the hands of grain and the spina and seeds of vegetables and fruits, but modern methods of cooking throw these things away so that physicians' tests now show that an enormous number of people lack their iron in the blood. Nuxated Iron combining organic iron like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. If you are anxious to build up your strength and bodily powers, you should at once try mixing a little of this peculiar form of iron with your daily food, to help build strong, iron-like cells.

Surprising results have been obtained in many cases, in two weeks' time. In fact a former medical inspector and clinical physician of the Board of Health, N.Y. City, says, "There are countless numbers of men today who at forty are broken in health and steadily going downward to physical and mental decay. Yet there are thousands of the same men who undergo a remarkable transformation the moment they get plenty of iron into their blood." This newer form of iron is comparatively inexpensive and may be obtained from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron, to be mixed with your food as directed on each package. Do not make a mistake and get one of the old forms of metallic iron instead of Nuxated Iron, which is a totally different thing. Many a prize fighter has won championships because professional trainers know the secret of great strength and endurance which comes from having plenty of iron in your blood. It would seem that the average man would realize how much more important it is for him to build up his strength and resistance to disease and go right to the nearest druggist and get a package of Nuxated Iron.

DANIELSON

A special borough meeting Wednesday evening voted to authorize the warden and court of burgesses to draw up certain ordinances for the regulation of traffic. There were some objections and the question of legality was raised, but the meeting finally approved the matter. Warden W. A. Burrows explained that it was his intention to name a committee from the burgesses and the chamber of commerce and one selectman, to confer and draw up the proposed regulations with the idea of making them as effective as possible without creating too much restraint. The meeting voted to authorize the warden and burgesses to pipe a new supply of water from a spring to a house on the borough farm where the water has gone bad, the cost to be approximately $400. On the clause of the warning relative to selling the borough farm, a vote for indefinite postponement was recorded. It is explained that the state is on the verge of freeing the streams of Connecticut from polluting matter and that later the borough will need the farm land for the expansion of its sewerage beds.

The first event of its kind to be held in Danielson—a registered tournament of the Connecticut Trapshooters' association—is scheduled by the Danielson Rod and Gun club for Saturday, Oct. 6, at their grounds on the West Side, and will attract crack shots from many points in the state and from other states. The tournament is authorized by the Amateur Trap-shooting association, with headquarters in Chicago, and the scores made will be included in the official records. The events will include a 100 sixteen yard affair, a special distance handicap and a special double event. Shooters are to be classified according to the 1922-23 average or known ability into five classes. This tournament will be one of the most interesting events arranged by the club since its organization and will attract a large gallery in addition to those who will participate in the events.

Wednesday afternoon at his home in Brooklyn, many friends gathered to attend the funeral of Frank B. Van Brunt, the service being conducted by Rev. George L. Browne of Washington, Conn. There were many beautiful flowers. The bearers were L. H. Palmer of Manchester, Conn., H. M. Mays of Warwick, R. I., Thomas Ray of Holyoke, Fred Miller, Judge Oscar F. Atwood and Willis Kenyon of Brooklyn. Burial was in the South cemetery at Brooklyn. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

On account of the demand for tickets, this demand so great that an overflow attendance appeared imminent; Promoter Frank Barber, of the Casino Amusement company, completed arrangements Wednesday for the installation of 400 additional seats in the town hall for the boxing exhibition scheduled for this week. Mr. Barber and a contractor have worked out a special arrangement for the placing of these seats, all of which will command an excellent view of the arena. With the extra seats in place Manager Barber feels that all who desire to see the bouts can be accommodated.

Electors visiting the polls next Monday will find a portion of their ballot set aside for voting upon a constitutional amendment. One may vote Yes or vote No. Yes will approve. There is no explanation on the sample ballots now in circulation here of the nature or purpose of the amendment and only a few voters appear to know what it is all about. In explanation it may be stated briefly that the amendment proposes that the governor be given the right to veto any item in an appropriation bill without vetoing the entire bill. It is generally held that this power should be conferred upon the governor in order that he may be in a position to check palpably unworthy or excessive appropriations.

Once more the menace the one-way state highway bridge at Central Village is to the traveling public is brought to mind by the narrow escape of a local man from being caught in a bad jam there when a big car bearing a New York registration came rushing toward the bridge at top speed. The Danielson man had barely time to stop his machine just before going on the bridge and swing to one side, that the other car might get by. Meeting on the bridge, the cars could not possibly avoid a collision. This particular bridge is a real danger spot on the route between Danielson and Norwich and there is an ever-increasing demand that it be replaced by a wider structure or enlarged that so two machines can safely pass upon it. Being on a trunk line highway makes it a particular menace and an invitation to accidents.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Wood are entertaining Mrs. Linwood M. Tillinghast of LaCrescenta, Cal.

Rally day exercises are to be held in the Congregational Sunday school next Sunday.

Excavating for the sewer in Mechanic street, where the depth of the ditch is as great as at any point in the borough system, is proceeding slowly, as few men can be worked to advantage at the same time.

Mrs. F. A. Jacobs of Broad street was reported Wednesday as seriously ill in a Boston hospital.

Another large crowd gathered at the carnival grounds off Franklin and Dyer streets Wednesday evening and kept the various attractions busy.

Mrs. W. H. Judson left Wednesday for a visit with relatives in Worcester.

A number of Danielson people motored to Rockville Wednesday to attend the fair.

The borough officials have approved plans of the selectmen for the laying of curbing in Reynolds street, near Davis park.

Hunters are checking up the days in anticipation of the opening of the hunting season Oct. 5.

Killingly town court officials will be at Putnam tomorrow for the conference with Chief Justice George W. Wheeler over law enforcement in Windham county.

The ballot boxes will close at 2 p. m. Monday at the town election, and the business meeting will be opened immediately thereafter.

PUTNAM

The public will not be admitted to the conference between Chief Justice George W. Wheeler, of the supreme court, and law enforcement officers of the county when they meet in the superior court room, Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock. This was made known Wednesday, but, it was said, a statement likely will be issued for publication following the conference. The hope was expressed Wednesday that all those who have been invited will attend the conference, the reasons for which are set forth in the following letter addressed by Chief Justice Wheeler to those invited to attend:

"My dear Sir: I desire to have you meet with the judges and prosecutors of the city and town courts, the trial justices and the grand jurors of Windham county, in the superior court room in the court house in Putnam, Friday, Sept. 28th, at 1 p. m. (standard time) for the purpose of conferring with a view to securing a better and more harmonious enforcement of the law in aid of the 18th amendment. I shall especially appreciate your presence on this occasion. The exchange of views will, I trust, result in a common understanding so that all law enforcing officials shall act with a common purpose and in the most effective manner, to the end that we may do our part towards checking the growing disrespect for law.

Very sincerely yours,
GEORGE W. WHEELER,
Chief Justice.

Lionel H. Charron is chairman of a committee of argill council, K of C., and K. H. Cotter, Michael White, Willis Carroll and John O'Neil are other members to arrange for a ladies' night, the date set being October 12, Columbus day. The affair is to be held in Union hall and the preparations for it are on an elaborate scale. During the evening lunch is to be served in the K. of C. rooms.

What one with a tendency toward the use of picturesque expressions would describe as a whale of a cement mixing machine was being made ready for use, Wednesday, out at the head of Killingly avenue, where grading for the new state highway has been underway the past two weeks. The monster machine outclasses anything of its kind seen in this territory and its capacity will allow of speeding up the laying of the cement roadway once that portion of the work is under way.

Principal L. F. Battey of Putnam's evening schools for several years past states that the school will open this year October 8. An effort will be made to create widespread interest in this school and to enroll a large number of students. The evening school has splendidly demonstrated its great value to those whose opportunities for education have been limited, and especially good work has been done in teaching non-English speaking people something of this nation's language and its principles of government.

The lunch room which has been conducted on South Main street for many weeks in the interest of former employes of the Manhasset mills who have been away from their work for more than twenty weeks has been closed. This is about the only recent development of interest in connection with this labor trouble. The situation in so far as the relations between the mill company and its former employes is concerned remains unchanged. The mill is operating as usual.

Putnam people are now drinking filtered water from the recently completed filteration plant at Harrisville. The fine project undertaken and executed at great expense has given the people of this city assurance of pure water. The system installed by the city, which owns the water works plant, is one of the most modern, and is approved as the best by authorities.

Interest was aroused here Wednesday through the announcement that similar action may be taken in Windham county to that in Hartford county, where consideration is being given a proposal to have the county bring suit against the various towns within for the return of these towns' share of the liquor license money in 1918-1919, when prohibition became effective and all liquor licenses were suspended after they had been in force about eight months, though issued and paid for on the basis of a full year.

Under a recent ruling of the supreme court of the state the various counties of the state are liable for refunds on all unexpired liquor fees which were nullified by prohibition. The ruling also distinctly upholds the claims of former saloonkeepers for reimbursement, and in view of that former liquor dealers here are going to be in line to get a return from the county, to which their license fees were paid, though the fees subsequently were divided between the county, the state and the towns in which licenses were issued. Putnam, Windham and Sterling will figure in the rebate claims when action is taken to have the county make the refund, but it will be encumbent upon the county to recover from the towns and from the state in making the settlement. There were about twenty licensed places in Putnam at the time prohibition became effective. Of the amount paid in for licenses 65 per cent. went to the town, 25 per cent. to the county and 10 per cent. to the state.

Among the things that hunters will do well to remember when the open season on game birds comes in October 8 is the restriction against shooting quail or Hungarian partridge. These game birds may not be legally killed or taken until October 8, 1925. There are numbers of flocks of quail in this territory this fall and the temptation to shoot into them will be great, though detection will mean a heavy penalty for any hunter The season is closed on them for the next two years.

Judge Marvin will preside when the superior court resumes its sessions here Friday morning, when there will be short calendar, the trial of uncontested divorces and assignment of cases, among other things.

Leagues of women voters in towns hereabouts have meetings scheduled for this week and among other things, will discuss the town elections coming on Monday of next week.

At the Bradley theater Wednesday afternoon a special matinee for women brought out a large number to be entertained by Clayton, The Mystic, who has proved of such great interest here.

Machinery for the mill of the Adams Manufacturing company continues to arrive here about every day, from North Scituate, R. I., and is being set up and made ready for operation. Motor trucks are being used in hauling the machines from Rhode Island to this city.

Violators of the dog law are about to be brought into the limelight again, it was stated here Wednesday. Roaming and unlicensed dogs are being reported in this territory.

Progress has been made with the construction of the lower section of the Memorial chapel at Grove street cemetery. Much material is on hand for the work still to be done.

A great portion of the southbound motor travel out of Putnam is now moving through South Main and Park streets to Attawaugan, on account of the road building work being done on Killingly avenue.

JEWETT CITY

The vital statistics for the town of Griswold for August show: One marriage, Leonard McBreome and Elizabeth A. Shaw.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich will hold his September clinic at 10.30 Friday in the Red Cross rooms.

Some local potato raisers are already harvesting their crop. Potatoes are reported from all sections of the town, as being extra large and a good yield. The crop was raised this year with minimum cost on account of its being an off year for potato bugs of the Colorado beetle breed. A small green bug early in the season ate little holes in the leaves, but did no appreciable damage. Last fall a party went down from here to Preston Plains to see a modern potato digger in operation. They reported never seeing rows as long. Almost a quarter of mile straight-away. Daniel Morgan, a half mile south of the town, has rows this year that beat those of Preston Plains by 100 feet. Many will go to see the digging operation.

W. H. Brown picked six of his Hale peaches Wednesday that weighed three pounds. Not an unusual thing to note; each one weighed eight ounces.

This distance from Jewett City to Wallingford via Colchester and Middletown is 126 miles not 116.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Benjamin are the guests of Mr. Benjamin's sister, Mrs. George E. Willcox in Edgewood, R. I.

There is a garden within the limits of the borough where a handsome cock pheasant in full fall plumage, takes his rations daily with the hens.

The town of Griswold is legally required to furnish high school education to such pupils as desire, and are qualified for same. Last year 42 students went from here to Norwich Free Academy or to Plainfield High school, at an expense to this town of $3,848.48 for tuition, and $1,847.50 for trolley fare. The town has received from the state, to apply to this expense, $2,818.10, making the actual cost to the town for high school education $2,677.88.

The proportions of an item commonly almost overlooked, have reached a sizeable figure when it is seen that pupil transportation from districts having no school to districts that do, cost the town $3,065. The school committee declare that in terms merely of dollars and cents this is a saving as a much larger amount would have been required to keep all the schools of the town open. Some districts have had but one lone little pupil.

The matter of changing the system of Griswold's educational plan, hung in the balance for some time. The running expense list prepared by E. E. Gilbert, William McNicol and W. B. Montgomery, for the first year of no districts, and with town control, is of interest:

High school transportation, $1,847.50; school supplies $3112.42; building material and fuel, $1775.61; transportation, $2665; Jewett City Water Co., $50; truant officer $75; high school tuition $2648.46; expenses for nurse $91.23; insurance $1251.50; express and cartage $65.46; school enumeration $54.65; graduation expenses $42.88; library grant $110; interest on loan $617.40; repairs to school building $1230.16; school board expenses $129.41; lights $36.49; telephone service, $50.39; teachers' salaries $32,880.16; total $48,742.68.

As a result of the three days' rain, the local ponds and streams are recording a slight raise in water level. It is estimated that the Jewett City reservoir lost from 100,000 to 126,000 gallons of water as the result of the hydrant break Monday—yet the supply is unimpaired.

Stella Jayquit, 10, of 60 Slater avenue, jumped on to the wet wash truck as it was passing on the avenue early Wednesday evening. After riding a way, she jumped off and was thrown to the street. The girl was picked up and hurried to Dr. F. E. Rainville's office, where he dressed a number of bad cuts on her face and hands. The driver said he did not know that she was on the machine. The crowd that gathered reported the child as being run over. Her injuries are not serious.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Favored by a Fairy.

One day as Little Jack Rabbit entered a deep forest, he heard a bird singing in the treetops:

"Here is where the fairies dwell,
Far from human eyes.
Here they dance and play and sing
Safe from rude surprise."

And the next minute a half horse-chestnut lined with damask rose

leaves, mounted on four ivy-berry wheels and drawn by four shining beetles came by. Leaning back upon a moss cushion sat a little fairy fanning herself with a fly's wing. At the sight of the little bunny boy, however, she reined in her beetle steed and gathering up her crimson satin dress, jumped from the carriage.

Why do you intrude in Fairy Dell?" she asked. "Don't you know that we fairies dislike to be seen by those who live in the great busy world.

"I'm very sorry," replied Little Jack Rabbit, "but I'm a traveler from the dear Old Bramble Patch."

When the fairy heard that, she said:

"Are you indeed the son of Lucy Love, the pretty lady bunny?" she inquired. Then, calling a yellow butterfly, she commanded him to show the bunny boy to her palace.

"I would take you in my carriage, but there's only room for your big toe!" she laughed, whipping up her beetle horses.

On reaching her palace, the little bunny boy found her resting on a couch of real forest velvet covered with an orange-colored shawl. He was almost afraid to move for fear of bumping the chandelier for he felt like a giant within her tiny palace.

Pretty soon a silvery voice was heard outside and a little fairy came gliding down a staircase of woodbine.

"Come with me to the waterfall," she said, turning to Little Jack Rabbit. "We will gather some checkerberries for the Fairy Queen." She with a low bow to the Queen, he followed the fairy until they came to the waterfall. He watched her cross the bridge which a big black spider had stretched over to the other side, but he didn't cross over that way. Oh, my no! If he had, I fear he would have broken the spider's bridge in two. He just jumped across the brook and helped the little fairy pick the red berries for the Fairy Queen, from which she made wonderful jam.

When he had gathered almost a quart, he picked up the little fairy and jumped back, for by this time the big black spider had closed the entrance of the bridge with a hundred tiny ropes, no one being allowed to use the bridge after sun-down. You see, the big black spider was the bridge keeper for the Fairy Queen.

On reaching the palace, the Queen said to him:

"I will give you a drink of my magic checkerberry wine to make you as tiny as a fairy." And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

CONTINUE GOOD GOVERNMENT.

Next Monday is town election day, the opportunity for the townspeople to give their endorsement to good government and to say with emphasis that they want it continued. The election means the selection of those who will administer the affairs of the town for the next two years, the filling of those responsible offices of selectmen, assessors, board of relief, town clerk and treasurer, collector of taxes, registrars and school committeemen.

Because of the endorsement of their fitness by the respective party caucuses and the political understanding whereby nomination is equivalent to election the contest centers about the selectmen, assessors and board of relief chiefly, offices that call for men of ability and known men who can be depended upon to insist upon a sound and economical administration of the town's affairs and who can be relied upon to devote their efforts to the best interests of the community at all times.

Admirably equipped are the candidates which have been placed on the republican ticket as printed above. They possess the qualifications and have had the experience that deserves indorsement. Good government and the best interests of the taxpayers has been and will continue to be their policy. That is what Norwich has been getting and that is what Norwich wants continued. The kind of an administration that has been able to offer a reduced tax under existing conditions for the actual running of the town should not be disturbed, and it will not be if the members of the republican party and the independent voters who pride themselves in backing good government get to the polls and do their duty on election day.

SLIPPERY LEAVES.

In the city of Pittsfield a serious rear-end collision between trolley cars, in which many were injured and four were sent to the hospital, occurred as the result of what the motorman on the rear car believes was the failure of the brakes to hold because of leaves on the track.

This is one reminder of the fact that we have reached the season of the year when leaves, especially after a rain, are bound to be a source of danger for the automobile as well as the trolley car.

Wet leaves furnish a slippery rail and a slippery pavement. Cars skid along them regardless of the brakes. Many are the instances where similar accidents have occurred and where dangerous conditions have been created for rubber-tired vehicles, and each and every one of them gives emphasis to the need of high grade rail. Cars cannot be operated under such conditions as if there was an excellent rail. Machines cannot be so driven as if there were no wet leaves to be encountered. Speed must be regulated in keeping with the conditions that are visible and the danger which is known to be involved where slippery surfaces must be negotiated.

There's a warning for many in the Pittsfield accident. One such is enough. But will it stand alone?

WELL OUT OF IT.

No real indication has been given that Asia Minor intends to settle down to peaceful pursuits. Evidence to the contrary was manifested when the Turkish nationalists set up their government and refused to be subjugated. They have been victorious and having regained what they had been told was lost it will not be surprising if they insist upon going further in their own good time.

Just now attention is being directed to the situation in Syria where French, in Cheadead, where the Greeks are preparing to go on the offensive and where it is possible [illegible] keep up to 10 miles away from the present, meaning the abandonment of the city of Aleppo to the Turks. What the outcome will be is problematical but it may mean the gradual regaining of that territory which was taken away from the Turks. Whatever it is it seems to threaten complications in the future for those involved in that region.

All this is of particular interest to this country because of the fact that there was great anxiety on the part of Europe to have the United States assume the mandate of Armenia. France, it will be remembered, holds the mandate over Syria and Great Britain over Palestine and Mesopotamia. There is a spirit of unrest evident from most all that territory and there is no little responsibility involved in restraining it in one way or another.

When the effort was made to get the United States into a similar position it was realized that it was no place for Uncle Sam and he frankly said so. Dealing with conditions which are certain to arise in that region far outside of our sphere of influence is something we have no desire to assume. The United States is well out of any such position.

LIQUOR SMUGGLING.

Fighting the smuggler is no easy task, regardless of the commodity that is involved. That quantities of liquor have been brought over the Canadian border is no secret. Whether it is possible to bring about cooperation between this country and Canada in checking it remains to be seen. Efforts to that end are under way and a conference between the officials of the two countries will be held before winter.

Whatever may be the sentiment of some that Canada is not interested is not borne out by the Ottawa Citizen when it says: "When the conferences are held, Canada should be prepared to cooperate wholeheartedly with the United States in suppressing the lawless traffic in liquor. It is operated by a criminal element and the law-abiding citizens of Canada are opposed to it. The maintenance of smuggling coves in this dominion as operating bases against the prohibition law of the United States is calculated to undermine the credit of Canada."

There is no attempt on the part of this government to shift the responsibility of enforcing our laws upon Canada. We must meet that requirement but even the Canadians are conscious of the need of opposing the operations of those who are using the dominion as the base from which to fight the laws of the United States.

Cooperation in opposing lawless elements of that character simply means frustrating those who would be quick to disregard Canadian law under like circumstances. What is being sought by this government from Canada is no different than that which is asked of Great Britain concerning the twelve-mile limit for searching rum runners. There is a chance for both to help, but the existence of a chance doesn't always insure the cooperation.

BAD DISPLAY OF JUDGMENT.

When judges are named for the purpose of conducting a race, according to certain rules it is to be expected that they will exercise judgment in the administration of their duties. The importance of this is brought to attention in connection with the international balloon race where five lives were lost because the judges insisted that the race must go on regardless of the dangerous weather conditions which were threatening, if not actually prevailing.

For the judges to insist that the race could not be postponed under the rules was to admit that it was necessary to send five men to their death, when as a matter of fact it cannot be conceived that any international contest would be surrounded by any such provisions. It is to be expected that judgment will be exercised concerning conditions, even though they be strict, quite the same as regards qualifications and accomplishments of the contestants.

Forcing the balloons that were not built to withstand any such electrical storm as they were made to take off in directly jeopardised the lives of the pilots and their assistants. Conditions were most unfavorable and the fact that lightning struck two or more of the balloons and the storm forced down others and made a fizzle of the race only serves to emphasize the poor judgment that was exercised by the judges. Whatever may be accomplished by such balloon races in the way of training men in the navigation of the air, results of the contest are such that no such interpretation of the rules as was given in this month's race should ever be tolerated again. It was a case where the judges forced the contestants to defy elements for which they were in no way prepared.

FORMER NORWICH BOY'S TRIP THROUGH EUROPE.

Dr. William Murray Good of Waterbury, son of Patrick Good of Everett street, and a graduate of the Academy has recently returned from a trip to Europe for study.

Concerning his trip he has the following to say to the Waterbury Republican:

Night life in Vienna is a thing of the past. The once gay city where so many intrigues in fact and fiction were staged might just as well be Fluteville after 10 p. m. At that hour the doors of all the public places, apartment houses and small hotels are closed. At 11 o'clock the trolley cars stop running. Midnight, which once saw the city awakened to a whirl of pleasure, now finds it as dark as the hearts of the war stricken Viennese, according to Dr. William Murray Good of this city who has recently returned from a several weeks' stay there during which time he studied and observed in Austria's most famous hospitals.

Dr. Good says, however, that while Vienna is no longer a gay city in any sense of the word, there is a contentment there which is not apparent in the capitals of the other European countries affected by the war. Although theirs is the principal city in a vanquished country, the Viennese do not seem to be suffering from the unrest which is upheaving the greater part of the continent. They are poor, very poor. He saw more crippled soldiers with steel arms and legs, more underfed children and more general poverty there than in the other countries he visited. But he says that the people seem to be content in the thought that they are working to regain for Austria her old position of importance. They are trying to forget their sadness in work. With politics they are not concerned at all. Although one gets the general impression that while the majority of the people would prefer to have the monarchy restored, they do not seem to be unhappy under republican rule. While the kronen is at present very low in value it is stabilized so they are enabled to do more with it than the Germans who find it impossible to cope with the ever changing value of the mark.

Dr. Good was one of 40 eye, ear, nose and throat specialists who sailed on the Rotterdam for Vienna to study at the hospitals and observe in the clinics which have become famous all over the world. These clinics, Dr. Good says, are still the best in the world. Vienna is the home of eye, ear, nose and throat work and the fact that the hospitals have always been operated under the government has made it possible for the physicians there to continue perfecting their superior knowledge of this branch of surgery. Asked his opinion regarding the relative merits of Viennese and American doctors, Dr. Good said that the Viennese physician excels in pathology, diagnosis and treatment, but the American surgeon is far in advance of him in the matter of surgical technique.

The local physician said that the visiting American doctors were much impressed with the magnificence and size of the hospital buildings, one of which is a mile and a half in area. All the hospitals, he says, are in the midst of beautifully kept gardens which are really small parks, protected by high walls, where the patients may stroll about. Large and well kept gardens are, he observed, a part of any good sized public building or private house in the city and in spite of the fact that living in Vienna is high and wages are poor, these gardens, apparent luxuries, are kept in excellent condition. The gardens and the operas and concerts are the only luxuries which the Viennese permit themselves and the doctor states that the psychological effect on their spirit is quite apparent.

Although Dr. Good spent the greater part of his time abroad studying in Vienna he made flying trips on the journey to and from Austria to some of the other European countries. His ship having landed at Rotterdam, he had an opportunity of seeing something of the trim little country of Holland, which, he says, is prosperous and expensive. His mental picture of the country includes endless processions of bows, beautifully kept farms separated by canals instead of walls and whirling windmills, all of which, seen in panorama from the train window, might be parts of a huge Dutch print. While at Rotterdam he saw Queen Wilhelmina and her consort who had arrived at the railway station in preparation for a trip through Europe. They received a great ovation and Dr. Good brings back to the proletariat who drive low-priced cars the consoling information that Queen Wilhelmina's automobile has no self-starter and the chauffeur has to get out and crank it every now and then, so even driving a queen about is not without its drawbacks.

"Switzerland has, naturally, quite a different atmosphere than one finds in the countries touched by the war," said Dr. Good. "It is one huge pleasure resort with hotels everywhere and in each the attendants speak three different languages. We climbed some of the mountains. I did not, however, climb Mount Blanc, being content to let my friend, Mr. Crane, carry off the laurels for this feat.

"Gayety is the order of the day, and incidentally, of the night, in Paris. This is still Europe's most brilliant city and its continued glitter and laughter in the midst of France's troubles and poverty is in sharp contrast to the subdued atmosphere of Vienna. Paris is filled with American tourists who find it much cheaper to ride in taxis there than in New York. The food there is the best in Europe. I found it rather poor in other cities, and there is much drinking of wine and beer. The impression in America that German's drink beer and Frenchmen drink wine is a myth. There is much beer drinking in Paris as you will find anywhere in Germany and as much wine drinking in Germany as in France.

"Outside of Paris, France seems busy. It is apparent that the French peasant, by his incessant labor, has made wheat fields out of the battlefields. Wire has been taken down and shells cleared away from the great areas that were stained with blood only a few years ago, and aside from the fact that the shelled cities are not yet rebuilt, one sees but little evidence of the late war here."

Dr. Good was in Milan long enough to become deeply impressed with the beauty of the cathedrals and in Venice long enough to ride in a gondola while a water concert was in progress. He says that Venice by moonlight is as romantic as the novels say.

He found Germany more like the United States than any European country in the matter of modern conveniences and equipment. He did not go near the Ruhr district, confining his visits to Berlin, Leipsic and Dresden. Dr. Good says that in Berlin, as in Vienna, a dollar can buy a multitude and one may secure luxuries like jewelry, Persian rugs, leather goods and other expensive things at about one-sixth their cost in this country.

All through Europe, according to the doctor, the people are cordial to Americans. English is spoken in most of the hotels where the service is good, the tobacco poor, and the wine and beer excellent. Incidentally, he did not see an intoxicated person during his entire stay on the other side of the Atlantic.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Maurice Francis Egan, who is reported critically ill at his home in New Jersey, is an eminent scholar who also has a high reputation as a diplomatist, gained by some years of service as United States Minister to Denmark. Dr. Egan is a Philadelphian, and from 1877 to 1848 was connected with newspapers. Then he was called to teach English literature in the University of Notre Dame, Indiana, and remained there until 1885, when he took a similar chair in another university, and it was then that President Roosevelt asked him to enter the diplomatic service. During his long service in Copenhagen he did much to educate the American public in Denmark's distinctive methods of promoting thrift, rural development, agriculture, and the like. Dr. Egan has been a prolific author of fiction and verse. He has done creditable work in translation, and has had many honors from colleges and associations.

Stories That Recall Others

She Found Out.

"Where are the rugs and drapes?" asked a sweet young woman of the elevator attendant.

"On the next floor, madam," the attendant answered and stopped when the floor was reached.

Questioningly the girl looked at the woman who had made the inquiry. "This is where the rugs and drapes are, madam."

"Oh, I didn't want any," the s. y. w. replied in her nicest tone, "I merely was wondering where they were. Thank you."

And So They Met.

During the summer a young woman attended sessions of a summer school. Occasionally she met a man, attending the same session, whose face seemed familiar to her. One day she said to him:

"Aren't you from my town? Haven't I met you before?"

"Why, no. I teach out in Idaho, but came east this summer. My name is ——" was the reply.

And so, they met.

Indianapolis, Ind.—"Now I want to tell you just what induced me to take your medicine. It seemed that I had some kind of weakness so that I could not carry a child its full time. The last time I was troubled this way I had a nervous breakdown and was a complete wreck. The doctor thought I would not live, and if I did that I would never be well and strong again. But I told them I was going to get well, that I was not going to die just then. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took six bottles of it. I soon got strong again and had three more children. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound ever since, and if you could see me now you would think I had always been well."—Mrs. MARY F. Imagine an Ocean Liner Being Rowed Across the Atlantic!

Not half as ridiculous as some of the things women do under the guise of "beauty treatment."

Using one cake of soap is as absurd as rowing an ocean liner across the Atlantic. One cake can't give both cleanliness and nourishment—and your skin needs it. The Venida ClinTonic Twin Soaps are these newest of new beauty aids recommended by everyone who has tried them. They are two cakes of the purest soap. The Clinic Soap cleanses the pores and clears the skin of blemishes such as blackheads, pimples, etc. The Tonic Soap is a tissue-builder, and softens and tonics the skin and protects it. Used one after the other they are a perfect beauty treatment.

Your skin needs both soaps every time you wash. It does not take a second longer to wash once with two cakes than it does to wash twice with one cake. But it will improve the health of your skin and beautify your complexion.

Try them—if you don't think they are the finest soaps you have ever used, your money will be returned without question. Both cakes cost but 25 cents, at your druggist or department store where Venida Hair Nets are sold. If they cannot supply you, send to us directly.

Mrs. Ezra Gallup.

(Contributed.)

Mrs. Olive Knight Gallup, 80, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dudley Williams, of Moosup, Tuesday morning, Sept. 18. She married Ezra Gallup of Ekonk June 31, 1866. To this union were born five sons and two daughters who with 24 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Addie Cail, survive her.

Mrs. Gallup was of rare and charming personality, greatly beloved by her children and grandchildren and all her friends. She had been a member of Ekonk Congregational church for over 50 years and exemplified by her character the power of the Christian life. She said to one of her friends: "I am the happiest woman alive. I have lived a great life. To be the wife of such a man and the mother of such a family as I have is as great a blessing as can be given to any woman. When I see them all together, great tall sons and grandsons, I say to myself: 'I am the mother of them all!' Then I lift up my heart and say 'bless' and 'am proud; oh, so proud!' To her, motherhood was the greatest thing in the world, and she was justified in her pride of her family. She was a great mother!

The funeral services at Ekonk church Friday, Sept. 21, were preceded by prayer at the residence of Dudley Williams in Moosup, the services at the church a. p. m being conducted by Rev. ### TESTIFIES HE BOUGHT GIN AT PEQUOT CASINO

Testimony that two drinks of gin at 75 cents per drink were bought at the Pequot Casino, New London, was the opening evidence introduced against John J. Carney, the proprietor, when his trial began in the superior court here late Wednesday afternoon before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury. Carney and Pellazzni, the latter alleged to be the bartender, are on trial on two counts alleging keeping liquor with intent to sell on Aug. 29 and reputation from July 1 to Aug. 30.

Donald Chappell, New London, treasurer of the A. H. Chappell company and secretary of the Pequot Casino association, was the first witness called by State Attorney Hull. He produced the lease to John J. Carney from June 1 to Nov. 1 1923.

Attorney Morgan cross examined him as to the property adjacent to the Pequot Casino.

Matthew Malinowski of New Britain, a druggist there, who has been interpreter in courts of this state, and an investigator in Hartford county, testified that at the request of the state attorney he made an investigation at Pequot Casino at 10.30 p. m. on Aug. 29, driving in with his wife. He checked his car and his hat and paid $2 for admission to the dancing hall upstairs. He and his wife sat at a table. After about 15 minutes a colored waiter served him ginger ale and his wife orangeade. After drinking part of the ginger ale, the witness said he asked the waiter if he didn't have anything to put in the ginger ale. The waiter replied that he had no whiskey but could fix him out with gin. The waiter served him a gin rickey and later brought him another. The witness said he stayed there till about 12.30 and left after making an attempt to buy a pint of gin. The waiter told him they didn't have enough for that.

The witness told of going there again the next night, asking the waiter for whiskey and being told that they didn't have any but would have some the next night. He did not go back the following night.

On cross examination Mr. Malinowski said that all the people present appeared to be a nice class of people. He couldn't tell whether anyone else was drinking intoxicating liquors. The waiter brought the gin from the same place where he got the ginger ale and orangeade. The witness said he couldn't tell the number of the waiter who served him as he did not see numbers on any of the waiters. It was the same waiter both nights. The witness said he had not been either of the two accused men there.

The trial will be continued today (Thursday).

Before the jury was chosen Attorney Morgan exercised his right to challenge eight of the talesmen which exhausted the panel so much that other talesmen had to be summoned.

HAVE OVER 200 WOMEN ENROLLED FOR WORK FOR BACKUS HOSPITAL

Under the leadership of Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, chairman of the women's division, a meeting of commanders and team captains of that division, was held Wednesday evening at Backus hospital campaign headquarters, to discuss the method and purposes of the campaign. All four commanders of the division were present: Mrs. Joseph P. Cummings, Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, Mrs. Alexander H. Manes and Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins.

Captains reported the enlistments of their teams, and after a census had been taken by Mrs. Brown, it was found that every one of the women's teams had been filled except for five team members yet to be selected. This means that 215 captains and workers for the women's division have been enrolled. The women's division will be one hundred per cent organized by the close of this week.

The director outlined the need for the public appeal, and especially emphasized the fact that the objective not merely calls for the building of a nurses' home, but is equally necessary for the purpose of adding to the general endowment of the hospital, which is no longer sufficient to cover the cost of operation.

A general meeting of the entire working force for Norwich was arranged, to be held within the next ten days, at which the plan of the campaign is to be gone over for the benefit of 440 volunteer workers who will carry the appeal to the people of Norwich.

In addition to the chairman and commanders, the following attended the meeting: Captains: Mrs. A. A. Agnew, Miss Helen Coughlin, Miss Margaret Counihan, Miss Hannah Crowell, Mrs. W. H. Bawley, Mrs. N. C. Disco, Mrs. Frank T. Farrell, Miss Clara Gordon, Mrs. Oliver Johnson, Mrs. Simon Mandel, Mrs. Frank McLaughlin, Mrs. Thomas O'Rourke, Mrs. Alexander M. ### WARNING IS GIVEN TO DISMANTLE BARS

Warning to Norwich keepers of saloons and beverage places to dismantle their bars and saloon fixtures was served Tuesday by the police who delivered a notice from City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins. There are about 40 places where the following notice was served:

Dear Sir: At a largely attended conference of judges and prosecuting attorneys held in New London Monday afternoon a resolution was passed whereby every judge present favored the general policy of giving a jail sentence in cases of violation of the state liquor laws.

This means that from now on every person convicted of selling intoxicating liquor, keeping it with intent to sell, or keeping a place reputed to be a place where intoxicating liquor is sold, will, with almost absolute certainty, have to serve a jail sentence.

I desire to fairly warn every proprietor of an old-time saloon as well as every proprietor of a screened sales place for bottled soda water that, in my opinion, he stands in imminent danger of being convicted under our reputation law and if so, of going to jail.

I therefore urge the proprietors of such places to immediately remove all screens of every nature, all bars, saloon fixtures and vestibules since such equipment is associated by the public with the sale of intoxicating liquor and is unnecessary for the transaction of honest business.

Every proprietor who fails to heed this message assumes full responsibility.

PAYS FINE AND EXPENSES FOR AUTOMOBILE CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 26.—Harry L. Eaton, 150 Montauk avenue, an employe of the New England Collapsible Tube Co., arrested last night by State Policemen Bernard Scully and L. E. Comstock, charged with reckless driving and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, following Eaton's automobile colliding with a car owned and operated by James Manning of 37 Coleman street, was presented before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in Waterford town court this evening. Eaton pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined $150 and costs and sentenced to thirty days in jail, but the execution of the jail sentence was suspended. Eaton assured the court that he would refrain from drinking and that he would discontinue operating the automobile, which he had owned but a short time. He also agreed to pay the physician's fees for services rendered in attending the injured occupants of the Manning machine, also made an agreement in writing that he would pay the costs of repairing the New London car. Eaton declared that he was driving along the New London-Norwich road when he came upon a pedestrian and gave the latter a ride. The pedestrian had a bottle of liquor and both consumed the liquor, which fact accounted for Eaton being drunk and was responsible for the accident.

The accident occurred near Quaker Hill when the two machines, traveling in opposite directions, crashed together. In the New London car was Manning, who was operating the machine, Mrs. Manning and their daughter, Grace and Mrs. James A. Quinn and eighteen months' old daughter, Borgia, of 350 Main street, Norwich. Mrs. Manning and her child received injuries that necessitated their being attended by a physician.

ROGERS FOUND GUILTY OF TRANSPORTING LIQUOR

Rene Rogers of New London, on trial in the superior court here Wednesday, was found guilty by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the charge of transporting 23 quarts of whiskey in a motor boat-at New London on Sept. 13. Judge Brown deferred pronouncing sentence until next Friday.

Two burlap bags containing the bottles of Scotch whiskey were brought into court as exhibits. They were seized by the officers when they arrested John S. Jackson as he was landing a cargo of liquor from a boat and Rogers was charged with being implicated in the same transaction as he was operating a motorboat that had been towing the other.

Testimony as to the arrest of Rogers and the seizure of the liquor was given by Jeremiah Dillon, deputy collector of customs, Sergeant Samuel Hick, Officers Philopena and Ross, and Federal Prohibition Agents Fitzpatrick and Avery.

The state rested after testimony from Louis Lubchansky that Rogers had approached him six or seven days before the arrest and had told him that he had a shipment of 700 cases of Scotch coming in and wanted Lubchansky to find a customer for it. Lubchansky denied that he was dealing in liquor.

Defense Testimony.

Attorney G. C. Morgan called on John S. Jackson as the first witness for defense and at once met with objection from Attorney Max Boyer, counsel for Jackson, and Public Defender C. L. Stewart who protested to the court that Jackson's constitutional rights should not be infringed upon by making him testify. Jackson had previously pleaded guilty in court several days ago. He now changed his plea to not guilty and his examination proceeded. He testified to Attorney Morgan that Rogers didn't know what was in the boat. On cross examination Jackson said he didn't know who put the bottles on the dock. He had only known about them two hours before he got them there. He was to take them to the junk shop dock. [illegible] with whom he had made this agreement he said it was Reuben Lubchansky.

Rene Rogers, the accused, was called to the stand by his attorney. He testified he and his family had been stopping for two days on Jackson's houseboat while they were looking for a place to locate in New London. He said Jackson asked him to go along to take care of the boat when he was to take a load of junk up above the bridge. Rogers denied that he saw the burlap bags containing the bottles and said the boat was so covered up with junk that that was all that could be seen.

"Didn't you register at a New London hotel?" asked the state attorney.

"Yes," came the answer.

"How did you register."

"R. Rogers."

"How else?"

Rogers remained silent while Major Hull tried to get him to answer the question. Attorney Morgan put in an objection and Judge Brown instructed Rogers that he could refuse to answer a question on the ground that it might incriminate him. On the same ground Rogers refused to answer Major Hull when he asked Rogers if he hadn't been staying in New London with a woman and a child.

"Are you acquainted with Mark Gilbert?" asked Major Hull.

"Yes."

"Didn't you state to Dillon and others that Gilbert is a rum runner?"

"That's publicly known, sir."

"Didn't you say that if they'd let you out, you would land Gilbert on the coast for the officers to get him?"

"I might have said I'd give what aid I could."

"Then you knew him to be a rum runner?"

"Wasn't it because you had been rum running with him and knew his game?"

"No, sir. I don't think any man could deliver Mark Gilbert. He's frequently been arrested and got away."

Christina Rogers, wife of the accused, gave corroborative evidence as to Jackson asking Rogers to help with the junk and the boat.

Both sides rested and Attorney Morgan made a brief argument for the accused to which State Attorney Hull made answer.

Judge Brown at once pronounced the sentence of guilty.

Rogers asked the court if he could say something and when Judge Brown gave the permission, Rogers said he knew nothing of the liquor on the boat and denied that he had told Mr. Lubchansky he had liquor to dispose of. He said he had known Mark Gilbert to his sorrow and had no intention of engaging in the liquor trade.

KIRKWOOD'S PLAYING CONTINUES AS SENSATION OF PRO CHAMPIONSHIP

Pelham Manor, N. Y., Sept. 26.—(By The A. P.)—Playing under leaden skies, through a mist that hung deep over the course throughout the day and soaked the fairways, the majority of the players in the third 36 hole round of the Professional Golfers' Association championship performed a countless number of links miracles.

The "miracle men" of the day's play were Joe Kirkwood, the Australian; George McLean, of Bronxville, N. Y., Robert Cruickshank, the cocky little Scot of the Shackamaxon club, Westfield, N. J., and Fred McLeod, the Columbia Country club pro, of Washington, D. C., Gene Sarazen the 1922 champion, had somewhat of a task in winning from Alex Campbell of Cincinnati, but he finally downed the veteran 3 and 2. Walter Hagen won from John Golden of Tuxedo, N. Y., 4 and 3.

There were two easy winners in the day's play, "Long Jim" Barnes, the Pelham pro, won from Cyril Walker of Englewood, N. J., 5 and 4, and William McFarlane of Tuckahoe, N. Y., defeated Jack Stait, of Hartford, Conn.

Joe Kirkwood declared tonight after he had defeated Young John Farrell of Mamaroneck, N. Y., 1 up in 36 holes, that he had a whole bag full of miracles. When he finished the first nine today he was two down to Farrell, and when he finished 18 he was three down. Between the 18th and 27th he squared the match and there's where the miracle happened.

On the first hole in the afternoon Kirkwood sank a ten foot putt for a birdie four and won the hole. On the second Kirkwood sliced his tee shot over a hill fifty yards off the fairway, and had a blind shot for the green. After a study of the terrain he loosed his club. The ball dropped three feet from the pin and he sank for a birdie three. He then was one down. The last episode of the miracle was played on the 31st hole, the thirteenth of the course. This is one of the longest holes on the course, a par five dog-leg where Kirkwood made an eagle three yesterday. He got a birdie on it today while Farrell took three putts for a six.

Kirkwood won the next with pars. They halved the sixteenth, Farrell won the 17th with a birdie four. Kirkwood one up, one to go. Both made birdie threes on the last hole, giving Kirkwood the match.

McLean's miracle was performed against a man who had set his first two opponents in the championship on their heads with his shooting. Ogg started out the same way this morning against McLean and had taken a lead of four holes when the ninth hole was reached. At eighteen he was up 5 on McLean. On the 36th Ogg was in the center of the fairway for a good approach but McLean was off to one side in tall grass. Ogg pitched to within ten feet of the hole and McLean, with a shot curved around a tree was within 12 feet. McLean sunk his putt and Ogg missed.

Tomorrow Cruickshank will meet MarFarlane; Barnes will play Sarazen, McLeod will meet Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood will meet George McLean.

O'LEARY SIGNS LEADING EASTERN LEAGUE PLAYERS TO WIN FOR NORWICH

Accepting the challenge hurled by Manager Troland of Taftville in the securing of the fast Worcester team of the Eastern League to fight for Taftville Sunday at the Fairgrounds, Manager O'Leary has announced a powerful lineup to uphold the honors of Norwich.

The Norwich Baseball club will be composed of some of the fastest players of the Eastern League, among them several of the Hartford championship team, and several players from leading teams in the Three I League.

Manager O'Leary has secured the best pitcher in the Eastern League for the Norwich hurler in Canavan, who needs no introduction to local fans. Hughie always was there and with his average of 18 wins and 6 games lost, an average of .750 he led in the Eastern League this season, topping Stryker of Worcester, who will pitch against him Sunday by 47 points. Canavan has been going strong for Hartford all season and his standing at the head of the pitchers in the league shows that Norwich has the best there is on the mound.

Dowd of the New Haven club is to play second. He has been here before in a Taftville series and is known to be good, having played in 102 games this season batting the apple for for an average of .343.

In Faber at short stop Manager O'Leary has secured the former Jewett City star for this important position. Faber went to Baltimore this past season and was sent to Jersey City where he played a great game and hit for .310. His friends here look to him for some heavy hitting in the fray Sunday as he is considered a local product.

Belanger of the Hartford League leaders will cover first base and can be depended upon to give Stryker trouble at bat as his season average is .322. Martin of the New Haven club will be in left field and will be another worry to Stryker as he has played in 145 games this season and hit for .318.

In Ganzel in center field comes a fast Evansville player who has made the jump into the majors having been signed by Cleveland recently. With his team in the Three I League Ganzel has hit hard and aided in many a scoring bee, his season average being .360.

Clabby, the local player will hold the right garden and represent his city against the team of stars. Clabby has hit well this season and should be a danger in Sunday's game.

The windy corner will be handled by Gardella of Pittsfield, who has made himself popular with the local fans while the Pittsfield club was training at the Fairgrounds early last spring. Gus has been going fast this year hitting for .270, and has proven a fighting captain for the team.

Redman of Hartford will handle Canavan's fast ones and these boys both from the same team of champions make a pair hard to beat. Besides knowing Canavan's style, Redman can hit for .267 in a season and is a good man on bases.

Manager O'Leary guarantees his man for Sunday's game and already has received telegrams from them stating that they will fight for Norwich in the first game of the series.

With Manager Troland and Manager O'Leary slamming at each other and agreeing to settle all arguments about the word "inexperienced" Sunday at the Fairgrounds it is bound to prove interesting to see these two teams of stars go at each other in the first of a series of three for the championship of the two towns.

Owing to the change of time which begins Sunday standard time will prevail, the game being scheduled for 3 o'clock sharp.

MERRIMAN WINS THE ARCH CITY $3000 STAKE

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Merriman, of the Tommy Murphy Stable, today won the Arch City $3,000 stake for 2:10 pacers, the feature event of the five on today's Grand Circuit card. Merriman's victory was not one of straight heats, as he lost the first heat to Wrack, going to a bad break on the first turn. In the third mile he was also on the verge of breaking on two occasions, but Murphy kept him in the pace and he stepped the last mile in 2:01 3-4. Well Worthy, the first choice won the 2:05 trot, taking the first two heats, but finishing no better than fourth in the third heat which was won by Walter Stevens.

The favored Gamey the Great, won the $1:13 pace only after four heats. Valley Day won the first heat and Homefast, the second one. The west two were easy for the Stokes driven gelding.

MARKET WAS SLUGGISH.

New York, Sept. 26.—Stock prices were sluggish during the greater part of today's session but turned abruptly upward in the afternoon on the resumption of dividends by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. There were other favorable news factors during the day, such as another series of excellent August railroad statements and the publication of an official proclamation ending passive resistance in the Ruhr, but these had failed to stimulate the buying of stocks.

Declaration of a quarterly dividend of 5 1-4 per cent. on Baltimore and Ohio came somewhat as a surprise, as Wall street previously had been led to believe that the payment would be deferred until the end of the year, although it was a matter of common knowledge that the dividend was being fully earned. More than 70,000 shares of the stock changed hands during the day, the closing price of 85 representing a net gain of 3 1-2 points.

The dividend action had a tonic effect on the rest of the market. Other rail stocks were bid up and a number of industrial issues which previously had shown marked heaviness, such as the steels and the motors, were bid up 1 to 2 points above yesterday's closing prices.

Sugar shares again gave one of the best exhibitions of group strength, buying of these issues being predicated on another advance in the raw and refined products. Cuban America and Cuba Cane preferred closed at net gains of about a point.

Weekly reviews of the steel industry report a slight quickening of interest, but more optimism is expressed by the United States Steel corporation, which reports an increase in operations from 87.9 per cent. a week ago to 90.3 per cent. this week. U. S. Steel closed a point higher at 97 1-4 and most of the others showed fractional improvement on the day.

American Can, which has been under pressure lately, snapped back 1 1-2 points on circulation of reports that an extra disbursement probably will be declared in December. Baldwin, Dupont and Davison Chemical, all of which have been the targets of bear traders, closed at net gains of 2 points or more on what was ostensibly short covering operations

Call money opened at 5 1-4 per cent. but advanced to 5 1-2 before the close. The time money market was quiet with brokers bidding 5 1-4and bankers asking 5 1-2, a few short term loans being arranged at the lower figure.

Foreign exchanges lost ground on profit-taking by speculators who bought bills recently in expectation of favorable reparations developments. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $ 55 3-4, but French francs dropped 4 1-2 points to 6.20 cents and Belgian francs dropped 5 points to 5.40 1-2 cents. Norwegian and Danish exchanges also were heavy.

ROTARIANS AND LIONS IN JOINT MEETING AT LUNCHEON HOUR

The Wednesday luncheon hour of the Rotary club at the Wauregan house was a joint luncheon with the Norwich Lions' club, making an enthusiastic gathering of about 100 business men, with President Charles A. Saxton of the Rotary club presiding and Dr. Hugh B. Campbell song leader.

Devoting the first part of the meeting to a memorial to the late James L. Crawford, a Rotarian, Henry J. La Fontaine impressively sang Mr. Crawford's favorite hymn, Nearer, My God, To Thee, and President Saxton paid a touching tribute to Mr. Crawford, expressing the great loss which the city and the club had suffered. In his honor the Rotarians rose and sang the Rotary song which Mr. Crawford loved.

Lions' President Speaks.

President George D. Finn of the Lions was introduced by President Saxton with a pleasant reference to the way the Lions' roar had been heard in Norwich.

On behalf of the Lions club, I wish to express the pleasure with which our organization has been honored in meeting with you here today. The ideals of Rotary for the advancement of the community and of its citizens, are likewise the ideals of the Lions club. We are both as two clubs and individual members working for the upbuilding and welfare of Norwich. The Lions club has made a rapid, substantial growth since its organization but we are not content to rest our oars. We are going on, working for the day soon to come when our club will enjoy the prestige and influence now held by Rotary, or even surpass Rotary, winning first rank! A little good-spirited rivalry will give the members of both clubs a keener interest which cannot help but result in a larger measure of achievement for both clubs. Rotary! We give you fair warning of our objective and a hope that you will make it doubly hard for us to achieve it soon.

"We accept the challenge," said President Saxton, and he called upon the Lions' members to individually introduce themselves. Then the Lions were invited to roar, which they did, and they sang their club song, written and led by Tyler Stanton.

Represented Chamber of Commerce.

President Saxton called attention to the membership campaign of the chamber of commerce and presented Vice President Arthur L. Peale of the chamber who in turn introduced Rev. Alexander H. Abbott as the speaker of the day. Mr. Peale spoke of the interest that the chamber of commerce had in the development of the Thames river.

Palgrave has somewhere said "no one human being can be completely the representative of his race." The sentence is true because no one man can sum up in himself all the various elements that make his race so complex. So the significant word in the sentence is the word representative.

I should like to take that word representative and play with it a bit, toss it back and forth to see what kind of a game it reveals. It suggests three things.

First: Every act is the symbol of a complex parentage. It is not the end of a line but it is the apex of a pyramid. Every plot of ground has a number of front feet, but likewise it has depth and we take the depth into consideration as well as the front when we wish to buy it. A child has two parents but he has thirty-two great great grandparents. He therefore represents not a simple but a complex ancestry.

Second: Every act is representative of the major emphasis. Caligula represented not the virtue but the vice of Rome; Socrates not the folly but the wisdom of Greece Croesus not the poverty but the pageant of wealth of Asia Minor. While a jealous act goes back and touches roots that are complex it nevertheless represents the major strain of jealousy. Each act of business touches soil that is developed from innumerable sources, yet, because it is particular, it is the symbol of a particular emphasis.

Third: Every act is representative of a dominating purpose. It not only reaches backward, it reaches forward. It shows the avenue ahead; it expresses intention and desire.

These three things suggest something about the representative quality of our chamber of commerce. The chamber expresses not our simple, but our complex life. It is the projection of a wide complexity. It represents the conjunct life of a community. It does not represent the law in conjunction with other elements. It does not represent business, it does business in conjunction. It does not represent education, it does education co-operative. It does not represent politics, it does politics related to other community activities. It is not intended to benefit one trade or one industry or one political interest. It is intended to express, to represent, the conjunct life.

Second: The chamber of commerce is the representative of the major emphasis of this conjunct life, the co-operative spirit. As each human act is the representative of a man's preponderating emphasis so the chamber of commerce is the outstanding symbol of a community's co-operative work. All the elements that go to make up our complex life here combine, and the combination is made up of co-operative interests in streets, and lighting, and factories, and housing and playgrounds, and child welfare, and the hospital. Reared upon our complex life it nevertheless represents our spirit of mutuality.

Third: Even as every human act is representative of a dominating purpose, so our chamber of commerce is representative of one dominating purpose; namely, the betterment of the community. Born of the community, living by the community, working for the community. Its purpose is, therefore, not partial but inclusive. It works at one thing now and at another thing tomorrow, not because of the peculiar excellence of each thing but because it knows that the excellence of each part creates a good whole.

The chamber of commerce, then, has a right to challenge the members of these two organizations, met here today in friendly relationship, to revitalize the institution that represents our complex life, our cooperative spirit and the dominating purpose of community good.

At his conclusion Mr. Abbott was given hearty rounds of applause. His talk was an inspiration, said President Saxton, adding that to be a live city we must be unselfish. He then congratulated President Finn upon the growth of the Lions club and its promise of success.

Offers Golf Cup.

A member of the Rotary club, Senator William G. Park, has offered to put up a cup for a tournament at the Norwich Golf club, and President Saxton was, by vote, empowered to appoint a committee in charge of the matter. Secretary Weymouth read a letter of thanks and appreciation from Mrs. James L. Crawford to the Rotary club.

Chairman Russell Clapp of the programme committee has named the following song leaders for next month: Eben Learned, Alfred G. Lillbridge, Louis R. Porteous, George L. Ingalls and E. LaRue Bliven.

Music at Backus Hospital.

The choral service at the W. W. Backus hospital Sunday afternoon was given by the A. M. E. Zion church choir, Miss Idella Scott, organist. The programme was as follows:

Anthem, Nearer, My God, to Thee; a duet, basso solo and chorus: Scripture reading and prayer by Rev. Mr. Brown; spiritual, True Hearted, by choir; anthem, Consider the Lilies, choir; spiritual, The Awakening, chorus, choir; anthem, Saviour, Source of Every Blessing; alto solo, Mrs. Edwards; bass solo, Mr. Wilson; spiritual, Alone; duet, Mrs. Edwards and Prof. Geary; chorus by the choir; anthem, Wake the Song, by the choir; spiritual, God Be With You.

Each number was very pleasingly rendered. The choir numbered: Sopranos, Mrs. Dixon Brown, Mrs. Ambrose Wilson, Miss Irene Gavathney, Miss Almyra Hall; altos, Mrs. Amazie Edwards, Mrs. Charles Hall and Miss Elnora Edwards; bass, Ambrose Wilson; director, Prof. William E. Geary. Rev. Dixon Brown, pastor.

GIVES JUDGMENT FOR FULL BILL OF $997.70

Judge Isaac C. Wolfe tried the case of the Standard Oil Co. against Mr. and Mrs. George Kellar of Stonington, for a bill of $997.70 for gasoline and other products in the superior court in New London Tuesday morning. The bill was contracted in the months of October, November and December, 1921.

CHILD THROWN FROM AUTO IN WESTERLY COLLISION

Westerly, Sept. 26.—Charlotte Emma Scear, 2½ year old daughter of George W. Scear of 14 Spring street, was thrown to the highway on the Watch Hill road this afternoon about 5 o'clock sustaining a possible fracture of the skull. The accident happened when the child's father driving his Ford touring car toward Watch Hill was at the top of the hill at the curve in the road near the residence of Gilbert W. Sigson. Approaching was the Ford truck of Frank Algiero, 6 Pearl street, which is said to have crossed to the left hand side of the road. The forward wheel of the touring car was struck by the truck which caused the touring car to swerve around and throw the child from the car to the road. The Ford truck was badly damaged but none of the other occupants sustained injuries. Picking up the injured child Mr. Scear brought her to the office of Dr. C. Grant Savage and from there to the hospital in New London in a semi-conscious condition.

NORWICH RESIDENTS FIGURE IN NEW LONDON AUTOMOBILE CASES

New London, Sept. 26.—Mr. and Mrs. Maurice E. Sherman have returned, having spent two weeks at Brown's camp on Lake Kozar, Center Lowell, Maine.

Oscar Hornbeck, a Waterford milkman having instituted a civil action against John Worrell, also of Waterford, to collect $65, the amount of a milk bill Hornbeck alleged that Worrell owed, the case was tried before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton last evening. The hearing resulted in testimony being introduced that required the sitting of the court two and a half hours. Worrell admitted purchasing milk of Hornbeck, but declared he had not received any such amount of milk as Hornbeck alleges that he delivered to the Worrell home. Justice Morton reserved decision.

The police of Providence have requested the New London authorities to be on the lookout for a couple of minors who left Providence a day or two ago and who had stated to acquaintances that they intended to take passage on a boat leaving from this port.

Mrs. Francis Leiper of Broad street Miss Edith Sherburn, Groton, Edward Smith, Uncasville, Miss Elizabeth Morrison, Pawcatuck, Mrs. Jane Jones, Lincoln avenue, and Mrs. Frank Chapman and infant son of Lyme, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen Agnes O'Connell was held this morning at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. John J. McGrath. The body was forwarded to Moosup for burial this afternoon.

Mrs. Harry Shalett and two children have returned to their home on Linden street after spending two months with Mrs. Shalett's mother in Wales.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Meaney left today for Trenton, N. J., where they will visit relatives for a week.

Roy C. Barker, registry clerk at the post office, is having two weeks' vacation.

David Crouch of Oakdale was presented before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in the Waterford town court last night charged with reckless driving of his automobile. The case was nolled as there was no evidence to show that Crouch had operated his machine other than with caution.

Crouch was arrested Saturday when his automobile knocked down Mrs. Anna Perry, 70, of Crystal avenue, when the woman alighted from a bus to go to the home of a relative. The evidence showed that Crouch applied his brakes so effectively that his machine was brought to a stop within eight feet.

Harry Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Gordon, has resumed his studies at Portia Law school, Boston.

Sol Hollander, until recently proprietor of a tailoring establishment, has gone to New York, where he will be employed this winter.

James R. May, appointed as a committee by the superior court to dispose of the interest of Walter W. Philbrick in the property corner of Broad and Raymond streets, today sold the property to Thomas B. Terson of Thames View, a brother-in-law of Mr. Philbrick, whose bid was the highest of nine, Mr. Terson bidding $3,600. The property consists of a two-story house on Broad street, a small building on Raymond street and used for garage purposes, and land on which both buildings front.

Mr. Taylor, of the real estate department of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, has communicated with City Manager William A. Holt, stating that the former will be in New London this week for the purpose of conferring with the city manager on the latter's demand of the railroad to move the Yellow Cab company from its office location, beneath one of the sets of stairs to the overhead bridge, at the foot of State street. It is the contention of the city manager that the railroad exceeded its authority in negotiating the lease as the property in question is a part of State street, therefore is owned by the city.

Although a day late in filing his election expenses, Councilor William C. Fox filed at the office of the city clerk today his expenses incurred at the city election, two weeks ago. Mr. Fox's statement shows that he expended $24.60, all for newspaper advertising. Councilor Lucius E. Whitton and Philip E. Douglass, the latter a defeated candidate have failed to make known the amount of their expenses, as provided by law.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Tuttle and Vernon Kelsey of Amagansett are spending a few days with New London friends.

Two patients at Lawrence hospital, both suffering from similar injuries and of a serious nature, are displaying symptoms of improvement. John J. Murphy, of Voluntown, an employe of the state highway department, sustained a stretching of the spine and fractured ribs by being run over by an automobile to which he was attempting to make repairs on Jurfee Hill, Waterford. Mr. Murphy is now able to get about the hospital corridors in a wheel chair. Claude Treat, of Union street, an employe of the freight service of the New Haven railroad, who several weeks ago suffered a fractured spine when a motorcycle he was riding was struck by a reckless autoist near Glastonbury, Treat being hurled from the machine and landed in such a manner as to produce an injury that may leave him incapacitated for life, is also showing improvement.

Mrs. Arthur Cushman, of Hartford, has closed her summer home at Eastern Point and will spend the winter in a house leased by her on Colman street.

A gang of youths with language not fit for members of a family to hear have resorted at the corner of Main and Church streets and at the corner of John and Main streets during the early evenings of late and their conversation has annoyed people residing nearby to a degree that the police have been asked to clear the corners. Last evening Officers Graham, Perkins and Rehn took turns at clearing the resort and they think they have effectually put an end to any cause for complaint in the future.

W. Z. White has been secured to audit the accounts of the ferry management that it may become known what the receipts and expenditures of that enterprise were under the operation of Charles F. Willard, during the greater part of the year. Mr. White is an experienced accountant and he also is the auditor of Groton borough. Mr. Willard has several times attempted to explain what the ferry management had earned and what it had expended, but he has not yet been able to convince the city council that his figures are accurate and complete. The Willard interests have purchased the steamer Myra, and that boat has been used as a sort of auxiliary ferry for taking out parties, but it is held that her losses have been paid for from the receipts of the ferry.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Meaney, among the few concessions holders at Ocean beach the past summer who made a profit worth mentioning, have gone to New Jersey to spend a vacation.

Malcolm M. Scott will be the next mayor of the city of New London—provided the members of the city council to take the oath of office next Monday night do not change their attitude in the matter before that time. Councilor Scott has been in office since the present city-manager form of government was adopted, two years ago, and now is slated to receive the complimentary position in the body as mayor. No organization meeting has been held since the election last Monday, when the third and final member was chosen to the council by the voters, but it is known that every member of the new council has given the matter of selecting a mayor consideration already and that Mr. Scott will be tendered the office.

Inspector M. E. Snow of the motor vehicle department conducted a hearing at the county courthouse in New London yesterday afternoon, permitting operators to be heard in relation to their licenses having recently been suspended for alleged violations of the automobile laws. Of the dozen operators summoned to appear, two failed to arrive at the courthouse, Walter D. Cummings of Norwich, charged with reckless driving, and Frederick Rodman of Killingly, charged with a fatality. In the case of Wilfred Perr of Moosup, charged with reckless driving and operating his car while under the influence of liquor, Perr's license was returned conditionally, with the understanding that Perr's employer must make application for the return of the license to be made and that the application be in writing. The license of Frank Piareki of Moosup was suspended 60 days on the charge of reckless driving; Alphone Michaud of Willimantic, charged with operating his car while under the influence of liquor, Philip Isper of Norwich, charged with reckless driving, and Arthur Dayton, charged with operating his machine while under the influence of liquor, had their licenses returned. Conferences were held with George Miller of Norwich, charged with five accidents; Calvin N. Edmunds of New London, charged with having three accidents, and Frank Minski of Jewett City, charged with two accidents. Inspector Snow took no action in these cases.

The Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking corporation, with a branch in New London, has just been awarded the contract for salvaging the seven United States destroyers that went ashore on the rocks on the Pacific coast. William A. Hull, Robert E. Gardner and Chester A. Beckwith, until a week ago employed at the New London office of the corporation, have been transferred to duty at the California office of the corporation.

Mrs. John H. Lane entertained at the Harbor club yesterday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Edward P. Lathrop of Brooklyn, N. Y. Auction bridge was played and the prizes were awarded Mrs. Thornton N. M. Lathrop, Mrs. Owen C. Wolfe and Mrs. Frank Mix.

W. A. Anderson of 47 Fairmount street, Norwich, was before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in Waterford town court tonight, charged with reckless driving. The case was nolled upon Anderson agreeing to pay the costs of court, which amounted to $16, and because of having entered into an agreement with the complainant in the case, Lieut.-Com. James E. Maher, U. S. N., of New London, to pay the damage occasioned to Lieut. Maher's machine as a result of an accident in New London April 19th last. Anderson was taken into custody by State Policeman Dominick Tremp because of the accident at the corner of Broad street and Jefferson avenue, at the intersecting highways, in the day time, when both cars were damaged. Lieut. Maher insisted that Anderson be prosecuted for reckless driving, and because of the naval officer's persistency Anderson was haled into court. Anderson is employed by the Connecticut company and had a fine been imposed he would have suffered the loss of his operator's license.

New London has never collected nearly the whole of the personal tax due the city, but now is to make an effort to get all the money due on that account. Prosecutor Cronin has received from Tax Collector Allen C. Richards a list of the delinquents for the last levy and on Oct. 1st the former is to bring those who still not pay before the police court, that they may settle there. There will be attendant costs on all prosecutions, so that the settlement in court will be much more expensive than would be a settlement with the tax collector without any prosecution. Women, under the new order which gave females the ballot, are liable for the tax as well as are the men and must pay whether they vote or have never been made voters if between the ages of 21 and 60.

Levi G. Raymond has taken possession of the residence he recently built on Montauk avenue between Bellevue and Faire Harbour place and for the first time the house was lighted this evening.

The Wednesday luncheon hour of the Rotary club at the Wauregan house was a joint luncheon with the Norwich Lions' club, making an enthusiastic gathering of about 100 business men, with President Charles A. Saxton of the Rotary club presiding and Dr. Hugh B. Campbell song leader.

Devoting the first part of the meeting to a memorial to the late James L. Crawford, a Rotarian, Henry J. La Fontaine impressively sang Mr. Crawford's favorite hymn, Nearer, My God, To Thee, and President Saxton paid a touching tribute to Mr. Crawford, expressing the great loss which the city and the club had suffered. In his honor the Rotarians rose and sang the Rotary song which Mr. Crawford loved.

Lions' President Speaks.

President George D. Finn of the Lions was introduced by President Saxton with a pleasant reference to the way the Lions' roar had been heard in Norwich.

On behalf of the Lions club, I wish to express the pleasure with which our organization has been honored in meeting with you here today. The ideals of Rotary for the advancement of the community and of its citizens, are likewise the ideals of the Lions club. We are both as two clubs and individual members working for the upbuilding and welfare of Norwich. The Lions club has made a rapid, substantial growth since its organization but we are not content to rest our oars. We are going on, working for the day soon to come when our club will enjoy the prestige and influence now held by Rotary, or even surpass Rotary, winning first rank! A little good-spirited rivalry will give the members of both clubs a keener interest which cannot help but result in a larger measure of achievement for both clubs, Rotary! We give you fair warning of our objective and it is hope that you will make it doubly hard for us to achieve it soon.

"We accept the challenge," said President Saxton, and he called upon the Lions' members to individually introduce themselves. Then the Lions were invited to roar, which they did, and they sang their club song, written and led by Tyler Stanton.

Represented Chamber of Commerce.

President Saxton called attention to the membership campaign of the chamber of commerce and presented Vice President Arthur L. Peale of the chamber who in turn introduced Rev. Alexander H. Abbott as the speaker of the day. Mr. Peale spoke of the interest that the chamber of commerce had in the development of the Thames river.

Palgrave has somewhere said "no one human being can be completely the representative of his race." The sentence is true because no one man can sum up in himself all the various elements that make his race so complex. So the significant word in the sentence is the word representative.

I should like to take that word representative and play with it a bit, toss it back and forth to see what kind of a game it reveals. It suggests three things.

First: Every act is the symbol of a complex parentage. It is not the end of a line but it is the apex of a pyramid. Every plot of ground has a number of front feet, but likewise it has depth and we take the depth into consideration as well as the front when we wish to buy it. A child has two parents but he has thirty-two great great grandparents. He therefore represents not a simple but a complex ancestry.

Second: Every act is representative of the major emphasis. Caligula represented not the virtue but the vice of Rome; Socrates not the folly but the wisdom of Greece Croesus not the poverty but the pageant of wealth of Asia Minor. While a jealous act goes back and touches roots that are complex it nevertheless represents the major strain of jealousy. Each act of business touches soil that is developed from innumerable sources, yet, because it is particular, it is the symbol of a particular emphasis.

Third: Every act is representative of a dominating purpose. It not only reaches backward, it reaches forward. It shows the avenue ahead; it expresses intention and desire.

These three things suggest something about the representative quality of our chamber of commerce. The chamber expresses not our simple, but our complex life. It is the projection of a wide complexity. It represents the conjunct life of a community. It does not represent the law in conjunction with other elements. It does not represent business, it does business in conjunction. It does not represent education, it does education co-operative. It does not represent politics, it does politics related to other community activities. It is not intended to benefit one trade or one industry or one political interest. It is intended to express, to represent, the conjunct life.

Second: The chamber of commerce is the representative of the major emphasis of this conjunct life, the co-operative spirit. As each human act is the representative of a man's preponderating emphasis so the chamber of commerce is the outstanding symbol of a community's co-operative work. All the elements that go to make up our complex life here combine, and the combination is made up of co-operative interests in streets and lighting, and factories, and housing and playgrounds, and child welfare, and the hospital. Reared upon our complex life it nevertheless represents our spirit of mutuality.

Third: Even as every human act is representative of a dominating purpose, so our chamber of commerce is representative of one dominating purpose; namely, the betterment of the community. Born of the community, living by the community, working for the community. Its purpose is, therefore, not partial but inclusive. It works at one thing now and at another thing tomorrow, not because of the peculiar excellence of each thing but because it knows that the excellence of each part creates a good whole.

The chamber of commerce, then, has a right to challenge the members of these two organizations, met here today in friendly relationship, to revitalize the institution that represents our complex life, our cooperative spirit and the dominating purpose of community good.

At his conclusion Mr. Abbott was given hearty rounds of applause. His talk was an inspiration, said President Saxton, adding that to be a live city we must be unselfish. He then congratulated President Finn upon the growth of the Lions club and its promise of success.

Offers Golf Cup.

A member of the Rotary club, Senator William G. Park, has offered to put up a cup for a tournament at the Norwich Golf club, and President Saxton was, by vote, empowered to appoint a committee in charge of the matter. Secretary Weymouth read a letter of thanks and appreciation from Mrs. James L. Crawford to the Rotary club.

Chairman Russell Clapp of the programme committee has named the following song leaders for next month: Eben Learned, Alfred G. Lillibridge, Louis R. Porteous, George L. Ingalls and E. LaRue Bliven.

Music at Backus Hospital.

The choral service at the W. W. Backus hospital Sunday afternoon was given by the A. M. E. Zion church choir, Miss Idella Scott, organist. The programme was as follows:

Anthem, Nearer, My God, to Thee; a duet, basso solo and chorus; Scripture reading and prayer by Rev. Mr. Brown; spiritual, True Hearted, by choir; anthem, Consider the Lilies, choir; spiritual, The Awakening, chorus, choir; anthem, Saviour, Source of Every Blessing; alto solo, Mrs. Edwards; bass solo, Mr. Wilson; spiritual, Alone; duet, Mrs. Edwards and Prof. Geary; chorus by the choir; anthem, Wake the Song, by the choir; spiritual, God Be With You.

Each number was very pleasingly rendered. The choir numbered: Sopranos, Mrs. Dixon Brown, Mrs. Ambrose Wilson, Miss Irene Gavathney, Miss Almyra Hall; altos, Mrs. Amazie Edwards, Mrs. Charles Hall and Miss Elnora Edwards; bass, Ambrose Wilson; director, Prof. William E. Geary. Rev. Dixon Brown, pastor.

James R. May, appointed as a committee by the superior court to dispose of the interest of Walter W. Philbrick in the property corner of Broad and Raymond streets, today sold the property to Thomas B. Terson of Thames View, a brother-in-law of Mr. Philbrick, whose bid was the highest of nine, Mr. Terson bidding $3,600. The property consists of a two-story house on Broad street, a small building on Raymond street and used for garage purposes, and land on which both buildings front.

Mr. Taylor, of the real estate department of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, has communicated with City Manager William A. Holt, stating that the former will be in New London this week for the purpose of conferring with the city manager on the later's demand of the railroad to oust the Yellow Cab company from its office location beneath one of the sets of stairs to the overhead bridge, at the foot of State street. It is the contention of the city manager that the railroad exceeded its authority in negotiating the lease as the property in question is a part of State street, therefore is owned by the city.

Although a day late in filing his election expenses, Councilor William C. Fox filed at the office of the city clerk today his expenses incurred at the city election, two weeks ago. Mr. Fox's statement shows that he expended $24.50, all for newspaper advertising. Councilor Lucius E. Whitton and Philip E. Douglass, the latter a defeated candidate have failed to make known the amount of their expenses, as provided by law.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Tuttle and Vernon Kelsey of Amagansett are spending a few days with New London friends.

Two patients at Lawrence hospital, both suffering from similar injuries and of a serious nature, are displaying symptoms of improvement. John J. Murphy, of Voluntown, an employe of the state highway department, sustained a stretching of the spine and fractured ribs by being run over by an automobile to which he was attempting to make repairs on Durfee Hill, Waterford. Mr. Murphy is now able to get about the hospital corridors in a wheel chair. Claude Treat, of Union street, an employe of the freight service of the New Haven railroad, who several weeks ago suffered a fractured spine when a motorcycle he was riding was struck by a reckless autoist near Glastonbury, Treat being hurled from the machine and landed in such a manner as to produce an injury that may leave him incapacitated for life, is also showing improvement.

Mrs. Arthur Cushman, of Hartford, has closed her summer home at Eastern Point and will spend the winter in a house leased by her on Colman street.

A gang of youths with language not fit for members of a family to hear have resorted at the corner of Main and Church streets and at the corner of John and Main streets during the early evenings of late and their conversation has annoyed people residing nearby to a degree that the police have been asked to clear the corners. Last evening Officers Graham, Perkins and Rehn took turns at clearing the resort and they think they have effectually put an end to any cause for complaint in the future.

W. Z. White has been secured to audit the accounts of the ferry management that it may become known what the receipts and expenditures of that enterprise were under the operation of Charles F. Willard, during the greater part of the year. Mr. White is an experienced accountant and he also is the auditor of Groton borough. Mr. Willard has several times attempted to explain what the ferry management had earned and what it had expended, but he has not yet been able to convince the city council that his figures are accurate and complete. The Willard interests have purchased the steamer Myra, and that boat has been used as a sort of auxiliary ferry for taking out parties, but it is held that her losses have been paid for from the receipts of the ferry.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Meany, among the few concessions holders at Ocean beach the past summer who made a profit worth mentioning, have gone to New Jersey to spend a vacation.

Malcolm M. Scott will be the next mayor of the city of New London—provided the members of the city council to take the oath of office next Monday night do not change their attitude in the matter before that time. Councilor Scott has been in office since the present city-manager form of government was adopted, two years ago, and now is slated to receive the complimentary position in the body as mayor. No organization meeting has been held since the election last Monday, when the third and final member was chosen to the council by the voters, but it is known that every member of the new council has given the matter of selecting a mayor consideration already and that Mr. Scott will be tendered the office.

Inspector M. E. Snow of the motor vehicle department conducted a hearing at the county courthouse in New London yesterday afternoon, permitting operators to be heard in relation to their licenses having recently been suspended for alleged violations of the automobile laws. Of the dozen operators summoned to appear, two failed to arrive at the courthouse, Walter D. Cummings of Norwich, charged with reckless driving, and Frederick Rodman of Killingly, charged with a fatality. In the case of Wilfred Perr of Moosup, charged with reckless driving and operating his car while under the influence of liquor, Perr's license was returned conditionally, with the understanding that Perr's employer must make application for the return of the license to be made and that the application be in writing. The license of Frank Piarski of Moosup was suspended 60 days on the charge of reckless driving; Alphone Michaud of Willimantic, charged with operating his car while under the influence of liquor, Philip Isper of Norwich, charged with reckless driving, and Arthur Dayton, charged with operating his machine while under the influence of liquor, had their licenses returned. Conferences were held with George Miller of Norwich, charged with five accidents; Calvin N. Edmunds of New London, charged with having three accidents, and Frank Minski of Jewett City, charged with two accidents. Inspector Snow took no action in these cases.

The Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking corporation, with a branch in New London, has just been awarded the contract for salvaging the seven United States destroyers that went ashore on the rocks on the Pacific coast. William A. Hull, Robert S. Gardner and Chester A. Beckwith, until a week ago employed at the New London office of the corporation, have been transferred to duty at the California office of the corporation.

Mrs. John H. Lane entertained at the Harbor club yesterday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Edward P. Lathrop of Brooklyn, N. Y. Auction bridge was played and the prizes were awarded Mrs. Thornton, N. M. Lathrop, Mrs. Owen C. Wolfe and Mrs Frank Mix.

W. A. Anderson of 47 Fairmount street, Norwich, was before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in Waterford town court tonight, charged with reckless driving. The case was nolled upon Anderson agreeing to pay the costs of court, which amounted to $16, and because of having entered into an agreement with the complainant in the case, Lieut. Com. James E. Maher, U. S. N., of New London, to pay the damage occasioned to Lieut. Maher's machine as a result of an accident in New London April 19th last. Anderson was taken into custody by State Policeman Dominick Tremp because of the accident at the corner of Broad street and Jefferson avenue, at the intersecting highways, in the day time, when both cars were damaged. Lieut. Maher insisted that Anderson be prosecuted for reckless driving, and because of the naval officer's persistency Anderson was haled into court. Anderson is employed by the Connecticut company and had a fine been imposed he would have suffered the loss of his operator's license.

New London has never collected nearly the whole of the personal tax due the city, but now is to make an effort to get all the money due on that account. Prosecutor Cronin has received from Tax Collector Allen C. Richards a list of the delinquents on the last levy and on Oct. 1st the former is to bring those who will not pay before the police court, that they may settle there. There will be attendant costs on all prosecutions, so that the settlement in court will be much more expensive than would be a settlement with the tax collector without any prosecution. Women, under the new order which have female the ballot, are liable for the tax as well as are the men and must pay whether they vote or have never been made voters if between the ages of 21 and 60.

ORDERS REACH THE RUHR TO CEASE PASSIVE RESISTANCE

Chancellor Stresemann Has Notified Entente Ambassadors of the German Government's Decision to Cease Passive Resistance in the Ruhr and the Rhineland—The German Minister in the Occupied Territory Will Represent the Government in All the Negotiations—France and Belgium Await Developments.

Berlin, Sept. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Chancellor Stresemann this evening notified the entente ambassadors of the German government's decision to cease passive resistance in the Ruhr and the Rhineland.

The chancellor received the representatives of the entente and discussed the political situation with them. He informed them of the German government's invention to cancel the ordinances relating to passive resistance. Semi-officially it is announced this will be done tonight.

The German minister for the occupied territory has been instructed by the government to take all necessary measures in the new situation, and he will accordingly represent the government in all negotiations.

Duesseldorf, Sept. 27.—(By the A. P.)—A Berlin despatch received here announces that the German government has issued orders to the officials in the Ruhr to resume work and cease passive resistance.

VON LOSSOW MILITARY COMMANDER IN BAVARIA

London, Sept. 27.—Minister of Defense Gessler, has appointed General Von Lossow military commander in Bavaria, according to a Central News message from Berlin this evening. A dispatch today mentioned the presence of General Von Lossow at a conference with Dr. Von Kahr and others in Munich and gave the general's title as "commander of the Bavarian Reichswehr."

FRANCE AND BELGIUM AWAITING DEVELOPMENTS

Paris, Sept. 27.—(By the A. P.)—All orders and regulations issued by the allied authority in the Ruhr will be maintained, it was said in official circles tonight, until the situation in Germany clears and it becomes known to just what extent the passive resistance has ceased in consequence of President Ebert's proclamation.

Former Chancellor Cuno's reparation offers are regarded by the allies as having been superceded by the later developments, it is learned, and the Germans will be expected to make entirely new proposals. If they decide to do so, then the allies are ready to turn the reparation clock back to January 11 and consider the whole situation anew, provided they are assured earnest cooperation from the German government.

REVOLUTION IN BAVARIA IS LOSING STRENGTH

Duesseldorf, Sept. 27.—(By the A. P.)—The Nationalist revolutionary movement in Bavaria is losing strength, according to a telephone message from the Duesseldorf Nachrichten's special Munich correspondent received tonight. The Volkspartei, the strongest Catholic party, has thrown its strength in favor of the Berlin government, the party's leader, Georg Heim, in a proclamation declaring that any revolutionary attempt by Ludendorff, Hitler, or anybody else would mean disaster to Germany.

It is declared in the proclamation that Ludendorff is the real director of the Hitler movement, and the population is called upon to keep cool and support Premier Von Knilling as the only wise leader in Bavaria.

The Nachhichten correspondent believes that no revolution would succeed in Bavaria, with the Catholic party opposed to it. Another indication that the Reich is still holding the upper hand is the fact that none of the Hitler meetings have been permitted to be held.

All treatres and other public halls in Duesseldorf have been rented for all day Sunday by the combined socialist and communist parties, who are using this method to prevent the Rhineland, separatists from holding monster meetings planned for that day.

The Separatists are arranging to bring in more than two hundred thousand adherents by thirty special trains from all ove rthe Rhineland and the Ruhr, but they will have no halls unless the occupation authorities requisition them.

SITUATION IN GERMANY IS COMPLICATED AND UNCERTAIN

Berlin, Sept. 27. —(By the A. P.)—A state of emergency has been proclaimed by both the Stresemann government and the Bavarian government presided over by Premier Von Knilling, and for the moment thte situation in Germany is a complicated and uncertain one. No indication is manifested around government quarters tonight however, to take an unduly apprehensive view of the turn of affairs created by the late exchange of amenities between Berlin and Munich and the appointment as dictator in Bavaria of Dr. Von Kahr, who during his days as premier of that state was the especial bane of the Berlin chancellor.

Although Herr Stresemann and his associates were visibly rattled at the precipitate manner in which the Bavarian action was carried out, the Berlin government heads tonight professed the belief that they once more have become the victims of Bavarian "idiosyncrasies," and seemingly realized their own inability correctly to appraise Munich psychology, despite their past experience with Bavarian diplomacy.

The talk of revolt and secession by Bavaria is scouted in official circles in Berlin, where the impression is given that the two governments are in complete accord with respect to common aims and that their proclamations in no way collide.

DIVISION IN MAINE OVER ITS RAILWAY TROUBLES

Boston, Sept. 27.—A sharp division in Maine over the best solution for its railway troubles was indicated by witnesses at the fourth day of the hearings on railroad consolidation, held here by Commissioners Hall, Eastman and Lee of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Three general plans are now before the commissioners for their consideration. One would tie all the New England roads except the Boston and Albany and the Canadian-owned lines together; the second would unite the Boston and Maine, Maine Central and Bangor and Aroostook with the New York Central, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford and the Central New England with the Pennsylvania.

The third plan, sponsored by President Morris McDonald of the Maine Central, and his directors, would join that road and the Bangor and Aroostook to the New York Central, by a link formed by the Worcester Nashua and Portland division of the Boston and Maine, and would hand the remainder of the Boston and Maine to the New Haven.

The split came over the third or "McDonald" plan. Its adherents declared that it would furnish Portland with a sorely needed direct line to the Hudson River and would lessen congestion of freight between Portland and Boston. They belittled the fears expressed by the plan's opponents, who insisted that it would mean the extinction of the valuable differential routes over the Canadian lines to the west by the powerful New York Central.

Testimony that the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific lines west from Portland were taking away large amounts of freight business from New England roads and American trunk lines was given by Richard H. Eaton, general traffic manager of the Maine Central Railway. Eugene H. Winslow, a Portland traffic manager, declared that Maine would eventually have to turn almost altogether to the Canadian roads for freight service unless conditions in New England roads were bettered to end congestion.

RENT STRIKING FAMILIES ORDERED TO VACATE

New York, Sept. 27.—The twenty rent striking families who lived three years rent free in a Bronx apartment house, came to the end of their Utopian existence today, when a municipal court decision giving them five days to pay back rent or get out, was handed down. George Magelweide, the landlord, said the tenants owed him sums aggregating $26,000. They took advantage of his absence in Oklahoma and Colorado to intimidate his agents, he said.

One of the agents said that residents of the house hung up red flags in their chairs at him, and that he was afraid to enter the house. They told him, he said, that landlords should be sent from Russia.

SEEK AN ACCOUNTING FROM GENERAL WOOD

Manila, Sept. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Leaders of the democratic party have filed a mandamus proceedings in the insular supreme court in an effort to compel Governor General Leonard Wood to make public the details of expenditures from the million peso independence fund.

Democratic members recently asked the governor general to authorize examination of vouchers in connection with expenditures from the fund for the reason that they believed the fund was being misappropriated by Manuel Quezon, and other leaders in the movement of independence. Governor General Wood announced he could not authorize such investigation unless specific charges were made.

Last Monday a committee laid before the executive ten specific charges of irregularity in connection with the funds disbursement. Quezon and two former congressman were named among others. Governor General Wood said he would take these charges under consideration.

TRAINMEN TO REQUEST INCREASE IN WAGES

Cleveland, Sept. 27.—(By the A.P.)—General chairman of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Order of Railway Conductors within a few days will present requests for wage increases of approximately 12 per cent to railroads in the eastern, western and southern sections of the country following completion today of the counting of ballots in a joint referendum vote of trainmen and conductors, which was practically unanimous in favor of presenting the wage increase proposal to the railroads.

Chairman and executive committee members of the three regional associations of the two organizations, headed by President L. E. Shepard of the conductors and W. N. Doak, vice president of the trainmen, have been counting the ballots for three days. The increase is asked to replace the practically 10 per cent wage reduction handed down by the United States railroad labor board on July 1, 1921, President Shepard said.

FAILED IN FLIGHT TO REACH WIFE BEFORE SHE DIED

Mineola, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Evans J. David, who started from Dayton, Ohio, by airplane this morning in an unsuccessful attempt to reach his wife in Lowell, Mass. before she died, arrived at Curtis Field at 5:40 daylight saving time today after a flight from Cleveland in four hours and thirteen minutes.

Mrs. David, it was reported from Lowell today, died at a hospital last night.

Mr. David learned of his wife's death when he reached Cleveland. He will go to Boston by train, and thence to Lowell. He had intended to fly from here to Boston, but in view of his wife's death changed his plans.

Wheat Conference In the White House

Request Made That Congress be Called in Session to Revive the U. S. Grain Corporation.

Washington, Sept. 27.—The wheat growing interests of the central northwest, suffering from low prices for the grain, laid their case directly before President Coolidge and other administration officials today with a request that congress be called in special session to enact legislation to revive the United States Grain Corporation.

The president, together with Secretaries Wallace and Hoover and managing director Meyer, of the war finance corporation, received the proposal as presented by a delegation of a dozen bankers and farmers from Minneapolis Federal Reserve District but made no promises. Members of the delegation said, however, that Mr. Coolidge showed a deep interest in their proposal with regard to the grain corporation and also in their request for reduction in freight rates on wheat and flour, and they left the White House after an hour's conference, pleased with the reception given their views.

The delegation conferred with Secretary Wallace, who has been studying the wheat price situation by direction of the president, later in the day for three hours and tomorrow they will meet with Secretary Hoover and probably Director Meyer. The president, it was learned, will call the two secretaries and Mr. Meyer into conference after they have met with the delegation and it is believed that the general agricultural situation and the wheat growers difficulties in particular will be discussed again by the cabinet at tomorrow's meeting.

Accompanied by Senator Frazier and representative Young, of North Dakota, and Senator Norbeck and Representative Johnson of South Dakota, the delegation, composed of nine bankers and three farmers, arrived at the White House shortly before noon for half an hour's conference, but it was more than an hour later before their discussion of the matter with the executive and his advisers ended.

Statistics and detailed statements showing the plight of the farmers of the central northwest as the result of the low wheat prices were presented by four or five spokesmen for the delegation and then Mr. Coolidge began asking the farmer members questions. Soon the president and the three farmers were involved in detailed discussion of the whole problem.

The question of the grain corporation's revival was thoroughly discussed, the delegation explaining that it was not their idea to have the corporation fix prices as it did during the war and immediately after but that they desired to have a government controlled corporation with a capital of fifty million dollars to buy and sell wheat for export and also on the domestic market. The operation of such a corporation would in itself stabilize the price of wheat and put the price at a higher level than that for which the grain now is selling, the delegation members explained.

The reduction in freight rates was not gone into detail at the White House conference but was taken up in the later meeting with Secretary Wallace.

ELEVEN LIQUOR RAIDS BY POLICE IN DANBURY

Danbury, Sept. 27.—In eleven raids tonight, local police officers arrested 13 men and two women on the charge of violations of the loquor law. Four second offenders were held in $1,000 bond each and the other 11 gave bonds of $750 each. The cases will be heard in city court Saturday mornins.

The police retail consisted of twenty supernumery officers and 11 of the regular force. The former were notified to appear at police headquarters tonight when it was expected they would be instructed concerning their duties during the fair here next week. When all had reported, however, they were called in pairs; given a warrant and told to raid the place named thereon.

All the evidence on which the raids were made was obtained by investigators employed by the city.

NO TROUBLE AT THE KLAN MEETING IN WORCESTER

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 27.—Although the police department prepared for a demonstration which it was feared would accompany a Ku Klux Klan session in Mechanics hall tonight having virtually the entire force on duty there was no disturbances to mark the event. With 2800 persons crowded into the hall and an overflow meeting in Washburn hall there were still 3,00 people in the streets waiting admission.

PRESIDENT BORNO NAMES NEW HAITIEN MINISTRY

Port Au Prince, Haiti, Sept. 27.—The Haitien ministry today resigned in a body, and President Borno named a new cabinet. The resignations were not due to a political crisis nor to a common cause, it is understood, but arose largely from personal reasons.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN IN WAGONER COUNTY

Wagoner, Okla., Sept. 27.—The arrival here today of a body of National Guards from Tulsa gave rise to reports that Wagoner county had been placed under martial law, which later proved unfounded. The troops were en route to Coweta, to take depositions in flogging cases.

$25 AND COSTS OF $15 FOR ILLEGALLY KILLING DEER

Ward Murder Case To Go To Jury Today

Prisoner's Confidence Shaken by Appeal for Conviction by Attorney General Sherman.

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Attorney General Sherman, the state's chief prosecutor in the trial of Walter S. Ward for the murder of Clarence M. Peters of Haverhill, Mass., delivered a final shlashing appeal to the jury today which visibly shook the confidence of the defense.

For three hours and 10 minutes the attorney general held complete sway over the crowded courtroom. The case which Isaac N. Mills, chief defendant's attorney, had parcelled and labelled so carefully yesterday in his four hours and 15 minutes before the jury, was assailed ruthlessly.

JusticeWagner will charge the jury at 10 a. m. tomorrow, and the fate of the accused thenceforth will be at the disposal of the 12 men. Tomorrow will be Ward's 32nd birthday.

Since the defense did not call witnesses, but rested at the close of the prosecution's case, it will not have opportunity for rebuttal.

Ward entered the courtroom smiling, arm-in-arm with his wife, a sheriff behind him. He could hear on all sides the buzzing spectators and catch snatches of comment.

Ten minutes later Ward's smile had disappeared under the ferocity of Sherman's attack and succeeding waves of crimson chased across the prison pallor, from his face to his neck.

"He framed the self-defense and the blackmail story"—"Ward was only pretending blackmail to get money out of his father, George S. Ward" —"blackmail? hokum"—"He fooled his attorneys, they found it out and are ashamed to admit it. Helped him to frame his story,"—"Fear dro e Ward to disclose that he killed Peters. If the boy's body hadn't been identified, four days after his death, the lips of Ward, police commissioner of New Rochelle, would have remained sealed to this day!"

Mrs. Ward, too, smiled as she took her place behind her husband, inside the rail. She carried a half dozen handkerchiefs and several more peeped from the envelopes of letters she apparently received in the morning mail. She nodded pleasantly to women friends who greeted her. To others she confided that the mail had brought her sixty letters of sympathy from other women all over the land. Since the trial began she had received nearly 3,000 such letters, she said, most, but not all, of them praising her for remaining staunch to her husband.

"When a lawyer has no defense he tosses sand in the eyes of the jury. Issues a smoke screen and gets out his camouflage," the state's attorney began. "The whole long summation by the defendant's counsel was a pitiful demonstration against the damaging and conclusive evidence submitted by the state.

"Supposing a man kills another in his office?. He gives himself up, saying the stranger was robbing his safe. Supposing it is discovered that there was no safe in that office, but that one was planted there the day after the shooting. That killing would be murder in the first degree."

Sherman used the illustration with his charges that the gun Ward turned over to authorities as the one with which Peters shot at him, was Ward's own gun, and that the blackmail story was a myth, belatedly related.

"A man is of course presumed innocent until he is proven guilty," Sherman continued. "But if, by statement or confession a man says he killed another in self-defense, and it is demonstrated that a part of that statement is false, the jury must cast out the untruths and judge on the facts that remain of the confession." The attorney declared it thus rested upon Ward to prove Peters was a member of a blackmail gang whom he shot in self-defense.

"Where is the proof of blackmail?" Sherman shouted, pointing at Ward. "He says he gave the gang $40,000 and that $75,000 more had been demanded of him. The only evedence that he was blackmailed is in his own statement. Where is the evidence of the Walter S. Ward black mail?

"We don't want to know about any scandal in his past, we don't want to besmirch the name of anybody. But don't you, the jury, want to know about that $40,000, about the blackmail gang? Don't you want to see some of those terrible letters the blackmailers sent him, threatening the lives of his wife and children; to hear about those telephoned threats?

"Where's Mrs. Ward? She should have been able to tell about this blackmail. Who are the blackmailers? Who ever talked to them? Who ever saw them? Where are they? Ward has his counsel fooled as he had District Attorney Weeks and the sheriff fooled 17 months ago."

Then, to disprove Ward's statement as to the manner he shot Peters, the attorney general drew out the bloody shirt and vest Peters wore, laid them on the jury-box rail, and proceeded with a vivid re-enactment of the shooting as the defense had described it.

Mrs. Ward buried her head. Ward scowled, squirmed and gritted his teeth. As the trigger snapped a silence as of death descended on the courtroom to be followed a moment later by a community sigh of shamefaced relief.

Sherman sought to illustrate that Ward could not have killed Peters in such an encounter without getting at such close range as to leave powder burns upon his victim's skin or clothing. He also demonstrated how Peters would have "slumped in a heap" with a bullet through the heart, and claimed Ward had "laid out Peters before he fled like a coward."

Ward's story of an encounter with the blackmailers the night before the killing, Sherman called "the Sunday night lie," and the broken glass in Ward's car he called a "plant", thought of by his agents four days after the shooting to bear out the lie.

CONTEST FOR AUTHORITY IN OKLAHOMA REACHES COURTS

First Action Instituted in the Supreme Court by Sheriff Bob Sanford of Tulsa—Asks for the Removal of National Guard Forces From His Office—Hearing Has Been Set for Tuesday on Injunction Proceedings to Restrain Military from Interfering With the Special Session of the Lower House.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 27.—(By the A. P.)—The first court action to test Governor J. C. Walton's power to supersede civil authority by the military was instituted in the state supreme court today when Sheriff Bob Sanford, of Tulsa county, filed a petition asking the removal of National Guard forces from his office.

A demurrer to the petition was filed by the attorney general to which attorneys for Sheriff Sanford are given an opportunity to make a reply. Oral argument was kent for October 5th.

The action was filed by Sheriff Sanford immediately after the supreme court granted his application to institute the proceedings. The sheriff asked leave to file the suit on the ground that the issue would prove embarrassing to Tulsa county courts in view of the martial law situation there. The attorney general's department agreed to the proposal.

HOUSE MEMBERS PLEDGED TO RETURN UPON CALL

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Pledged to return upon call of representative W. D. McBee, members of the lower house of the state legislature who were yesterday repulsed in an attempt to meet, began leaving the city late today for their homes.

Before leaving, house members signed a pledge to re-assemble upon McBee's call provided it had been previously determined by court decision that they were empowered to meet with out call by the governor.

INJUNCTION PROCEEDINGS BY STATE LEGISLATORS

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Injunction proceedings to restrain Adjutant General B. H. Markham and all members of the Oklahoma National Guard from interfering with the special session of the lower house of the state legislature were filed late today in state district court here.

The petition prayed the court to grant a temporary injunction pending a final hearing to "prevent B. H. Markham or his successors, and each officer and enlisted man under his command and their successors from interfering with these, plaintiffs as members of the house of representatives in assembling," and to prevent the military "from dispersing them when assembled."

Sixty eight members of the house, more than a majority, were named in the petition as plaintiffs.

Attorney General George Short, for the state, waived the summons of record. Charles E. McPherren, state senator, appeared for General Markham.

Hearing was set for next Tuesday

GOVERNOR MAY MODIFY MARTIAL LAW REGULATIONS

Expressing satisfaction with the situation here today, Governor Walton declared today "the fight is over so far as the house is concerned."

There were indications tonight that within the next few days the governor would modify his martial law regulations and retire the greater part of the troops now mobilized.

No relaxation in the investigation into the cases of mob violence will follow, however, it was made plain.

The injunction petition filed by the legislators declared that the action of Adjutant General B. H. Markham in dispersing them when they gathered at the capitol yesterday and in continuing through force and arms to prevent an assembly "was and is without authority of law, and was and is an invasion of the constitutional and civil rights of these plaintiffs."

WALTON ORDERS TROOPS INTO MURRAY COUNTY

Oklahoma City, Sept. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Troops of the Oklahoma National Guard were ordered into Murray county tonight by Governor J. C. Walton, in response to an appeal from citizens of Sulpnur, who charged local authorities with neglect in apprehending the perpetrators of numerous mob outrages there recently.

NAVAL OFFICERS FOLLOWED THE "DESTROYER DOCTRINE"

San Diego, Calif., Sept. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Commander L. P. Davis, captain of the U. S. S. Woodbury, fourth in line when the crash came, was the first defendant called to the stand when the naval court inquiring into the wreck of seven destroyers off Honda, Calif., convened today. Twenty three lives were lost in the stranding of the vessels.

Commander Davis corroborated previous testimony to the effect that navigators of vessels astern of the Delphy saw no reason for alarm in the course she was steering. He said there was no justification for them in "destroyer doctrine," had they chosen to question it.

"Destroyer doctrine," explained Commander Davis, "seeks to imbue in the officers of a squadron the spirit and ideas of the squadron leader and seeks to make them always ready to follow him without question."

"Was it not this spirit to do and dare and follow the leader that carried our destroyer force so successfully through the late war? asked Admiral William V. Pratt, presiding member of the court.

"Yes," answered the witness.

SUSPICIOUS DEATH OF MRS. CHARLES WEBB

Rye, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Mrs. Charles Webb, daughter of S. Jennings Gorman and a wealthy member of Westchester county society, died in the Westchester - Biltmore country club on Tuesday night under circumstances regarded by her physician as so suspicious that he refused to issue a death certificate, it was learned tonight.

It was reported that shortly before the death Mrs. Webb had changed her will in a manner to affect the distribution of her estate, estimated at between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, which she had inherited, and managed herself.

Unusual reticance was observed by all officials connected with the case, and relatives, after they once saw the investigation under way, refused to make any statements.

Mr. Webb, who was with his wife at the time of her death, could not be reached tonight at his home, his office or at his club.

DECISION AGAINST GOVT IN THE CAMP PIKE CASE

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 27.—Judge Jacob Trieber, in federal court here today denied a motion of the United States government asking modification of a recent order requiring the government to file a bill of particulars in its suit for $3,000,000 against James Stewart company, of New York, original contractor for the building of Camp Pike.

Great importance is attached to the decision because of the bearing it may have on eleven similar suits against wartime contractors totalling $50,000,000 which are pending in various parts of the country.

Judge Trieber, in denying the motion, ruled that the government would not be required to file a specific bill of each irregularity charged in the suit but that the complaint must set out a general course of discrepancies charged by the government, in order to allow the defendant a basis on which to prepare its defense.

New York, Sept. 27.—New York's press strike, which nominally ended today with the appearance for the first time in nine days of morning and evening newspapers as individual entities, will, is was indicated, be definitely concluded tomorrow night when the 3,200 strikers cast their expected vote for peace.

Four proposals will be voted upon at the meeting, chief among them being approval of the International union's contract with the publishers, and repudiation of the outlawed local 25 which called the strike. Creation of a substitute local also is proposed. Reinstatement of strikers will follow endorsement of these provisos, President George L. Berry, of the International, announced.

Display advertising increased. The present sixteen page folio will be the rule, pending complete settlement, publishers announced.

"DANDY PHIL" KASTEL WAS HEAD OF THE DILLON CO.

New York, Sept. 27.—William J. Fallon, criminal lawyer under indictment in the Fuller and company bankrupt brokerage case, testified today before referee Olney in the case of Dillon and Company, another bankrupt brokerage house, that "Dandy Phil" Kastel one time broker and well known on Broadway, was not only the real head of the Dillon company, but the company itself.

Fallon said he had known "Dandy Phil" for six or seven years, and had acted as his attorney. Early in the hearing he stated Kastel was a member of the firm "as far as he knew." Later he said "Kastel owned Dillon and company."

Kastel was connected with several financial investigations conducted by the district attorney's office, and at one time a $50 reward was offered for information leading to his arrest. Later he was questioned in connection with the Nickey Arnstein case, but was not held.

FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD BAY HORSE CAUSES FEUD IN MANSFIELD

Willimantic, Sept. 27.—Court proceedings have resulted from a 15-year-old bay horse in the possession of Richard Nichols and Elmer Warren, of Mansfield Center, but claimed by Mrs. Belle Huntington, a neighbor. The neighborhood has taken sides as to the ownership of the animal as last Wednesday the carcass of a horse was found on land of Mrs. Huntington and may be that of the horse which she owned.

Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews of the Mansfield town court ruled that the living horse be given the chance to establish its owner in a novel way.

Charles T. Nichols, father and father-in-law, respectively, of the men who possessed the horse, was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Huntington for having in his possession or harboring a horse not his own. The hearing was held the early part of the week, Justice Andrews presiding, Grand Juror Frank W. Millard acting for the state and Attorney Harvey of this city representing the defendant. Many witnesses were heard, including men who claimed to be former owners of the horse. The plaintiff and her hired man, Ernest Crane, remained positive as to their ownership of the horse. She said that she turned the animal out to pasture in the latter part of April and after ten days it disappeared.

The defense alleged that the horse under controversy was purchased in Westerly, R. I., by Ernest Lincoln of Willimantic, April 18 the animal was taken to Norwich and shortly after was shipped to Willimantic. Mr. Lincoln asserts that he traded the horse one week later with Eben Chappell of Chaplin in return for a horse and a cow. Chappell soon disposed of the horse to Robert Nichols and Elmer Warren.

When the plaintiff saw the horse she laid claim to it and appealed to the state police for assistance. State Policeman Hulburt took up the case. According to Justice Andrews' ruling the animal was turned loose on the Huntington farm. Judging from his actions the defendants and their friends stated that Mrs. Huntington's horse must have been stolen, or is dead.

A searching party including Charles T. Nichols, Richard Nichols, Eben Chappell, Ernest Lincoln, Frank Davis of this city, George Topliff and Ernest Crane went over the Huntington farm and the carcass of a horse was found in a swamp. Mrs. Huntington still remained positive in her opinion Thursday and the matter rested while awaiting the arrival of a state policeman to investigate the finding of the carcass. Up to late on Thursday the officer had not arrived.

Two sharp contests already developed in town politics—these having to do with the electioneering for and against six candidates for selectmen and three candidates for tax collector—will be augmented, it was forecasted Thursday, by a somewhat belated but none the less active drive relative to the town school committee makeup.

As the ballots are made up for the use of the voters at the polls next Monday, electors will be restricted, unless they write in names to suit their own inclinations, to voting, on the republican ticket, for Agnes H. Paine—the republicans having defaulted their privilege of naming an additional candidate—and to Emma F. Pilling and Ella A. Woodworth on the democrat ticket, the citizens' party ticket having split the difference and loaded their ticket with one candidate from the republican list of candidates and one from the democratic list of candidates.

The new contest, centering about town school committee candidates, leaves none of the three parties figuring in the election unbesmirched, in the viewpoint of voters who are in revolt. Those who criticisize the republicans say their caucus should have filled their ticket and given the voters a chance to vote for all the republicans possible.

The democrats come in for the most severe criticism from those who are now up in arms against the action of their caucus. Of their candidates for the school committee, Ella A. Woodworth is registered on the republican list and Emma A. Pilling is not registered on any caucus list of the town, and dyed-in-the-wool democrats aver they should not be asked to vote for anyone on a straight party ticket whose political sympathies and affiliations are with another party or are unknown through public record. It happens that Mrs. Paine, Mrs. Woodworth and Miss Pilling are all members of the town school committee at the present time.

As the citizens' party has named school committee candidates from other tickets, something they have been harshly criticized for, after coming into the fray as an independent organization, and not naming independent candidates, the figure only in a small way in the new controversy. Obviously, though, they have done no worse than the democrats, who have named one candidate registered as a republican and one candidate not registered at all on caucus lists of the town.

As the situation was shaping up Thursday, Mrs. Paine seems likely to suffer the least in the revolt apparently in full swing. Objections heard as to the republican ticket were more over the caucus not filling it with candidates than over the selection made, that the voters might have a full field from which to select.

Mrs. Woodworth, and particularly Miss Pilling, will be the candidates against whom the new drive will be centered, it being held that Mrs. Woodworth, registered as a republican voter, and Miss Pilling, not registered on either caucus list, are fairly open to attack by democratic voters. An additional ground for the drive against Miss Pilling is the fact that she signed the petition asking that the annual town meeting next Monday restrict the use of the town hall for professional sports and theatrical enterprises, such as motion pictures. This petition has stirred up more real interest in the coming town meeting than any other one clause in the warning therefor, as will be amply demonstrated next Monday, unless all signs fail. This particular proposition has brought about the same degree of complacency as is experienced by a man who nonchalantly pokes a stick into a hornets' nest.

Patently, there are only two avenues of attack left to the voters who are at all dissatisfied over the school committee nominations. They can vote for two candidates on the republican ticket by writing in an additional name. Or they can vote for such candidates as appeal to them by writing in two names on the democratic ticket opposite the names of the candidates on that ticket or opposite names on the citizens' ticket. This numbers pledged themselves Thursday to do, and the movement was spreading.

This action may amount to little more than a possibly unavailing form of protest, but it will be a means of relief. Depending on now centralized the new movement is will be its effect upon the election. In an effort to consolidate the movement, a drive was being made Thursday to get voters to write in the name of Miss Annie Day as one candidate against Miss Pilling. There was not the slightest evidence that Miss Day would approve this move, her selection being mentioned because of her long experience as a school teacher, her ability and fitness for the place for which her name was brought forward. It was promised Thursday that other independent selections might be suggested today or Saturday.

The attitude of the insurrectionists, if they may be properly termed that, was that if a democratic caucus by custom pledged to nominate avowed democrats for officers of the town, can promiscuously fill its ticket with republicans and non-registered voters, it is none the less the privilege of individuals within the party to parallel that action by voting for anyone they see fit, republican, democrat or independent.

One exasperated democrat pointed out Thursday that if the democratic candidates for the town school committee win out Monday—as they must win unless enough names are written in to defeat them—the democratic party will actually have only one bona fide democrat out of a total of nine members of the town school committee as against seven registered republicans and one member not registered openly with any political party.

There appears to be some apprehension, following the special borough meeting Wednesday evening, that the warden and court of burgesses might exceed the desires of the citizens of the borough as a whole in formulating traffic regulations under the carte blanche accorded them by the meeting, but there was assurance Thursday that nothing of the kind may be anticipated.

The borough officials charged with the onerous duty of working out a draft of regulations, with the assistance of representatives of the chamber of commerce and the selectmen, have no desire or intention of promulgating any rules that will in any way be more restrictive or irritating than may be necessary to bring about some semblance of orderly control of traffic, and, in any event, the voters of the borough will have final say in the matter under a statute adopted at the last session of the legislature. Borough officials have no relish for the important duty pressing upon them, and the average citizen may thank his lucky stars that it is not incumbent upon him, or her, to work out an arrangement that, no matter how carefully considered, is bound to meet minor or major opposition and criticism before and after it is put in force. One certainty is that any program of traffic regulation is certain to meet with more or less opposition, no matter how just or reasonable that regulation may be. It has been so in every town and city that has passed traffic rules, and Danielson cannot hope to be an exception. The officials' hope is to make a traffic regulating program that will not be burdensome and not injurious in any way to the town's best interests.

Charles Domingue, for many years a resident of Danielson, where he was for a long period employed as a clerk by the Quinebaug store, and later engaged in business on his own account, building a store for his grocery business on Carter street, died a few days ago at his home in Woonsocket. He leaves his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Philip Sylvestre, and a son, Arthur.

Louis Lague, for many years engaged as a barber here, has gone to Canada on a vacation trip. During recent years he has been a resident at Oakland Beach, R. I.

Harold E. Clements, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Clements of Franklin street, died Thursday morning at a hospital in Putnam. The child was to have undergone a surgical operation, but his condition was so serious that it was not performed. The body was brought here in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. The boy is survived by his parents and five brothers and sisters.

A message from Waterbury Thursday evening brought the information that a considerable party from that town, friends of Promoter Frank Barber, will come here this evening to attend the boxing exhibition in the town hall.

There appears to be some sentiment in favor of the borough selling the dwelling and other structures on the borough farm, reserving only enough of the property to provide amply for such sewer filter beds as the future may require. It is believed that a portion of the farm with the buildings would sell readily and for a good price now, as the property is a valuable one.

A deer that flashed across the state highway on Stearns hill Thursday afternoon narrowly missed being struck by passing automobiles. The deer is believed to have been fleeing from a dog—as a dog might flee from a flea.

John A. Benson of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

The Treble Clef club, a musical organization organized this year, has under consideration the matter of leasing a hall for rehearsals and socials during the late fall and winter period.

Operations are under way to remodel a two-story wooden structure of the Johnson group of buildings on Main street into modern stores. The property is now owned by Harry Evergates.

A somewhat metropolitan appearance is lent to Danielson's business section by the new electric signs that flare out their announcements each evening.

PUTNAM

There will be much of interest at today's session of the superior court in this city. At the opening of court, some more violators of the liquor laws, for whom bench warrants have been issued, are expected to plead. Following disposition of these anticipated cases, the criminal term will again recess, as is now the custom and the civil term will be opened.

Four uncontested divorce cases are listed to be heard. These are the cases of Jessie McK. Webster vs. Burt W. Webster; Leroy E. LaPlace vs. Nellie Bates LaPlace; William S. Exley vs. Ethel Exley; Della C. Rattee vs. Peter J. Rattee.

No cases on the civil list were heard this week, though assignments for trial days were made at the short calendar session last Friday, unforeseen circumstances having intervened. Reassignments and new assignments will be made today, and it is expected that the court will be active during the coming week and the following week.

Among the cases on today's calendar and awaiting assignment are the following to court: Edward A. Gooding vs. Trenor A. Rice; Ethel May Babcock Murdock vs. John Murdock, Joseph A. Baillargeon vs. Eleanor Marrotte, William H. Bowen vs. Jennie M. Bowen. To jury: Cornelius D. Shea vs. Nellie Shea, executrix. Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin will preside at today's session of court.

Brick work on the new Stoumbelis building, temporarily held up by the withdrawal of union workmen, is now under way and considerable progress is being made. Basement partition walls were being run up Thursday and the supporting I-beams and metal posts supporting the superstructure were being put in place. Carpenters also were engaged in laying floors on the street level floor. Indications are that the work will go forward steadily, giving Putnam another fine new building within a few months' period. The new block is on the site of the destroyed Donahue building, which was totally consumed in a fire on Washington's birthday, this year.

Herswith is presented a list of the candidates of the republican and democratic parties for the annual town election to be held Monday next:

Republican—Assessor, Ernest B. Kent; board of relief, Frederick W. Seward; selectmen, Luther M. Keith, Clarence E. Pierce; town clerk, treasurer and agent of the town deposit fund, David Flagg; auditor, Leon T. Wilson; collector of taxes, Irving H. Miron; constables, Peter A. Gardner, Hermon G. Carver, August Martin; registrar of voters, Herman G. Carver; town school committee, Joseph A. P. Gagne, Silas M. Wheelock; library directors, Frank F. Russell, Eric H. Johnson, Abbie H. Keith.

Democratic—Assessor, Edmond Dubois; board of relief, Elizabeth A. Wells; selectman, Alfred Bonneville; town clerk, treasurer and agent of the town deposit fund, David Flagg; auditor, J. Harry Mann; collector of taxes, Joseph L. Ryan; constables, Origene Touchette, Alphonse D. Beausoliel, Armand Trahan, Napoleon J. Bizaillon; registrar of voters, George Potvin; town school committee, James J. Charron, Eugene Berthiaume; library directors, Bernard J. McGarry, Pete J. Ryan.

In various towns in the eastern section of Windham county at the annual town meetings next Monday the voters will be asked to pass upon causes making an appropriation for the Day Kimball hospital in this city. While this invaluable institution is located within the limits of Putnam, it has come to be regarded in the light of serving many other towns, and serving them well, and with this in view the practice now is for these towns to make an appropriation for the hospital each year. These appropriations are never hindered in their passage and invariably receive a unanimous vote, a testimonial as to how residents of nearby towns appreciate the hospital and all it does for afflicted humanity in all the townships hereabouts.

Actual laying of concrete is about ready to begin, out on Killingly avenue, near Grove Street cemetery, where the northerly end of the job of improving the route to Killingly is to start. Half the width of the highway for a considerable distance had been made ready on Thursday to receive the concrete that is to be laid down and the giant cement mixer was in place and about ready to go into action. By building one-half the width of the highway at one time it is believed that the route can be kept open to traffic during the great part of the period of construction work.

A steam shovel is now at work near the Putnam-Killingly line, eliminating more sharp curves and preparing the road bed as it is inteded to have it before the concrete is put down.

The matter of building a new school house at Mechanicsville will again come before the voters of the town of Thompson when they assemble for their annual town meeting next Monday. Under clauses in the warning the town will pass upon the matter of appropriating $25,000 for the struction of the new building and to see whether the meeting will appoint a committee to acquire land by gift or purchase as a site for the proposed structure. When the proposed new school was first generally talked about a number of months ago, it was announced that the French River Textile company, since taken over by the Guerin Mills, Inc., and the name changed to the Beachmont Worsted Company, had offered to donate a site for a new school building if the town of Thompson would agree to build one.

Peter A. Gardner and Miss Clara Larned, probation officers in Putnam, are to attend a meeting of probation officers of the state to be held at Trinity M. E. church in New Britain. One of the speakers at this meeting will be Charles A. Shute, secretary of the National Probation Officers' association.

Tonight there will be an exodus of boxing fans from this city to attend the bouts in Danielson, the outstanding feature of the card offered being the appearance of Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion of the world in two four-round sparring exhibitions with his partners.

State Attorney Charles E. Searls had sufficiently recovered Thursday from a slight illness of the past few days to be at his office and give his usual attention to court and other matters.

The meeting of the Woman's Board of the Day Kimball hospital is to be held this (Friday) afternoon at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce.

Ernest L. Chandler, member of the police force of the city, has received gracious acknowledgment from Mrs. Warren G. Harding for a poem Officer Chandler wrote and forwarded at the time of the death of the late president.

One of the important road building projects now under way in this section of the state—the rebuilding of the state highway between this city and Pomfret—is nearing completion. It was also stated here Thursday that the Chepachet route to Providence, subject to detour since last spring, will also be opened again for through travel a little later in the fall.

Merrill P. Paine, formerly a resident of this city, has been appointed director of English in the school of New Haven, an important position in the educational field in Connecticut. Mr. Paine is a graduate of Putnam High school and at one time a few years ago was principal of Israel Putnam school.

DON'T NEGLECT CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

Sight should not be lost of the fact that the people of this state are being called upon at the election next Monday to give expression to their approval or disapproval of the act of the last general assembly which approved an amendment to the state constitution whereby the governor can veto any separate items in appropriation bills if he believes they should not be approved.

This calls for and should get expression from the people. It ought not to be neglected. A favorable majority vote means that the amendment becomes effective, and an unfavorable vote destroys it.

This amendment was proposed and approved because of the many instances where a governor has felt that certain items were not justified, and yet rather than veto the entire measure in order to get rid of the objectional features, they have been unwillingly sanctioned. It is a change for the best interests of the state, for even though there should be a case where the governor's judgment was not believed the right one it could be overridden by a majority vote of the legislature, while the mere fact that the governor would have the opportunity to veto items in an appropriation bill would be sufficient reason for discouraging any such attempts to rush through unwise appropriations.

Having been submitted to the people by the legislature in conformity with the law, the voters ought not to slight it. Those who go to the polls should not consider that they have done their duty by voting for candidates alone. This, like other questions, requires action by the voters and the voters should see that they make the most of their opportunities.

Get posted on how to vote on the question and cast your vote, whether you happen to be where voting machines or ballots are used.

CROSSING ACCIDENTS.

It is always easy to say what should have been done by others in tight places when the thing that was done proved to be most unwise and fatal. Too often it is a case of what should have been done in a precautionary way so that the tight place would be avoided.

In connection with the crossing accident at Windsor Locks where one was killed and two others were injured it is reported that the driver saw the gates set against him, that the warning bell indicating the approach of a train was ringing and inferentially he must have known the danger that existed but he couldn't stop the auto, which crashed through the gates onto the track in front of the oncoming express.

One may wonder why, under such circumstances, the machine was not pitched or turned off from the highway instead of proceeding through the lowered gates, but it cannot fail to be noted that such a place as a railroad crossing calls for having a machine under control. Quite evident from the reported crashing through the gates is it that the machine was not under the control that it should have been, that speed had not been slackened in anticipation of a real danger spot. The consequences were what have been repeatedly experienced at such places and for similar reasons. They are what can be expected where such disregard is displayed.

It is the unprotected crossing that offers the greatest danger, but when no attention is paid to the warnings and the signals where established there is not indicated that interest in preservation of self and others that should be expected.

In view of the glaring examples that are being offered to show what the penalty is for refusing to observe safety measures, it is surprising that there are so many crossing accidents.

MUSCLE SHOALS AGAIN.

Much has been said about the Muscle shoals project from the time it was put under development by the government to the present time and the end is not yet. Efforts, however, to charge the government with endeavoring to keep the plant away from Henry Ford are not likely to make much progress.

When development at Muscle shoals was started a contract was made with the Alabama Power company for the use of certain land on which the Gorgas steam plant was built. Part of that agreement was that the company should have the right to acquire the plant or it should be removed. In connection with the offer that was made by Henry Ford of $5,000,000 for the Muscle shoals project he sought to have the Gorgas plant included. Had such not conflicted with the Alabama Power company contract, which was made by the Wilson administration, all might have been well, but in view of the fact that the power company has not exercised its right and bought the steam plant for over $3,400,000 it becomes evident that Mr. Ford has been seeking to acquire the water power project, and his interest throughout has been manifested in the water power plant rather than a steam plant, for about a million and a half.

Regardless of the price Mr. Ford was willing to pay it becomes clear that it is still possible for him to get the water power project for such use as he has contemplated, even though the steam plant has been disposed of in keeping with the contract. In fact it doesn't appear that there is anything standing in the way of erecting a steam plant in connection with the Muscle shoals water privilege if it is so desired. There is no chance of getting far in any claims of a bad deal when contracts are adhered to.

NO TIME FOR APATHY.

When election day approaches it cannot be, or at least ought not to be, overlooked that it pays the voter and the taxpayer to get to the polls and register his vote for what he believes to be the best for his community, the best for his neighbor and the best for himself in the way of officials and such policies as they can be expected to follow.

Standing for good government doesn't mean simply voicing an opinion in the course of a conversation, or offering criticism here and there as things are done which do not meet with approval. It calls for getting to the polls and casting a vote for those who can be relied upon to give efficient guidance to town affairs, measure up to the responsibilities of public office and produce results that are sure to satisfy.

Can such results be obtained? Well, it is fully recognized that for the past eight years Norwich has had an efficient town government in spite of conditions which were beyond the control of the town authorities. What has been done can be repeated. Furthermore what has been done must stand as a guide for the next administration and is certain to with the selection of the republican candidates.

Each year is important in the matter of town government. Some years may develop greater problems than others, but in none should there be a disposition on the part of the voters and taxpayers to neglect their own interests.

As election day approaches it is no time for apathy. On the contrary it is time for an awakened interest, a time to individually insist upon the best possible town government by getting out to the polls instead of staying at home. Get interested in your own affairs, stand back of the republican nominees and the continuance of good government will be insured.

THE COUNCIL AND THE LEAGUE.

The council of ambassadors has declared that Greece must pay to Italy the indemnity of 50,000,000 lire which had been deposited by Greece as evidence that it would abide by the decision of the council concerning the Greco-Italian dispute. This follows the report of the commission named by the council to investigate the boundary murder and should mean the winding up of the unpleasantness between the two countries, barring of course the fact that nothing appears to have been said concerning the murder of the 16 children by the Italian navy on the island of Corfu.

As the result of the adjustment credit of course rests upon the council of ambassadors. It proved to be able to handle the situation where the league of nations was not, or where the league's competency to act in the matter had been defied by Italy.

What is going to be the outcome of this challenge to the league? Is the same development to be expected every time such a dispute arises, or when war between nations is threatened? Possibly the work of the council of ambassadors will be regarded in such favorable light that it will be considered adequate in the future without any league. Strange things happen in Europe.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Having the town's business on a sound footing, the thing to do is to keep it there.

The man on the corner says: As we notice the leaves fall we might as well bow gracefully to the inevitable.

It may yet be that anthracite will be put up in candy boxes, tied with gold string and given for Christmas presents.

Persia stands in the way of the interpretation of Article X of the league covenant. Does it fear disillusionment?

Having obtained some of the facts about the coal industry the coal commission wisely concludes that it would be folly to fail to continue to keep posted.

It is good conduct of town business when all work is attended to, all bills paid, and a balance in the treasury sufficient to meet a county tax and at the same time cut the town tax rate a half a mill. No wonder there's a desire to continue it.

Much latitude is allowed a judge The policy of leniency has been followed until its weakness has been recognized and disrespect for law increased. For that reason the suggested change of policy is both timely and to the point. The court is expected to do its part in law enforcement.

PATRONIZING BELINDA

"How do you like your new neighbors, sis?" asked Miss Belinda's brother. "I suppose you've had a chance to get rather well acquainted with them during my week's absence."

"Yes, rather well, Ben."

"He is. I like him very much, but——"

"Now, Belinda, don't tell me that you are playing favorites in that family," teased Ben. "Now 'fess up, what's the trouble with Mrs. Phelps? Is she jealous of you, my dear?"

"What utter nonsense you can talk sometimes, Ben," laughed Miss Belinda. "Do you know anything about the circumstances of Mr. Phelps? Do you think they have to be very careful about expenses?"

"Careful nothing. Phelps bought his country home just because he was looking for a place to spend money. He's been mighty lucky the last few years."

"The last few years, that explains it," said Miss Belinda. "I can see just how it is that Mrs. Phelps isn't quite used to having plenty, perhaps, for the family needs. I'm going to like that woman after all, Ben."

"Well, a few days ago she came into the garden and admired my berry patch extravagantly I told her I would help her set out raspberries and currants in the autumn, if she wished, and she anwreed merely with a doubtful 'perhaps.' Yesterday morning she sent her little girl over to ask if she could have some berries, and of course I was delighted to send all the child could carry. I put leaves in the boxes and laid a spray of the most perfect fruit across the top. I don't mean to brag, Ben, but the berries did look beautiful."

"You don't mean to say that she didn't appreciate your artistry?" asked Ben.

"Well, she may have appreciated it, but she didn't show it if she did. She called me up in about half an hour and said she wished to have a plain talk with me.

"'Certainly,' I replied.

"'Wel, she began with some heat, 'I don't want you to imagine because Im from the city that I can be fooled into thinking that two boxes of berries are four boxes. No amount of camouflage of leaves and sprays can deceive me. I've just packed those berries in two boxes, and then they aren't any too full. Think of crushing those fresh delicate berries into two boxes, Ben.".

"She evidently has no soul for the beautiful, sis. What did you say to her, I'd like to know?"

"I wasn't able to get in a word, or she wished to tell me that she had decided that she didn't care to employ me to lay out her small fruit garden in the autumn. She said she would rather have a landscape artist do it.

"'I shall want to have guaranteed plants,' she said, 'and I don't suppose you could guarantee your roots, could you?

"'No,' I answered meekly, 'but I should be glad to help you with——'

"'No, thank you,' she interrupted, 'to do our work Mr. Phelps can afford to get someone who is responsible. You see, this place has cost a great deal, and I don't feel that we can take any risks with the planting we do. And as to the berries you have sent over this morning, you certainly won't expect me to pay for four boxes when you've sent only two really. I'm willing to pay a fair price, but I simply won't be gouged.'"

"I said just as pleasantly as I could that I didn't expect her to pay anything, that I had sent the berries for a present, and that I hoped she would enjoy them. Then I hung up, for I—well, I felt sorry for her."

"She had got herself in a pretty mess, but of course you'll help her out of it, Belinda, and make her your friend for life. I know you, old girl."

AMERICANS FAST BECOMING WORLD LEADERS IN THRIFT

While there are many notable examples of waste in the United States, the people as a whole are thrifty and are steadily becoming more so through the processes of education and experience. Here are some facts:

Savings deposits in banks and trust companies increased more than 4 per cent. or a total of $680,000,000 during the last fiscal year for which reports are now available.

The number of depositors increased nearly 6 per cent. during the same time. There was an increase of approximately 60 per cent. in the number of depositors in school savings banks thus showing the possibilities for thrift educational progress in the schools of our country.

There is an average of more than one savings account to every family in this country, in addition to which there are in round numbers 5 [illegible] members of building and loan associations.

There are millions more who are buying homes, investments, life insurance, farms and, in various other ways, are practicing thrift.

It would seem reasonably safe to estimate that one-half of the people of our country are today adhering to some substantial plan of systematic thrift practice. We are fast becoming world leaders in thrift.

Perhaps the most encouraging development is the progress being made among school children. The boy saving his pennies in the school savings bank today is the thrifty, prosperous, progressive citizen of tomorrow.

Thrift does not by any means consist entirely of saving money, but the steady increase in the ranks of the nation's savers is a dependable manifestation of thrift progress.

No more profound assurance of the continued upbuilding of our nation and the preservation of the present admirable social order could be vouchsafed than the widespread gains in thrift practice here alluded to.—American Society for Thrift.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Assessment Map.

Mr. Editor: With your permission and use of a small space in your paper, I would like to call the attention of the taxpayers and voters of the town of Norwich to one item as published in the call for the next town meeting and that is for an appropriation of $6,000 for the continuance of making the assessment map which I think is of little or no use to the assessors as it is being made, if the sheet on exhibition in the assessors' office is a fair sample of what we are to get when all is completed. I would like to call the taxpayers' attention to several things on said sample:

First—I wish the taxpayers would inspect the sheet above referred to and see if it shows any different improvements on one lot than another which is in my opinion a required information to assess the property according to the statutes, as we are not only assessed on the land but the improvements thereon. Second—I wish the taxpayers would look at the above mentioned section of the map and see how many pieces of property shown on the mabp are lacking any dimensions.

I also wish for the taxpayers' information to ask some one that knows what portion of the town of Norwich has been covered during the last year so that we may form an idea of what the total map will cost us when completed, and how often the map is to be revised after its completion. I think it is about time for the taxpayers of Norwich to investigate the leaks in our city and town treasuries and not provide for more leaks and thereby increase our taxes. As is shown by a tax bill, I received a few days ago for my taxes in Providence, R. I., we have more leaks than they have. The Providence tax bill is for $2.80 on a $100, which covers a state tax, county tax, school tax and city tax for an entire year. Taxes in the town of Norwich, $2.30 on a $100 plus. We poor people who live inside the city limits are asked to pay an extra tax of $2.50 on a $100. The above is not written because I did not have a chance to submit a price for the map as I could not attend to the work and my business has increased greatly since the work on the maps were begun as several of the property owners have employed me to check up the surveyors work.

Notice that the rate of the Norwich town tax is identical with the Providence tax.

Yours respectfully,
GEORGE E. PITCHER.

Serious Injustice to Mr. Prothero.

Mr. Elitor: My attention has been called to a letter in this evening's issue of the Norwich Record, which, under a pretense of advocating a spirit of non-partisanship in town affairs, contains a more or less veiled attack upon Messrs. Delaney and Prothero, who are respectively democratic and republican candidates for election to the board of assessors at the election to be held on Monday, Oct. 1st. So far as Mr. Delaney is concerned, my acquaintance with him is but slight and I am not interested in the factional fights of the democratic party, but in the case of Mr. Prothero I feel that the letter referred to does him a serious injustice.

Mr. Prothero is not only a republican, a resident of this town since boyhood and a young man of character and ability but he has for the past eight years been a member of the board of relief of this town and has, by virtue of this position, been called upon constantly to deal with matters of the same nature as would occupy his attention as a member of the board of assessors, with which board his duties have brought him in frequent contact. It is seldom that our citizens have an opportunity to elect a man to this office with so much experience and training and, in so electing him they will provide a worthy associate to his companion on the republican ticket, John E. Ost.

Respectfully yours,
H. H. PETTIS.

Norwich, Sept. 27, 1923.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Science has furnished many self-sacrificing heroes who have given health and life in the cause of suffering humanity. One of these is the English scientist, Reginald G. Blackall. For many years senior radiographer at the London Hospital, Mr. Blackall is a victim to X-ray dermatitis (inflammation which destroys the skin) as a result of his constant exposure to the rays. In the early part of this year he had to have his left hand removed, and recently it was found necessary to amputate his right hand. Only forty years of age, he is virtually at the end of what promised to be an unusually brilliant career. For two years now he has been unable to carry on any active work, but he still acts in an advisory capacity to the hospital.

IF WE KNEW

Could we but draw back the curtains
That surround each other's lives,
See the naked heart and spirit,
Know what spur the action gives,
Often we should find it better,
Purer than we judge we should;
We should love each other better
If we only understood.

Could we judge all deeds by motive,
See the good and bad within,
Often we should love the sinner
All the while we loath his sin.
Could we know the powers working
To overthrow integrity,
We should judge each other's errors
With more patient charity.

If we knew the cares and trials,
Knew the effort all in vain,
And the bitter disappointment,
Understood the loss and gain—
Would the grim, external roughness
See, I wonder, just the same?
Should we help where now we hinder?
Should we pity where we blame?

Ah, we judge each other harshly,
Knowing not life's hidden force;
Knowing not the fount of action
Is less turbid at its source.
Seeing not amid the evil
All the golden grains of good;
Oh! we'd love each other better
If we only understood.

Acids in Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain
How to Treat

Medical authorities, state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas, or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

MEN AND WOMAN ON BOZRAH FARM FIGHT

After a telephone call in a weeping woman's voice, asking for a policeman, received at police headquarters Thursday night about 9 o'clock, Capt. D. J. Twomey rushed Officer Patrick Murphy off in the motor patrol wagon to the Golub farm in Bozrah, where the woman said some man had half killed his partner. State Policeman Lynehan, who happened to be at police headquarters, rode with Officer Murphy.

By the time the patrol wagon reached the farm, the fight was over and the battered and bloody participants were sitting around looking at each other. From what the officers could learn, Nicoli Eleuchinas had started to beat his wife Kitty because of jealousy over Nick Golub, who lives with them. Golub had taken the wife's part and fists, teeth and a bottle left their marks on the fighters. The three and one other man were arrested and brought before Justice of the Peace Sweeney who put them under $50 bonds each for a hearing.

CALLS MILITARY MEN TO TESTIFY ON PEQUOT CASINO REPUTATION

Attorney G. C. Morgan mustered military and naval men in the superior court here Thursday afternoon to testify to the good reputation of the Pequot Casino at New London, whose proprietor, John J. Carney, and his bartender, Henry Pellyzani are on trial on the charge of violation of the liquor law.

Attorney Morgan pronounced the names in clarion tones as he called each man to the stand in order, "Capt. Chappell, Brigadier General Payne, Lieut. Wood, U. S. N." The navy man wasn't there but Attorney Morgan promised to have him on deck before the trial is over.

When court came in Thursday morning with Judge Allyn L. Brown presiding, State Attorney Hull proceeded with the evidence for the state.

County Detective William E. Jackson testified he had heard of the reputation of the place for selling liquor. He had seen a well known New London man drunk there. When Carney was arrested he asked privilege of consulting his lawyer, Frank Q. Cronin, brother of Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin. Witness testified that when Prosecutor Cronin left town for his vacation this summer, he left search warrants for the Pequot Casino for Jackson to use if he wanted to, but none of them were used, witness said, because they would be illegal if served while the prosecuting attorney was absent from town.

Coddington B. Pendleton testified he was there the night of the raid and had met Matthew Malinowski, who testified Wednesday that he bought drinks of gin at the casino from a colored waiter. Carney, the defendant, had asked who Malinowski was and witness told him. Carney's reply was that he didn't care as he was selling.

Police Sergeant Samuel Hick testified to the reputation of the place and said that on the night before Race day he had been detailed to watch the place in plain clothes. He had heard many complaints that the police were getting the little fellows and why didn't they get the Pequot place? Witness said he had seen many young girls drunk at the Casino. In presence of Fitzpatrick and William E. Jackson he said Carney had said to him: "It's no use trying to kid you fellows. I have no liquor. More was sold by my colored waiters than I ever sold."

Two Women Give Testimony.

Mrs. Annie C. S. Fenner, member of the first city council under the new council-manager form of government and a former member of the school board, testified she has a proprietary interest in the Babcock Printing Press Co., located in Pequot avenue and employing 350 men. She has always taken an interest in politics and civic affairs, she said. She declared she had heard of the bad reputation of the place but she was unable to say who had told her. Attorney Morgan asked her if she made any complaint against it while she was a member of the council and she said she had not. She also admitted she had made no formal complaint against the Casino since she had retired from the council.

Mrs. Alice Hunt, protective officer, with an office in the city hall, said she was a member of the New London police department but not responsible to the head of that department. She testified that she had heard they had wild times at the Pequot Casino and liquor was sold there. She was asked by a member of the police department not its head, to observe the place. She said that she had done a good deal of her work at Dancland at Ocean beach and the proprietor of that place, Mr. Swanson, had told her she had better go to Pequot Casino, where there was more for her attention than at his place.

Witness said she visited the Casino for a short time on one occasion. She heard from an adjoining room sounds of shouting and pounding on a table as though the occupants of the room were having a loud and boisterous time such as would result from their being intoxicated. In the dining room she said she saw many half-filled bottles on the tables but did not know what their contents were. On the dance floor she saw one dancer kiss his partner while dancing.

Mrs. Grace R. P. Bitgood, president of the Saturday club, testified she had heard the reputation of the place but could not say from whom. Exception to admission of her testimony was also noted.

Patrolman William Babcock testified he had visited the Casino twice and while he saw nothing improper going on he had heard of the reputation of liquor sale there.

Joseph F. Fitzpatrick, federal prohibition agent, said he had received a complaint against the Casino by telephone from his chief in Hartford. He knew a federal agent (whom he did not name) had purchased a drink there. He told the defendant, Carney this fact and Carney replied: "Not from me." Witness said he had cautioned Carney prior to Race day to watch his step and not sell any liquor or they would surely get him.

Defendant on Stand.

John J. Carney of East Haven, the accused, was the first witness whom Attorney Morgan called for the defense. He testified that he had taken the Casino on a lease for $2,000 from June 1 to Nov. 1 and that business had been very poor.

Court adjourned for the noon recess with Carney on the stand and when the session was resumed Capt. Henry C. Chappell of New London, secretary of the F. H. and A. H. Chappell Co., a New London alderman, was called to the stand.

Mr. Chappell testified that the reputation of the Casino was that liquor could not be obtained there.

On cross examination Mr. Chappell said he hadn't heard anything about the night before boat race at the Casino. He said he had dined there several times with his wife and had been there on other occasions and had not indulged in intoxicating liquor at the Casino or on the premises in the past summer. Major Hull's question as to where he had indulged was excluded by the court on the objection of Attorney Morgan.

Andrew F. Connor of Norwich testified that he had dined at the Casino several times with his family during the past summer, always on Sunday. After attempts to qualify Mr. Connor as a witness on reputation, Mr. Connor said he did not know what it was and he was excused.

Brigadier General Morris B. Payne, an architect, of New London, said he had visited the Casino, but he did not know what the reputation was.

Dr. Roland S. Lindsley, a New London dentist, declared that he had many patients from the Pequot neighborhood and he had visited the Casino. Its reputation was good. It was a fine place to have a good time and about the only place to go.

George D. Garvey, formerly of Norwich, conductor of a school of dancing at the Mohican hotel in New London, who was engaged at the Pequot Casino in the early part of the season, testified that the reputation of the place was good as to intoxicating liquor.

James D. Robertson, an automobile dealer of New London, testified that he had been at the Casino this summer and it had the reputation of not selling intoxicating liquors.

Carney Resumes Testimony.

At this point, Mr. Carney was recalled to the stand by Attorney Morgan. Mr. Carney produced two sale slips showing ginger ale and orangeade which were the only slips for such drinks on the days Mr. Malinowski testified he bought such drinks. The serial numbers on the slips showed the days on which they were issued. Attorney Morgan put in as an exhibit the entire bunch of sale slips for those days, Aug. 29 and Aug. 30.

On Aug. 29, the accused testified, he left the Casino about noon and drove to New Haven in his machine. He did not return until the following evening about 8 o'clock. Carney said he was not at the Casino when Malinowski was there. He did not know of the waiter serving these drinks.

Carney described the waiters' locker room and where the officers found liquor in the locker used by a waiter named Coleman. The witness said Coleman told him this liquor was some that had been left by a guest the night before and found by the waiter and put in his locker. Carney denied that he had any gin at the Casino on the night of Aug. 29 for sale or any other purpose.

Regarding a bottle of sherry that was in the kitchen, Carney said this had been provided at the request of the chef for use in sauces. Carney denied absolutely that he himself sold any liquor.

On cross examination Major Hull asked Carney if three well known New London men, a doctor, a dentist and a lawyer, were intoxicated on the night of June 21 at the Casino. Carney answered that he didn't see them intoxicated but there were many persons intoxicated there that night. He admitted that on a certain night Coddington Pendleton told him there was company outside and this company was state police officers. Carney said he didn't believe he said to the officers: "I can't kid you fellows. I have sold but more has been sold by the colored help." He denied that he knew a search warrant was out for his place.

Major Hull's cross examination was comparatively brief.

Theodore J. Emmons of New Haven, an automobile mechanic, testified that Carney drove into the garage there on Wednesday night the 29th of August, arriving at 9 o'clock.

Frank Amato of New Haven, an electrician, testified that he saw Carney on Church street, New Haven, on the evening of Aug. 29th, which was Wednesday night.

FINES FOR VIOLATIONS OF MOTOR REGULATIONS

Two cases of driving with illegal lenses, one for a truck without mirror, and one for reckless driving, the first effects here of the work of the flying squadron of the state police, were before the police court Thursday morning, and each drew fines. State Policeman Hanson was the complainant in each case.

Charles B. Gardner of Westerly was fined $5 and costs, $14.46 in all, for driving his automobile with illegal lenses. James L. Wells, another out of town man, paid actual costs of $4.15 for a similar offense. On a charge of reckless driving, Paul Wirth, driver of a Hartford truck, was fined $100 and costs. He took an appeal to the court of common pleas.

Alfred Bouchard, driver for a Providence trucking firm, was fined $5 and costs for not having his truck equipped with a mirror. He paid $14.46. George Luckman of Hartford was not in court when his case of reckless driving was called and the case was continued. The state police will take the matter up for investigation.

HEALTH CONDITIONS GOOD IN NORTH STONINGTON

Health conditions have been fairly satisfactory during the past year, said Thurman P. Maine, M. D., health officer of the town of North Stonington, in his annual report. There were several cases of whooping cough at Clark's Falls in the winter, the report says. The epidemic followed the visit of a Hope Valley child who was suffering from the disease. A few cases of measles were reported. In one case the source of the infection was Old Mystic; in the others Westerly or Ashaway.

The school buildings have been inspected as required and found in good condition. A few nuisance complaints have been received. In almost all instances they have been disposed of satisfactorily; in some that has been impossible. Occasionally a complaint is made because of spite or for some reason other than an honest desire to promote public health.

EX-CHAMPION JACK JOHNSON FEATURE OF BIG CARD AT DANIELSON TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, September 27.—When Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion of the world, steps into the ring in the town hall Friday evening of this week, he will be greeted by an audience that will represent practically every section of eastern Connecticut from New London to North Grosvenordale and even as far west as Hartford, not to mention delegations that will be on hand from points just over the border in Rhode Island.

Promoter Frank Barber of the Canine Amusement Co., seems to have scored a ten-strike in booking Johnson for an appearance here, as the advance sale of tickets up to Thursday far outstripped anything in the history of the boxing game in Danielson and orders for tickets are continuing to pour in, insuring a record attendance, which has been provided for by the installation of several hundred additional seats, so that all who wish may be accommodated.

Johnson and his sparring pals will not be the only attraction at this big opening card of the season, however, for in the star bout scheduled to go 12 rounds between Tommy Corbley of Gloucester and Billy DeFoe of Providence, at 136 pounds, the fans will see in action two of the fastest and cleverest men of their weight from he ranks of New England's boxers. Corbiey has beaten such men as Dusty Dumont, Billy Cahill, Kid Sullivan, Johnny McIntyre, Johnny McGovern, Barney Rivers and an army of others in over 200 bouts—and never has been knocked out! He will be up against a tough customer in DeFoe, the fighting Frenchman, one of the most promising boxers Rhode Island has turned out in a number of years. In 1921 he won the amateur championship (140 lbs.) in Rhode Island in a class of 17 starters and since then has taken part in 14 contests and has lost but one decision, that being in his second start. He is one of the classiest boxers that has appeared in any southern New England club in several years and always gives the fans a great run for their money, is always willing to mix matters and goes after his opponent much the same as does the men he is to meet here—Corbiey, so the bout should prove a hummer.

In the semi-final Frankie Johnson of Boston will meet Young Eddy of Providence. These boys will weigh in around 120 pounds and are scheduled to go eight rounds. They both have earned reputations in the ring during the past year and are climbers of the sort who battle fast in an effort to climb to fame in their class.

In the other event scheduled for the evening Frank Busch of Norwich will go against Sailor Smith of Worcester for six rounds at 175 pounds. Busch was to have met Peter Sturgis of Worcester in this bout, but it was announced Thursday that the substitution of Sailor Smith has been found necessary.

O'LEARY AND TROLAND SET FOR GAME SUNDAY

Managers O'Leary and Troland of the Norwich and Taftville baseball clubs are sitting tight tonight but both claim victory for their clubs in the game to be played Sunday at the Fairgrounds.

Manager O'Leary keeping in touch with the men to play for Norwich went to Rockville Thursday to see Faber work. Faber went big in the Rockville-Manchester game and in three trips to the plate connected for a triple, a double and a single. In fielding he was also a star making one catch in deep left with his bare hand that ended a Manchester rally.

Telegrams have been received from team members stating that "Bill" may rely upon their being here Sunday. However a change in the Hartford plans makes it impossible for Belanger to come here Sunday. His place at first will be covered by Red Holt of Jersey City, International league who has clouted for .360 this season and is one of the best hitters in the International league. He bats left handed.

Manager Troland looks forward to the game with pleasure and expects to prove his ability as a manager by beating the fast team O'Leary has signed.

Everything is ready for the series which opens at 3 o'clock sharp Sunday afternoon and fans are asked to remember that standard time governs.

PIPP AND MEUSEL OF YANKS RECEIVE INJURIES

Boston, Sept. 27.—New York defeated Boston 8 to 3 today, but in the eighth inning Right Fielder Bob Meusel injured his left leg sliding into home plate and had to be carried from the field. He succeeded in scoring from first on Schang's single but the daring bit of base running may cost the champions dear.

When the New York team's train arrived in Boston this morning First Baseman Pipp stepped off and sprained his ankle and could not play today. X-ray photographs of both injuries will be rushed through to determine whether any bones were broken.

Pipgras' pitching today was effective. Boston bunched four hits in the sixth and made three runs. Recruit Outfielder Donaghue played a remarkable game at bat and in the field for Boston. The score:

FRANK CHANCE NOT TO MANAGE RED SOX IN 1924

Boston, Sept. 27—Frank Chance will not manage the Boston Red Sox in 1924, Robert Quinn, president of the club, announced tonight. The announcement followed a conference between the two earlier in the day. In his announcement Quinn stated that he intended to build from the ground up in restoring the Boston club to its former place of prominence in the American league.

Quinn has two men under consideration for the managership, he said, but added that he would approach neither of them until after the world series had been played. It was stated that the announcement that Chance would sever relations with the Red Sox was made because he wished to be free to negotiate with any other big league team that contemplates a change in managership. Chance will finish the season as the Red Sox pilot, however.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—O'Farrell's home run drive with two on base gave Keen a winning margin in the first inning and Chicago won from Pittsburgh here today, 8 to 2. Miller also poled a homer, with the aid of Outfielder Cuyler, who touched a high bounder off Miller's bat and sent the ball to the bleachers. A man was on base. Score:

ORDERS FOR TICKETS ARE HEAVY FOR WORLD'S SERIES

New York, Sept. 27.—Interest in the coming world's series has not slackened because of the prospect that the same teams, the New York Yankees and Giants, will battle for baseball supremacy for the third successive year if advance ticket applications pouring into the offices of both clubs can be taken as proof. Executives of both organizations said today they were being flooded by requests for seats from all parts of the country.

The Yankees, American league champions, having won the right to open the series at their new stadium, already have tackled the task of filling orders. They are being taken on the bases of games one, three and five, providing the Giants capture the National league flag, and for games one, two and five, in the event that Cincinnati lands the rival league pennant. According to Edward G. Barrow, business manager of the club, orders for boxes so far have exceeded the number available.

The Yankee stadium has a seating capacity of slightly more than 60,000, with sufficient standing room to accommodate from 5,000 to 10,000 more. Two-thirds of this number 20,000 in the bleachers and 20,000 in the mezzanine and upper tiers of the grandstand will be unreserved the tickets being put on sale at 10 a. m. the day of each game. The remaining 20,000 seats, boxes and lower grandstand, will be reserved and sold in advance.

The Giants, though they have not yet made the National league race a mathematical certainty in their favor, are preparing to sell tickets for the second, fourth and sixth games, on the theory that they will face the Yankees again. Detailed seating plans for the Polo grounds have not been announced but as reconstructed the park will seat approximately 55,000.

The scale of prices that will prevail at both the Polo grounds and Yankee stadium follows:

Box seats $6.60, reserved seats $5.50, general admission, unreserved, $3.30, bleachers $1.10.

WORLD'S CHAMPION GIANTS LOSE TO BALTIMORE 4 TO 3

SARAZEN AND BOBBY CRUICKSHANK MEET TODAY IN GOLF SEMI-FINALS

Pelham Manor, N. Y., Sept. 27.—(By the A. P.)—Gene Sarazen, who stood the golfing world on its head in 1922 with his amazing game, stepped to the fore today in the Professional Golfers' Association championship and won his way to the semi-finals over "Long Jim" Barnes. The match ended on the 36th and last hole, rather dramatically.

Tomorrow Sarazen, who won the professional and the open championships last year, will meet "Wee Bobby" Cruickshank of Westfield, N. J., who triumphed today in an extra hole match with William MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe. Cruickshank won at the 39th in the other half of the semi-final. Walter Hagen victor over Frank McLeod, of Washington, 5 up and 4 will play "Dapper George" McLean of the Grassy Sprain Club, Bronxville, whose uncanny putting eliminated Joe Kirkwood, the Australian, 5 and 4.

Tenser moments than some of those in the match between Sarazen and Barnes were probably never experienced in a golf match. "Long Jim" was playing his home course, a course on which he knows every roll in every green, the soft spots on fairways and the trickiness of the traps. Yet Sarazen took the lead on the very first hole and was never down to Long Jim. And too, he never, even at the end of the morning round, when he had Jim three down, was certain of victory.

On the sixteenth on the morning round, Sarazen on his approach putt, laid a stymie and Barnes attempted to win the hole, knocked Sarazen's ball in. Barnes played par golf on the third nine, but at that he lost another hole to Sarazen who turned in 36. And so with the last nine to go Barnes was 4 down.

The last hole on which a strong tee shot will reach the green, lying below a knoll and out of sight from the tee, brought the end. Barnes' ball sailed straight over the knoll and apparently was close to the pin. Sarazen then was faced with the task of playing perfectly or losing the match. Over went his ball. It seemed from the tee that he had shot to the left of the green, but the eyes do deceive.

Barnes' ball was just off the green sixty feet from the pin. Sarazen's was about 35 feet from home. Barnes chipped and his ball rolled past the hole and twenty feet to the far side. Sarazen's approach stopped within a yard of the cup. Jim took two putts. The ground between Sarazen's ball and the cup had three bumps in it. Yet Sarazen evaded them all and holed out for victory.

The thirty-nine hole match between Cruickshank and MacFarlane was the third of the week to go beyond the 36th. Willie Ogg defeated Carl Anderson at the 37th hole in the second round and lost to George McLean yesterday at the 38th.

They halved the first two holes, but on the third MacFarlane's second shot landed in a ditch and his attempt at recovery only drove the ball deeper into the mud. He conceded defeat.

Hagen had no difficulty in disposing of Fred McLeod. At the end of the morning round Hagen was five up, due in part to McLeod's ragged putting. On the twelfth and thirteenth holes McLeon missed putts of not more than three feet. In the afternoon McLeod's game improved but he was unable to cut down the lead and the match ended on the fourteenth green when they halved the hole in sixes.

McLean by uncanny putting from all distances finished the first 18 holes five up on Joe Kirkwood. Joe was away to a god start. Playing the first nine holes in 36 and stood 1 up on McLean. Coming in he lost the tenth, eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth in succession to become three down. He also dropped the sixteenth and seventeenth.

Kirkwood managed to reduce McLean's lead on the first of the afternoon round and stood only three down at the 27th. But McLean won the 28th with a birdie two and ended the match on the 32nd hole with a birdie fount.

FINAL GAME OF SERIES TO BE PLAYED SATURDAY

The third and deciding game of the series between the Riverview Club and the J. B. Martin Club will be played on the Hospital grounds Saturday afternoon, and should be the banner game of the season. The last encounter between these clubs went ten innings, Riverview emerging a victor. The Riverview Club has displayed a fine brand of ball this season, meeting with three reverses in 22 starts.

Manager "Bill" Donovan intends to bring the season to a close in a blaze of glory and will trot out his regular lineup. "Tony" West will toe the rubber, and Bill Reddy will be his battery mate as usual. Couillard will hold down the initial bag and Eddie Burns will cover second. Faber has returned from the Jersey City Club and will play the short field. It will be remembered that it was while Faber was with the Riverview Club last season that he attracted so much attention. Mills will take care of third base, while the outfield will be taken care of by Clabby, Hart and Shaffrich.

Manager Krause of Taftville will stare his favorite battery of Fisher and Welch. The infield will be taken care of by E. Joubert 1b, Lemieux 2b, Descelles, s. s.; F. Gley, 3b; W. Gley, l. f.; E. Murphy, c. f. and W. Joubert, r. f.

RESERVES DECISION ON SUIT OVER DOG BITE

A dog bite was the basis of a suit which was tried before Judge Isaac Wolfe in the superior court at New London Thursday morning. The plaintiff is Teresa Walsh, 8 years old, who sues Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Thomas of Stonington for damages of $6,000 for injuries received by being bitten by a dog owned by the defendants on July 5, 1922.

The girl plaintiff was the first witness on the stand and testified that she was in the yard of her home on the morning of July 5 when the Thomas dog bit her on the leg and she displayed the scars to the court and counsel. The child said that the wound bled and that she had a doctor to treat the injuries.

Charles F. Burth, who lives in the same house with the Walshes, testified that he saw the dog bite the Walsh girl and that he drove the animal off. The witness said that he knew that the dog which bit the girl was the Thomas dog and that the Thomas boy was trying to call the dog off.

Thomas O'Connell, dog warden of the town of Stonington, and Dr. W. T. Veal, gave testimony in the case.

Mrs. Mary Walsh, mother of Teresa, said that her child was laid up two or three weeks from the bite and that her leg was still done up when she went to school in September. The witness said that her child is a nervous wreck and that it was a long time before she would go out into the street for fear of dogs.

Mrs. Edith DePerry of Westerly testified that she was sitting in the window of her mother's home, adjoining the Walsh home, and she saw the Thomas dog make a grab at the child and miss and then grab again and seize her leg.

Attorney Benjamin H. Hewitt rested his case for the plaintiff and Attorney Clayton B. Smith said he would introduce no testimony. After brief arguments, Judge Wolfe took the papers and reserved decision.

EACH OF HIS PROBLEMS MUST BE MET AND SETTLED BY THE FARMER

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

When Paul Revere reached Lexington, that foggy April morning, bearing news that the redcoats were marching out of Boston, and the clanging bells sent the alarm over the sleeping countryside, the angry farmers pulled down their long-barrelled guns and started for the village green, each one by himself and, so far as he might know at the time, for himself.

They didn't wait to be formed into companies or platoons or even squads. They didn't wait to have ammunition or supplies or orders served out to them. They didn't wait to be instructed as to where they should "form" or where they should "deploy" or where they should "fall back." They grabbed their guns, slung the old powder horns and bullet bags over their shoulders, dropped a few spare flints into their pockets and set out, each one down his own farm lane or around his own barn, for the hamlet at which their enemies were aiming.

Emerson's famous phrase of "the embattled farmers" gives to many a wrong impression—the sense of battle lines and ranks of riflemen blazing away at the disciplined files of the British. As a matter of cold fact, these farmers potted the red-coats much as they had been accustomed to shoot at bear and deer, from behind trees or stone walls, or any other shelter and ambush, each one for himself. There might, indeed, have been a small knot of them near the rude bridge which spanned the little creek just out of Lexington. But even that was not pre-arranged or ordered. It just happened so, since this seemed to several of them a good spot to fight from. But the great majority "went it alone," in the usual pioneer fashion, and never thought of asking what the plan of battle was, nor whether their flanks were protected, nor whether there were reserves anywhere to fall back on.

That little affair, which succeeding battles made significant and historical, illustrates forcibly one of the changes in the makeup of New England farmers which has taken place since that time.

Then every one was his own boss and hired man, as well, at the same time. He was wholly unaccustomed to either giving or taking orders.

He just did things; did them himself, for himself and by himself. That was the way he plowed, the way he planted, the way he harvested, and, when emergency arose, the way he fought.

His house, be it manor or log hut, was his castle; he was himself its garrison; he was both general in command and private with the gun; his farm was his principality, from which he drew practically all his own supplies, and on which he lived independently of the rest of the world. When a need arose—any need, whether of labor or of defense—he prepared to meet it from his own resources, in so far as lay in his power.

There is still something of that old spirit and personal independence left among a few New England farmers. But over the rest of the country, it seems to be sadly missing. It has become a rarity, even among the hills and intervales where it flourished of old.

Now-a-days, farmers like other men seem to be infected with the herd spirit. They want to go in flocks and droves. They must have leaders. They must act by and through organizations. Instead of camping, gun on knees, upon their own doorsteps to defend their own rights they want some one else to defend them.

No matter what goes wrong a large part of them promptly unite in the demand that government "do something."

There are no more bears to shoot, no more wild Indians to hold off, no more British invaders to fight. But, if there's a drought, or a grasshopper invasion, or a hail storm, or labor grows greedy, or profiteers gobble too hoggishly, or some crop produces a glut in the market—small matter what it is that happens, the howl immediately rises that government must "do something" to prevent or cure or punish.

Now, I am not entering the lists to defend even "the spirit of '76." I recognize as readily as any one that different times make different manners. The strategy which was all right in days of flint lock muskets and three-pounder cannon doesn't fit these times of high powered rifles and bomb-dropping airplanes. The times change, and we change with them, whether we want to or not. I'm perfectly willing to admit that I don't think a scattered gathering of undisciplined farmers, each banging away on his own account, would make much of an obstacle to a regiment of "doughboys" armed with modern rifles, with popping machine guns on their flanks, and armed airplanes flying overhead, dropping "tear-gas" or "mustard gas" shells or some like bedevilments.

But,

Haven't we any fighting spirit of our own left? Has our "spunk" all evaporated? Haven't we carried this appeal to government a leetle too far? Wouldn't some measure of return to the sturdy self-independence of our sires be an improvement?

It would seem that I am not alone in asking such questions. The other day the Toledo (O.) Blade concluded an editorial with this paragraph:

"The farmers could do no better when leisure gives them a few moments for hard thinking than ponder upon the value of those governmental institutions which, at least by advertisement, are established for the special good of agriculture. Are the bureaus and the hordes of bureaucrats worth the price at which they come? If not then what are they worth? How much better off is agriculture under a complex government than was agriculture when government was infinitely more simple?"

That's worth serious consideration. How much better off is agriculture today, right here in New England, than it was before government undertook to coddle it, like a sick baby in swaddling-clothes?

Oh, yes, I understand fully about the wonderful advances in farming tools. I appreciate the value of the mowing machine, and the self-binding reaper, and the silo, and the tractor, and the scores of other inventions which have made farming easier. But the stubborn old question still rises: Is New England farming any more prosperous than it used to be? While one man may say, off-hand, that it is, a half dozen deserted homes on what used to be profitable farms will offer mute but irresistible witness to the contrary.

"Let George do it," is the slogan of the age, on the farm as truly as in the factories and the shops.

"I'll do it myself," was the spirit of the olden days.

Had the farmers of Lexington and Medford and Malden and Concord, when the wild bells' clangor told them of the British advance, waited for government to "do somethin' about it, that advance would not have been halted and turned into a shameful retreat and rout.

Said one old farmer: "I never get as much work done when I sit in my chair and say 'Go, boys, and hoe that corn, as when I grab my own hoe and yell, 'Come, boys, and help me finish it up'!"

The simple truth is that farming is a matter in the hands of the farmers—not the government.

It will be successful in just so far as the intelligent and strenuous work of the farmers themselves makes it so; not through any governmental favors or mollycoddlings.

It is still true that those who would be free themselves must strike the blow. It is no less true that the farmer who would win deserved success must win it by his own efforts. "There is no discharge in that war." Nor is it one for which substitutes can be hired. Outside agencies may somewhat help or somewhat hinder. But they are side issues, at the best. The work of making each farm a success must be done on that farm by that farmer himself.

And he'll never do it by tumbling on his nose at the first growl of the thunder and praying government to save him.

How and in what way each farmer is to do this is up to him. There is no use trying to lay down specific rules. The fight is and always must be, in farming, a fight of outposts, where each scout must do his work under the conditions before him. The tactics which govern big set battles are of small value to him. He must take things as he finds them, plan his own strategy, do his own shooting and—take his own risks.

In a general way there are three things which may be said:

First. The farmer must revert to what are sometimes sneeringly called "old-fashioned ideas" of thrift. He must learn to save the little odds and ends; he must make the most of every small help; he must contrive some way to make even the wrath of his bug and weed enemies serve him.

Second. He must work—and work like the Old Scratch at times, whether he feels like it or not, whether the signs are propitious or not, whether he can get help or not. Did you ever stop to think that practically all farm machines have been invented and manufactured to make work easier? Not, as they should have been, to facilitate and insure the doing of better work? The farmer's work is hard, at the best. Nothing can ever turn it into play. What he needs is not so much advice or machines to make it easier as to find out some way to make it count for more.

Third. He must plan his campaign for results. He must find out not only what his land will produce, but what, in that list of productible crops, is likely to sell best. He must stop raising wheat or potatoes or hay, if those crops are going to be a drug on an overstocked market. He must, somehow, find out what things he can raise which other people will want to buy at good prices. Then he must raise such things. It may be he'll have to put the old corn-lot into red raspberries. Or the old potato-patch into cabbages. Well, why not, if red raspberries and cabbages are in big demand at high prices, while corn and potatoes can't be sold for enough to pay cost of raising? His work isn't to raise what he happens to find it easiest to produce, and then hunt up customers to take it off his hands at any old price, but to raise what the other fellows want so badly that they'll bid against each other in their eagerness to get it.

Of course, these are only general suggestions. Equally of course there are other factors in the problem. In truth no two farmers' problems are quite the same.

My point is that each one must be met by the farmer and settled by him, sooner or later. He might as well tackle it, first off, and find out whether he's a winner or a fizzle. The longer time he spends grumbling and whimpering to government for help, the more he postpones the day of decision.

This doesn't mean that he shouldn't avail himself of all the knowledge and all the experience which he can rake, scrape and gather from whatever source. He isn't required to build a Chinese wall around his farm to keep out ideas as well as automobile thieves.

But it does mean that he's got to save himself, if he's to be saved at all. "We've got to do it ourselves, brethren."

THE FARMER.

Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn

Thousands who have piles have not do the same for you.

learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither outting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription is HEM-ROID, a tablet medicine, taken internally, that is now sold by druggists generally. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent., and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands of people, and should do the same for you—it seldom fails.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Changed Into a Fairy.

You remember where your Little Jack Rabbit was in the last story, I hope, but if you don't I'll tell you right away. He was in the Fairy Queen's Palace and she had just said to him that if he would taste her Magic Checkerberry Juice he would become as small as a fairy.

"Then you can enjoy yourself in Fairy Land," she added, "for now you are too large and clumsy." Then she handed him a tiny goblet. No sooner had he tasted it than he grew smaller and smaller until finally, no was the tiniest bunny in the world, I imagine. Why, I verily believe he was no larger than a beetle.

"The Lily Fairy is ringing the bells," said the Queen as the sweet, low chime of bells and a delicious perfume were brought to them by a breath of wind. "She rings them every evening." Then, telling him to follow her, she led him to the glade where the fairies dance at night.

In the light of the slowly rising moon the fairies were gathering from all quarters. From the low, damp meadowlands came the blue-eyed fairies and from the woody depths, the pink-winged fays and by the time the Queen reached the glade all her little subjects were there.

All of a sudden, the Man in the Moon leaned out of his great silver circle and said:

'Listen, fairies, one and all,
Harken and keep very still.
A pretty new baby has just been born
In the little white house on the hill.'

At once, all the tiny stars twinkled like silver bells as the soft night winds rustled the leaves and the next minute the fairy Queen and her fairies flew away to the little white house on the hill, taking the bunny boy with them as he had a pair of wings now, just like a butterfly.

As soon as they reached the little white house, they flew in through a window and sat down on the edge of a crib in which the little baby lay sound asleep.

"I will give him blue eyes," said the Bluebell Fairy.

"I will give him yellow hair," said the Buttercup Fairy.

"I will give him thrift and prudence," said Old Mother Fern. "We ferns have no blossoms to speak of, but we are a well-to-do family as everybody knows, and can get our living on any soil where it pleases Heaven to put us. Thrift will be my gift to this little man for thrift will surely lead to riches and honor."

"I will give him the spirit of truth," said the Fairy Queen, bending over the crib to softly kiss the sleeping baby who never stirred, but only smiled in his dreams. Then, all the fairies flew away with Little Jack Rabbit and in the next story you shall hear what Little Jack Rabbit did after that.

Paris is threatened with a pest of white ants. According to Le Figaro, they came like sturdy pioneers from the Cote d'Azur, their native place, and boldly began to build up a colony at the museum. Hitherto, white ants have been unknown in Paris; they have never before crossed La Vendee. Recently a tree 24 feet high in the garden of the museum began to show symptoms of anemia. White ants were discovered to be the cause. As yet scientists at the academy have not discovered an effective means of combatting their attacks.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Opens New Haberdashery on Main Street.

The opening of a new men's haberdashery on Main street by Maurice Freiberg recently adds another up to date store to the list of live business houses in Norwich. Mr. Freiberg several years ago conducted a men's store on Franklin street. He sold out at the time of the war and since the armistice he has been employed in New York and now returns to Norwich where in his new store he will be pleased to serve all who will patronize him.

Strand Theatre.

An all around fine program of B. F. Keith vaudeville and pictures was presented yesterday at the Strand and will continue for the remainder of the week.

Charles Hart's Six Lunatic Chinks proved to be a very good comedy variety act with plenty of laughs and acrobatic clowning which was very well liked.

Bunniford opened the bill with his ventriloquial offering which proved to be an amusing as his offering of two years ago when he appeared in this city.

Bert Lula and John O'Brien, the singing composer and the singing comedian, have a particularly good assortment of songs and they know how to sing them and the comedian furnishes the fun, making this offering a fest of fun and melody.

The great stunt star, Richard Talmadge, is seen in The Speed King. A news was the otheru picture.

Broadway Theatre.

Water scenes filmed on the Thames river at New London, Conn., where many university boat races have been held, will be of exceptional interest to all who see Thomas Meighan's new Paramount picture, Homeward Bound at the Broadway theatre next Sunday when it will open a four days' run.

With a staff of nearly thirty assistants and players, Director Ince spent several weeks in and about New London where the yacht and dock scenes, shipping yards, and ocean storms were filmed. The sea shots by Ernest Haller, are said to be remarkable in many respects, while the ingenuity of Director Ince in devising terrific storm scenes with unexampled realism, was fully tested. The photographing of the water scenes was watched daily by hundreds of spectators who often manifested their approval by salvos of cheers.

The story deals with a sailor and the daughter of a ship owner, who are the principals in a thrilling love romance. The various characters are admirably portrayed. Lila Lee as the heroine playing opposite Mr. Meighan. The supporting cast is wholly adequate and includes Charles Abbe, who played in support of Mr. Meighan in Cappy Ricks; Hugh Cameron, also of the Cappy Ricks cast; William T. Carleton, Gus Weinberg, Maude Turner Gordon, Cyril Ring and others.

A comedy and news will be the short subjects.

Breed Theatre.

Another stage play which lends itself to unusually fine adaptation as a motion picture is Success, which, under the same title, was seen for the first time yesterday at the Breed theatre. The film has a dramatic story which is especially well acted, and it has humor and pathos combined in splendid measure. In all, it has everything a good picture should have, and it deserves to rank with the best films shown this season.

To those who are interested in the world of the theatre, the photoplay affords a very intimate view of back stage scenes. Since the whole action centers about the life of an actor, almost everybody in the film and nearly all of the characters are of the stage. Scenes and types are especially well chosen, and a great deal of the fascination which is exerted by the film can be explained through this theatrical atmosphere.

Brandon Tynan, one of the most interesting personalities in the American theatre, is seen to advantage in the role he originated on the stage. As the celebrated actor, Barry Carleton, Mr. Tynan presents a lifelike and intensely human characterization. He is equally convincing as a young man and later as an aged and broken figure.

Excellent support is given by favorites. Mary Astor is charming as the daughter of the actor, and displays unusually strong emotional ability. Dore Davidson and Naomi Childers are also prominently cast. Others in the cast are Lionel Adams, Stanley Ridges, Robert Lee Keiling, Billy Quirk and others.

Success will be the feature attraction at the Breed theatre again today and tomorrow and other pictures on the bill include Ruth Roland in Haunted Valley, the Pathe News and an Educational comedy. Enlarged orchestra tonight.

Coming to the Breed.

Those who go to the theatre to see stars and those who attend to see a great story, will find both at the Breed theatre beginning Sunday when Fred Niblo's Strangers of the Night opens.

All-star casts are sometimes discovered to be no-star casts but Fred Niblo assembled a group of players who were individually famous when he began production on Strangers of the Night for Louis B. Mayer and Metro.

For the role of Captain Applejack, made famous in Walter Hackett's stage play from which Strangers of the Night was adapted, he selected Matt Moore. Miss Enid Bennett, remembered as Maid Marion in Robin Hood, appears in the role of a demure little British girl, while Barbara La Marr is the spectacularly beautiful Russian adventuress. Robert McKim is again a screen villain, while such favorites as Otto Hoffman, Emily Fitzroy, Thomas Ricketts and Mathilde Brundage are exceptionally well cast.

Strangers of the Night is a mystery romance of adventure and love, told graphically against background of rare beauty. It opens in a mansion on the Cornish coast of England and leads from a drawing room to a pirate cruise and back before the unexpected climax is reached.

Strangers of the Night is Fred Niblo's second independent production for Louis B. Mayer and Metro, following The Famous Mrs. Fair, The Three Musketeers, Blood and Sand and The Mark of Zorro.

Art Exhibition at Converse Art Gallery.

As the days go on there is an increasing interest in the collection of paintings by the Lyme and Mystic artists, on view in the Converse Art Gallery. The people of Norwich are fortunate in having these pictures, brought directly to them and shown in their midst, for which great credit is due the Norwich Art Students' association.

This is not an exhibition of amateur work, but of artists distinguished in their profession, many of whom have studied under European artists and are members of the National Academy of Design—a privilege accorded only to very able painters. One turns again and again to The Great Oak by Charles H. Davis, of which the composition and technique are so very fine. The gnarled quality of the branches and the ruggedness of the trunk, indicate a patriarchial quality, giving the very spirit of the tree, in a remarkable manner. The color in the modern paintings is so refreshing. One need not be told that these pictures are painted in the full light of out of doors. The whole atmosphere of the gallery indicates it. Clark Voorhees, who, at Lyme, was awarded this year the W. S. Eaton prize, shows two canvases, Spring Sunshine and Woods in Spring. The former shows the delicate young leaves of the birch trees fluttering in the uncertain spring light and is a delightful bit of color. The latter depicts two trees on the bank of a river. The youth of the pale green foliage is in strong contrast to the age of the sturdy trunks. The composition is very good and the technique interesting.

Gregory Smith won the Museum Purchase Prize in this season's exhibition at Lyme. His painting called The White Boat, has much distinction and a most charming poetic quality. From Windmill Hill, by Henry Bill Selden, is a scene near Little Compton, Rhode Island, but might easily be taken for a view along our own Connecticut shore. The composition is excellent and the color beyond criticism. Mr. Selden merits congratulation for his simple and sincere treatment of his subject. The Mystic artists make an unusually good showing this year. The New London Road, by Ernest H. Barnes, is an able portrayal of a familiar spot and makes us realize afresh the skill with which Mr. Barnes "holds the mirror up to nature." The old house at the bend of the road, and the sunshine flickering through the shade of the adjoining trees, are very real and combine to make one of the most pleasing pictures in the collection.

The work of Messrs. Thompson, Joseph, Grinnell and others.

The early hours of the afternoon afford the best time for the study and enjoyment of the pictures and prospective visitors are counselled not to wait until the approach of twilight which hides so much of the beauty of the canvases.

Connecticut College Concert Course.

Some time ago the college concert committee announced that its policy of bringing great artists and organizations would be continued with a series during the coming fall and winter. As in the two former seasons, the series will be opened with a concert by The New York Philharmonic Orchestra, but this time the complete organization of 105 musicians will come. Important as is this announcement, another, and even more interesting feature of the concert will be the introduction to our audiences of a new conductor. When Mr. Stransky resigned last spring, Willem Van Hoogstraten was immediately engaged to take the post, for he was the first and only choice of the directors. Born in Utrecht, Holland, he studied the violin in the Conservatory of Cologne and has had a wide experience as an ensemble player in chamber music. Conducting his own concerts in Hamburg, he found immediate recognition in an invitation to guest appearances in some of the important capitals of Europe.

The second concert will be given by Reinald Werrenrath, America's most popular baritone. This talented young man, an American by birth but of Scandinavian extraction, has had the most phenomenal success since that of David Bispham. Known through his records in nearly every home in the land, the demand for personal appearances is so great that it has become necessary for his managers to apportion his time to various sections of the country with a certain number of dates allotted to each section. During the month of February last his activities were confined to the Pacific coast where he filled nineteen engagements.

To say the third concret will introduce Fritz Kreisler would not be exactly a fact, for the truth is that wherever there is a musician or music lover the world over, the name Kreisler stands for all that is best in the realm of musical art. For two years the committee has made vigorous efforts to secure his services and in April a contract was signed assuring the appearance of the master violinist of the age. Kreisler will play January 14th.

The fourth and last concert will be that of The Elshuco Trio, the three members of which are artists of the highest calibre. Its moving spirit is Willem Willeke, the eminent Dutch 'cellist who was a member of the Kneisel Quartet during the last dozen years of its existence. Coming to America to replace the veteran Alwin Schroeder, he has for many years played a prominent part in our musical affairs as soloist, conductor, and in ensemble.

The violonist, Elias Breeskin, is a logical member of the trio, for most of his studies were with Kneisel and the high ideals of this master found in him a sympathetic pupil. A Russian by birth, he has lived in this country from childhood.

Aurelio Giorni, the pianist, is an Italian. Graduated with first honors from the Academy of St Cecilia in Rome whose standards in the arts of music are unsurpassed by those of any school in the world. He was but fifteen when he won his honors and placed himself under the instruction of his famous countryman, Busoni.

A feature of this concert will be a sonata for piano and 'cello. Announcement of the sale of tickets will be found in another column.

SEASONS FOR HUNTING GAME IN CONNECTICUT

The seasons for hunting different species of game in Connecticut differ widely, having been changed some what during the last year. The season for hunting rabbits and hares is later than usual this year. The open season on these does not start until Nov. 1 and then it continues to and including Jan. 15.

Other important dates of open seasons are: Raccoons, from Oct. 8 to Jan. 31 skunk, mink and otter, from Nov. 1 to March 15, and muskrats from Nov. 1 to March 31.

SEED BED OFTEN SOURCE OF DISEASE IN VEGETABLES

Cabbage and other crucifers, such as Brussels sprouts, kohl-rabi, kale turnip, radish, rape, rutabaga, and chariock, are subject to fungous and bacterial diseases which are carried from place to place by various means, including insects, infected seed, transplanting from an infected seed bed to the field, drainage, cabbage refuse of the other plants mentioned, and stable manure, farm animals and tools, and wind. These diseases are preventable, in the main by simple means of plant sanitation, says the United States Department of Agriculture, even as human diseases may largely be prevented by proper care.

As the seed bed is often the source of infection, the truck farmer will find it profitable to take the greatest pains to insure healthy plants. Locate the seed bed on new ground if possible, advises the department. Crop rotation, avoiding crops which belong to the cabbage family, will help and is worth while, regardless of whether or not it is necessary to control plant maladies. A good rotation system will starve out many fungous diseases that may exist and will help control many weeds, particularly wild mustard and its relatives, which harbor cabbage pests.

The leaf diseases of cabbage, cauliflower, and related crops are relatively so unimportant that spraying is seldom required. The most important diseases are internal or soil parasites, which are out of reach of fungicides. The free use of lime will help in controlling such parasites and the disinfecting of all cabbage seed before planting, to prevent black rot and black leg, will be found of considerable value, according to tests carried on by the department. The use of disease resistance varieties of cabbage and other crucifers will also pay.

REGISTRATION OF BEES; MANY NOT COMPLYING

Many beekeepers are not complying with the law in regard to the annual registration of bees. They seem to think that if they register once, they need not do again, but the law requires them to register each year before October 1st. This law is Chapter 174 of the Public Acts of 1919, and reads as follows:

"Section 1. Every person owning one or more hives of bees shall annually, on or before the first day of October, make application to the town clerk of the town in which such bees are kept, for the registration of such bees, and such town clerk shall issue to such applicant a certificate of registration upon the payment of a recording fee of twenty-five cents, which certificate shall be in the form prescribed and upon blanks furnished by the commissioner of domestic animals and shall be recorded in the office of such town clerk.

"Sec. 2. A record of such registration with the name and place of residence of the registrant and the definite location in the town where bees are kept by him shall be recorded in a separate book in the office of the town clerk, which records shall be accessible to the public.

"Sec. 3. Any owner of bees who shall fail to register as required by the provisions of this act shall be fined not more than five dollars."

An amendment to this law was passed at the last session of the general assembly (see Chapter 129, Public Acts of 1923) as follows:

"Section two of chapter 174 of the public acts of 1919 is amended to read as follows: A record of such registration and of the name and place of residence of the registrant and the definite location in the town where bees are kept by him shall be kept in a separate book in the office of the town clerk, which record shall be accessible to the public. Each town clerk shall file with the state entomologist of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station a complete list of such registrations and locations on or before the first day of February of the year succeeding such registrations. Any town clerk failing to perform such duty shall be fined not more than ten dollars.

Therefore in order to comply with the statutes, each beekeeper should register at once with his town clerk, and each town clerk must send to the state entomologist, before February 1, a list of the beekeepers who have registered in that town.

Insects and fungi or other specimens may be sent to the station for identification.

ANNUAL FIELD TRIP.

The annual field trip of the Connecticut Vegetable Growers' association will take place Saturday, Sept. 29th, 1923, through the Wethersfield valley.

Members and their friends will assemble at the office of Comstock, Ferre & Co., Wethersfield, at 10.30, S. T., for inspection of their seed farms.

The next stop will be at the W. G. Griswold farms. After inspecting the farms, the members will assemble on the lawn for a basket picnic lunch. All must provide their own lunch.

The afternoon will be devoted to visiting the farms of J. H. Adams, J. T. Wells, W. S. Morris & Co., H. L. Wells and others.

This is a particularly fine growing section and members should have an opportunity to compare notes with their respective sections on the strength of the drouth this season.

CONTROL METHODS AGAINST GYPSY AND BROWNTAIL MOTHS

Warfare against the spread of the gypsy moth and the browntail moth in New England has been carried on unremittingly by federal and state entomologists since 1906. Both of these insects, which are exceedingly destructive to tree foliage, were accidentally introduced into this country from Europe. The gypsy moth now occupies about one-half of the New England area and the browntail moth about one-third of that region. Scattered colonies of the gypsy moth have been found in adjoining states and in New Jersey, but nearly all have been exterminated or effectually controlled. The area infested by the gypsy moth has increased, but the browntail moth at present occupies a smaller area than in 1914.

A federal quarantine prevents the shipment out of the infested territory of products liable to infestation, except after strict inspection under regulations made by the federal horticultural board, United States department of agriculture. The federal government is chiefly concerned in preventing the spread of these insects, while the states aim to reduce their numbers and prevent the defoliation of valuable trees in woodlands, orchards and parks.

Effective means of destroying both insects are described in farmers' bulletin 1335, Controlling the Gypsy Moth and the Browntail Moth, by A. F. Burgess, entomologist, just issued by the department. One of the best methods of controlling the gypsy moth is to treat the egg clusters of the insect between Aug. 15 and April 1. Creosote is used, mixed with a small amount of lampblack. Burlap tree-bands may be used but sticky banding material is usually more effective when control work is attempted. A special tree-banding material has been developed by the bureau of entomology in co-operation with the bureau of chemistry and has given excellent results. Arsenate of lead is used as a spray in orchards and parks. The bulletin advises owners of infested trees to consult someone who can give reliable information as to the best treatment, taking local conditions into consideration, or much energy and money may be wasted. Hand methods of control cannot well be applied to woodland. The species of tree involved makes a difference. Wherever possible the woodland should be thinned out, leaving only those trees which are least subject to injury from the gypsy moth.

The browntail moth can be controlled by cutting off in the winter webs and burning them before the caterpillars begin to emerge in the spring. Insect enemies of both the gypsy moth and the browntail moth have been introduced and colonized throughout most of the infested area. This phase of the work of the bureau of entomology is being pressed as rapidly as possible. Investigations are being made as to planting and growing forest trees not subject to attack by gypsy or browntail moths.

Removing Ink Stains.

To remove ink stains, wet the soiled parts with cold water, then immediately cover these spots with ground mustard. After allowing this to become entirely dry, wash the material with warm water and a small amount of soap. I have found this to be very efficient and economical in that it saves much good material from being cast aside.—Exchange.

NEW LONDON FISH BOAT BRAWL RESULTS IN A DROWNING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 27.—Due to a drunken brawl early this morning aboard the fishing steamer Herbert Edwards, a craft hailing from this port and owned by the Fishers Product company, Harry Olsen was drowned, Emil Strom suffered a fractured leg and Edward Helstrom is a prisoner at the New London county jail awaiting a hearing in the police court next Thursday morning. By that time it is believed, Olsen's body will have been recovered and Helstrom afforded an opportunity to relate to the court the incidents that occurred leading up to the drowning of Olsen. Whether Olsen was the victim of a murderous attack or whether he fell overboard while staggering about the deck of the craft, is not known.

A search was made last night for Olsen's body by the police and the search was conducted today.

The Edwards, one of several craft engaged in fishing off the Promised Land fishing grounds, put into port yesterday afternoon. The crew of the boat last night went ashore and during the late evening Olsen, Strom and Helstrom, all Bremen, are known to have been together. They were heard on the lumber wharf of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company shortly after 1 o'clock and had been drinking. A short time after men were heard to arrive on the wharf. Second Assistant Engineer Joseph Beaton discovered the trio in a fight and going ashore he went to the fire house of the Allen Hook and Ladder company and requested that a telephone message be sent to the police station. In the meantime, Olsen, Strom and Helstrom had managed to climb to the deck of the Edwards and went to the forecastle where they started to consume the contents of a quart bottle of liquor. A row took place between Olsen and Strom and the fight finally was taken on the deck where the two firemen continued their battle. Helstrom followed the fighters to the deck and attempted to stop the fight after Olsen had either been felled or stumbled to the deck. Being unsuccessful, Helstrom declares, he went to the deck of another fishing boat lying alongside the Edwards to summon aid from the crew, and when he was returning to his own boat, he saw Olsen struggling in the water, but Helstrom was unable to save him as the man disappeared from view almost immediately.

When the police arrived at the pier Helstrom and Strom were aboard the Edwards. Sergeant Patrick Murphy placed Helstrom and Strom under arrest. As Strom was being led off the raft, he suddenly turned from the side of Patrolman George McCoskey, who was in charge of the prisoner and leaped into the hull of the craft, landing on his feet and sustaining a fracture between the right ankle and knee. In order to move Strom from the vessel, the police were forced to descend a ladder into the hold and fasten a rope about the man that he might be hoisted to the deck. Strom was then taken to Lawrence hospital.

Helstrom was taken to the police station and lodged in a cell. He was unable to give an accurate account of what took place other than that Olsen and Olsen engaged in a fight and that Olsen had a vicious laceration of the scalp before he went overboard; Helstrom does not know how Olsen sustained the wound, whether being struck by a blunt instrument, or by being knocked down and his head coming in contact with some object on the deck.

Capt. Lawrence L. Brown, master of the Edwards, was ashore when the fight and fatality occurred. Chief Engineer Harvey J. Hooper, however, was aboard the boat in his cabin. About 1.30 o'clock he heard loud talking on the deck and soon realized that some of the crew were fighting, but did not leave his cabin until he heard a splash in the water. He then seized an extension light, went to the side of the boat and lowered the light close to the water's surface, but got no glimpses of Olsen.

This morning at 8 o'clock the Edwards and the other fishing boats went to Promised Land, but such members of the crew will return here whenever the authorities summon them to relate what they know in connection with the fight and drowning.

John Walsh, manager of the J. W. Cochrane store, corner of Crystal avenue and Adelaide street, this morning discovered that his room had been entered and a wallet containing $53 stolen. Walsh, through his employer, reported the theft to the police.

Harold A. Cobb, a native of New London, son of George Cobb, stepped into a bad mess when he obtained an automobile by means of a check that was not recognized at the bank in New Bedford as of any more value than a German mark. Cobb made a worse mistake when he came to New London yesterday and on the way arrested with a bottle of gin, which was one of a dozen or more bottles which he said he bought in New York for his own consumption and which he was taking to his home in Fall River. Cobb was pretty well lit up when found on Federal street in response to a telegram from New Bedford to arrest him for the authorities in that city. He was locked up and then his car was searched. The contents of a carton about two feet square was the dozen bottles of Gordon gin—the honest-to-goodness sort. Cobb was held for trial in the superior court, and a bond of $2,000 was ordered, which was more money than he could provide collateral for. He claims he is a commercial traveler and that he sold goods here to the Merritt-Scott company, to Bartolucci Brothers and state for some of the new work that is to be done in this city. Unless he is taken into the superior court on a bench warrant he will have a long stay in jail for he is bound over to the January term of court.

It became known this evening that Judge Allyn L. Brown of Norwich will issue a bench warrant tomorrow forenoon whereby Cobb will be taken from jail and presented in the superior court on the charge of transporting liquor.

Louis Parchik and his daughter, Gladys were in court this morning to answer for a breach of the peace, an assault upon Mrs. Mary Savitsky. The parties are residents in Cedar street where the row took place. Mrs. Savitsky rents a house from Parchik, but she probably will not do so after today or when her month has expired, for she and Gladys Parchik had trouble. The father of Gladys, Louis works at night and sleeps by day. Mrs. Savitsky has two children and when they play in a yard that is used in common by the two families they make a noise. Gladys remonstrated with Mrs. Savitsky, but the latter says she did it in language that might stop the wheel of the old mill close by from revolving. Mrs. Savitsky told the court what the language was and it made some of the attendants upon the session blush. Gladys also accused Mrs. Savitsky of acts that were out of character. Mrs. Savitsky declared that Gladys punched her in the face and tore down her hair, leaving her in a condition that bordered on collapse. Gladys is a good-looking Polish girl of 17. She has a crippled mother and she is the housekeeper for mother and father. She claimed Mrs. Savitsky was the aggressor. Judge Prince found the accused guilty, fined her $50 and then suspended the execution of the fine for six months.

Mrs. Samuel Shruenza of Westerly and Alfred Berg of Williams street, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

J. Vinton Dart, 74, a former resident of New London, died at his home in Thomaston yesterday, after several weeks' illness. He was a native of New London and was formerly an engineer in the employ of the city of Providence. He caused the four story brick building at the corner of Bank and Reed streets, known as the Dart block, to be erected about twenty years ago. Mr. Dart is survived by a brother, former Mayor M. Wilson Dart and a sister, Mrs. Mortimer H. Beckwith, both of New London.

Peter Losacano has instituted a civil action for $2,000 damage against Angeline Tudisco alleging malicious prosecution. Property of the defendant has been attached in the sum of $500. The case is returnable before the court of common pleas the first Tuesday in November. Mrs. Tudisco recently caused Losacano to be arrested and presented in the police court, alleging that Losacano represented himself as the agent for Mrs. Bridget Ryan in the sale of Bank street real estate and that $400, which the Tudisco woman gave Losacano as an option on the property was appropriated to Losacano's own use. When in court the case against Losacano was nolled.

In the superior court here today, the trial of Mrs. Jennie Tytla of East Lyme, in a civil action for $5,000 damages brought by Michael Toupasz, also of East Lyme, alleging slander, was concluded, Judge Isaac Wolfe rendering a decision that plaintiff had not established a burden of proof. The allegation of the plaintiff was that on November 9, 1921, the Tytla woman declared that Toupasz stole a letter from her husband, also stole $2.

John Heffernan of 979 Pequot avenue, was among the members of St. Joseph's church, in attendance at the mission there this evening. While Mr. Heffernan listened to the sermon of the Mission priests a vandal visited his machine and cut the wires connecting the combination stop light in the rear and removed his number plates. The plates were later found in the rear of the machine. It is believed that this work was that of boys who congregate in the vicinity of the church nightly.

Garibaldi park had an attraction last evening for at 7.45 a fight was staged there between Young Firpo and Young Carpentier. There was an audience to witness the combat of perhaps 100 people, made up of men, women, girls and boys. The boys were not either of them more than 10 but seemed familiar with all the tricks and the ways of the older fighters.

The rent for desirable apartments in New London is said to be advancing, and there are few to be had. On Montauk avenue a tenant gave notice of intention to quit the premises unless the rent of $32 a month was lowered. The next day the apartment was rented for $38.

It is said that when the ordinance controlling the erection of gasoline tanks is submitted to the council next week and by that body adopted it will be of a most stringent character and that gasoline holders will not be allowed anywhere desired, as in the past. The frequency of explosions and the damage from fire that follows has aroused public opinion so that more care than ever is likely to be exercised.

All the trolley cars on the New London lines will soon be operated as one-man cars. There is a conductor now on each car with the motorman, but he does nothing but sell tokens at the entrance to the car and sees that the tokens are deposited in the box. As soon as the motormen are familiar enough with their duties to dispense with instructors the duty of selling tokens and seeing to the deposit of fares will fall upon the men at the controller.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, Sept. 27.—Marked irregularity characterized today's stock market with closing prices generally showing little change on the day.

Failure of operators on the long side of the market to follow up the recovery started just before the close yesterday by Baltimore & Ohio's constructive dividend action led to a renewal of bear pressure after a buoyant opening. Speculators for the decline succeeded in uncovering several weak spots, such as Jones Bros. Tea which broke more than 9 points to 35 1-2, a new low for the year, but the usual leaders offered good resistance and prices turned upward again in the late dealings.

Cable reports indicating serious differences between Bavaria and the German reich were generally regarded as a disturbing factor and undoubtedly were responsible for the reactionary trend in foreign exchange. Demand sterling dropped more than half a cent to around $4.55. French francs slipped back 5 points to 6.15 cents and German marks were off 14 points at 58 cents a hundred million.

Baltimore & Ohio was again the most active stock on the board, nearly 80,000 shares changing hands during the day. The stock touched 57 and then eased off to 56 3-8, where it was up 1 1-2 on the day. The preferred advanced 1 1-4 to 58 1-4. Most of the other rails improved fractionally, the car loadings for the week ending Sept. 15 again exceeding the million mark, despite the suspension of hard coal mining in that period.

A good inquiry developed for the tobacco shares, inducing rather extensive short coverings and resulting in sharp gains in that group. Gains of 2 or more points were recorded by Tobacco Products A and B and American Tobacco. Lorillard jumped 4 3-4.

Some of the other strong spots in the industrial division were American Beet Sugar, Beechnut Packing, Eastman Kodak, Inland Steel, New York Dock, and Foundation Company, all up 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 points.

Union Pacific went through a sinking spell, getting down to 127 1-8 after having sold 2 points higher but snapping back to 128 1-2 for a slight fractional loss on the day.

Houses which make a practice of loaning stocks to cover short commitments reported a heavy demand for all classes.

Call money opened at 5 1-2 per cent, but eased off to 5 before the close. Time money rates were unchanged with more business being done at the 5 1-2 per cent. rate for the longer maturities. Brokers continue to bid 5 1-4 for all dates. Only a moderate amount of new commercial paper is coming into the market. The ruling rate being 5 1-4 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Largely as a result of assertions from Washington that no emergency change in the wheat tariff appeared probably, wheat today averaged lower in price. The market closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-2c down, with December $1.05 1-4 to $1.05 1-4@3-8 and May $1.10 to $1.10 1-8. Corn finished 1-8c to 1-2c higher, oats 1-4@3-8c to 1-2c up, and provisions showed 2 to 15c gain.

In addition to bearish advices about the tariff, the fact that Liverpool quotations made only a poor response to yesterday's advance on this side of the Atlantic was a depressing influence on the wheat market here. However, unusual strength in corn and oats tended to check declines in the value of wheat, and even enabled the wheat market to score temporary slight gains.

At today's top figures, wheat was 3 1-4 to 5 5-8c above last week's low point, with corn and oats up respectively 5 1-8 to 9 1-2c and 2 5-8c to 3 3-4c. One result of the advance was considerable profit-taking sales of all grains. Upturns in the price of wheat though failed to hold, notwithstanding gossip that regardless of Washington dispatches formal application would be made to have import duty on wheat raised to 30c a bushel from the present rate, 30c.

Nearly all deliveries of corn reached a new high price record for the season, and so, too, did May oats. Further frost damage talk, especially from Iowa, was largely responsible. Scantiness of corn receipts here gave a special upward swing to quotations on September delivery, with the market for that month closing at the day's top, 91 1-2c. Oats were aggressively bought as being cheap compared with corn.

Provisions reflected corn strength as well as better German demand for lard.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Sept. 27.—Today's bond market was unusually quiet with small recessions predominating.

Foreign issues eased along with the decline in foreign exchanges. Active U. S. government bonds also moved slightly lower.

Railroad mortgages were relatively steady, although a few issues recorded declines of as much as a point, notably Western Maryland 4s, Frisco 4s, Series A, and Chicago Railway 5s. Third Avenue adjustment 5s receded 1 3-4.

Industrial liens moved irregularly with the copper and Sugar company liens showing slight gains. Steel Company bonds generally fell off fractionally. Commonwealth Power 6s declined 1.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Sept. 27.—Prices in today's curb market opened firm, sagged on dull trading and finally pointed upward again at the close with the active shares showing few important changes on the day.

Fractional improvement was noted in such shares as Standard Oils of Indiana and New York, Vacuum, Mutual and Salt Creek Producers, Prairie Oil & Gas was run up 2 1-2 points and Standard Oil of Kentucky, 1, while Pennsylvania-Mexico Oil broke 3 points and Indiana Pipe, 2. Eureka Pipe dropped 1 1-8 on unofficial reports of a cut in the dividend.

Trading in the new common stock of the International Concrete Industries Corporation and the Gleason-ite Products Company, which were admitted to the list today, featured the industrial division. Each stock fluctuated between 9 1-2 and 9 3-4 closing at the top. Gillette Safety Razor advanced a point. The motors improved slightly.

Interest in the mining group centered in the penny stocks, changes in which were unimportant.

The class of 1923-4 held a meeting Sept. 26 and elected officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, Eugene Carroll; vice president, Annie Williams; secretary, Delina Lafavre; assistant secretary, Arlene Stamand; treasurer, Frances Montgomery; assistant treasurer, Lloyd Jarvis. The class voted to pay twenty-five cents a month for class dues.

R. F. D. man, and others whose daily routine includes driving over the country roads leading to and from the borough, are reporting game of different sorts. There is a line already on more than a dozen flocks of quail. Local game wardens and members of the Ashland Fish and Game Protective association are in league, to try and prevent the shooting of a single quail during the two years of protection by law. On account of indiscriminate shooting in Griswold of late, Bob White last fall was seldom to be met with. If necessary for their preservation the known flocks will be personally guarded. In the memory of the oldest hunters here, quail have not enjoyed Connecticut's law protection before.

A great osprey, commonly called fish hawk, has been making his fishing trips from the topmost ridge of the Ashland mill roof. It is an altogether unusual proceeding for this bird to establish his habitation on the top of a building. Generally it is a tall pine or a lonely cliff for him. He has been around the mill buildings for more than a week. The mill officials are anxious that it shall be known that the osprey is protected by law. On the 15th of October, 1907, the late W. C. Bliven shot from the Aspinock dam an osprey that had a wing spread of six feet, three inches. Its food consists solely of fish, which it captures alive. The big one at Ashland sits silently, away up by the tower for hours. Then he is observed to fly out over the nearby pond, pause, hover for a moment, and then closing his wings, descend like a plummet, his aim and speed generally insures success. As a rule, he carries his food to his favorite perch, and there devours it, for above the busy street.

The polls in both the voting districts of Griswold are to be open from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m., Monday, when votes may be cast for the following officials:

Democratic—Assessor, William M. McNicol; board of relief, Henry E. Olson, John McDermott; selectmen, Maxcy Seymour, Arba Browning; town clerk, John Welsh; town treasurer, John Welsh; auditor, Louis Morey; collector of taxes, Lionel Boucher; constables, Alfred Bacon, Harvey Menard, Edward Bryant, Leslie G. Hyde; registrar of voters, First district, Timothy E. Shea; Second district, John F. Gardiner; town school committee, James H. Shea, William F. Bitgood.

Neither the specimen ballots, nor the tickets to be voted Monday will explain relative to the proposed amendment to the constitution.

Mrs. A. M. Clarke is entertaining Mrs. Preston Yerrington of Providence. This week as dinner guests she entertained a party of seven who are spending three weeks at Beach Pond. They are from Jamestown, R. I., and include Mr. and Mrs. George Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Remington Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Knowles and J. C. Schleith.

The girls of the office force at Aspinook bleachery gave a supper to Miss Fannie Bishop, at the close of Friday afternoon's work. Miss Bishop ends her work there Saturday, and with her brother will go to California to remain a year probably. They will leave about the middle of October. Miss Bishop received as a handsome handbag containing a five dollar gold piece as a remembrance from the office force. The supper was served in the dispensary.

George Gardiner and his daughter, Mrs. Ethel Gardiner Tattersol and Mrs. Annie Patterson, of Providence, have called at Mrs George Sparks this week. They were former residents here, the Gardiners living where Cassavant's store now stands.

Mrs. Lester McMurtrie of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Arba Browning, as has been her custom for years.

Josephine Kargul picked a fine bouquet of blue violets Wednesday. Their time for blooming is May.

WHAT RENT RECEIPTS MEAN
Rent receipts are certificates of deposits to the credit of your landlord and are equal in point of value to tickets to a last year circus.
If you pay $25 a month rent for ten years, you will have paid $3,040.86. The landlord still owns the house and the "increment" the property has earned while you have protected it for him. In the ten years' rent you've paid for the house and the land, and you don't even a shingle on the roof! Does it pay to rent?
Let us show you how to combat these problems and avail yourselves of our facilities. We have some exceptional bargains at this time.

PRIZES TO CHILDREN FOR HEALTH GARDENS

At a meeting in Tip Top hall, Colchester, Thursday afternoon prizes were awarded the owners of the best health gardens conducted the past summer by children in and near Colchester. The health garden work has been conducted under the auspices of the National Council of Jewish Women, farm and rural department, Miss Edith Zisman, R. N., Connecticut field worker. Under the direction of Miss Zisman a number of children took up the health garden project during the summer and those who had the best gardens were rewarded Thursday afternoon. The prize winners were Joseph Botnik, 9 years of age, of Bozrah; Peddy Lopkin and Stephen Fedus and Bessie Soloman, Colchester. The health garden project has for its object the encouraging of club work and the interesting of the young people in farming.

Among the speakers at the meeting were Mr. Waldo, instructor at Bacon Academy, Miss Zisman and Mrs. Brownell, a state school nurse. The latter spoke on health problems.

It is hoped that a number of garden clubs will be formed next year for children ranging in ages from 10 to 16 years. Prizes will be offered in the various clubs.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT TO BE VOTED ON

Voters of Norwich will have the opportunity at the election next Monday to cast a "Yes" or "No" vote on a proposed constitutional amendment. This will be voted on the voting machines along with the vote for town officers.

The proposed amendment gives the governor power to veto specific items of an appropriation bill. It is as follows:

"The governor shall have power to disapprove any item ro items of any bill making appropriations of money embracing distinct items while at the same time approving the remainder of the bill, and the part or parts of the bill so approved shall become effective and the item or items of appropriation so disapproved shall not take effect unless the same are separately reconsidered and repassed in accordance with the rules and limitations prescribed for the passage of bills over the executive veto. In all cases in which the governor shall exercise the right of disapproval hereby conferred he shall append to the bill at the time of signing it a statement of the item or items disapproved, together with his reasons for such disapproval, and transmit the bill and such appended statement to the secretary. If the general assembly be then in session he shall forthwith cause a copy of such statement to be delivered to the house in which the bill originated for reconsideration in conformity with the rules prescribed for legislative action in respect to bills which have received executive disapproval."

In word of explanation as to how the proposed amendment will work if ratified, the following is an example:

It sometimes happens either by purpose or accident, that a large number of specific appropriations will be contained in a single bill. Most of the appropriations may be desirable and some of them may be absolutely necessary for the conducting of state affairs. Some of the specific appropriations, however, may be, in the opinion of the governor, wasteful and unnecessary. Under the constitution as it now reads, the governor may face the dilemma of either approving appropriations which he deems unwise or vetoing appropriations which are both wise and necessary.

The First congregational church of Stonington, Conn., is bequeathed $500 in the will. The church, said to be one of the oldest in New England, was organized by an ancestor of Mr. Gallup June 3, 1674. Mr. Gallup attended it frequently as a boy.

Mr. Gallup, born at Agawan, Mass., May 25, 1829, died at his home in this city Sept. 6, at the age of ninety-four. He was educated in the public schools of Agawan and the Connecticut Literary Institute at Suffield. From Mystic, Conn., Mr. Gallup migrated to Elyria, O., at the age of fifteen. He established a cheese factory and by businesslike management laid the foundation for a fortune. April 4, 1874, Mr. Gallup came to Sandusky and became associated with the late James Woolworth in the axe handle business. Later the two founded the Sandusky Tool Co., of which Mr. Gallup was president up to the time of his death. In 1907 when The Commercial National bank was organized Mr. Gallup was elected president. He served in this capacity until the spring of 1922 when the bank was merged with another Sandusky financial institution.

The body of Mr. Gallup was placed in a vault in Oakland cemetery this city to remain until next spring when it will be removed to Mystic, Conn., for final burial.

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN

When Mr. Myers of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, stepped into the drug store and asked his druggist for the best medicine he had in his store for woman's ills, is it any wonder he was handed a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? Mrs. L. K. Myers in writing of it says: "I had been weak, run down and had a pain in my left side for a long time, so I could not do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me in a short time so I was able to do all of my housework, including washing and ironing, and now I feel fine all the time." As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for benefiting 98 women out of every 100 women who take it, it will pay every suffering woman to try it.

Graduate Nurse Finds "The Perfect Remedy"

"From my long experience as a professional nurse, I do not hesitate to say I consider Tanlac the most efficient and natural stomach medicine and tonic to be had. It is undoubtedly nature's most perfect remedy," is the far-reaching statement given out for publication, recently, by Mrs. I. A. Borden, 423 Pontius Ave., Seattle, Wash., a graduate of the National Temperance Hospital, Chicago.

"I have used Tanlac exclusively for seven years in the treatment of my charity patients," said Mrs. Borden, "and my experience has been that for keeping the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels functioning properly, and for toning up the system in general, it has no equal.

"About a year ago I had a lady patient who could not keep a thing on her stomach fifteen minutes, not even water. I prevailed on her to try Tanlac and after the sixth bottle she could eat absolutely anything she wanted without the slightest bad after-effects.

"I had another patient who simply could not eat. I got him started on Tanlac and by the time he finished three bottles he was eating ravenously and able to work.

"These two instances that are typical of the wonderful merits of the medicine. My confidence in Tanlac is unlimited."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

ESTIMATED 40 DEATHS IN THE WYOMING TRAIN DISASTER

Eleven Bodies Have Been Recovered—C. B. & Q. Train Dropped Through a Bridge Into a Swollen Creek Near Lockett, Wyo.—Rain and Snow Falling Hindered Rescue Work—29 Persons Are Missing.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—(By the A. P.) Twenty nine passengers and trainmen on the Chicago-Burlington and Quincy train number 30, which plunged through a bridge into a swollen creek, near Lockett, Wyoming, last night, were missing today, according to latest advices received by the general offices of the railroad here. These included three Pullman passengers, twenty smoker and day coach passengers and six trainmen. No names of any known dead had been received.

BRIDGE WAS WEAKENED BY RECENT HEAVY STORMS

Casper, Wyo., Sept. 28.—An unknown number of victims of the wreck of the Burlington's Casper-Denver passenger train No. 30 wrecked last night near Lockett, Wyo., still were in the submerged cars of the wrecked train tonight. A conservative estimate of the dead is believed to be 40, some persons maintaining that many others lost their lives, while railroad authorities say fewer were lost.

The train, composed of a locomotive, baggage, mail and express cars, two day coaches and two Pullmans plunged through a bridge across Cole Creek shortly after leaving here at 1:35 o'clock last night. The train was made up in Casper and was due to arrive in Denver at 10:05 o'clock this morning. All of the train except the rear Pullman dropped into the creek, which was over its banks because of recent rains.

Rescue workers rendered helpless by rain and snow that fell intermittently throughout the day and the irresistable torrent that was surging through the normally dry creek bed, stood by, unable to do anything.

As the day wore on, newspapermen noticed that the cars were slowly settling beneath the water.

This afternoon the known dead consisted of Nicholas Schmetz, of Douglas, Wyo., E. H. Schultz, of Casper, a baggageman, and an unidentified negro. Out of the 40 persons believed to have been on the train, about 40 have been accounted for. The estimate of the loss of life is based on statements made by passengers who passed through the day coaches prior to the wreck. These coaches are under water and the death figure probably will not be known for some time.

Although the bodies of several victims are visible, no means so reach them as out of the question, as the creek is 75 feet wide and extremely swift. Everything possible was being done, railroad officials said, but little could be done toward recovering the bodies until the waters recede.

Railroad men today declared that the accident could not have been prevented. An hour before the train, swinging around a slight curve on schedule time, crashed through the bridge spanning the small stream, a track walker reported that he had inspected the structure and found it safe. Weakened by heavy storms and with its edges torn away by the torrent as the result of a cloudburst, the small bridge was in no condition to withstand its heavy load of steel, they said.

The train, back to the second coach is submerged and the car is standing on end under water. The Pullman stood on end throughout the night and today its support washed away, and it fell into the stream. The Pullman is believed to contain the bodies of three passengers and a porter.

L. D. Coburn, conductor, M. A. Robinson, of Salida, Colo., and D. L. Littleton, a porter, saved many of the passengers of the Pullman. Three times Coburn and Robinson, guided by a rope made from the bell cord, entered the car and rescued men imprisoned in their berths. A rope was strung from one end of the partly submerged day coach to the bank and over it passengers who were able, climbed, hand over hand, to safety. One woman escaped in this manner. Flashes of lightning and the glare from the headlight of a locomotive broke the darkness.

Narrow escapes were recorded by several passengers, among them H. D. Bellrose, first reported as missing because he was known to be in the smoking compartment of the leading Pullman. Bellrose was thrown out of the car, kept in the darkness until he was washed into the Platte River two hundred yards away and there grabbed a floating tie with the aid of which he reached the bank.

Gus G. Philipa, was badly burned when he crawled out of a coach and made his way over the still hot engine to reach the bank.

Survivors removed from the flood on the east bank were taken to Douglas while those removed from pullmans on the west were brought to Casper. For the most part these brought here remained in Pullmans at the Burlington station until they could be provided with clothing, many having abandoned theirs on the sleeper.

SIX MORE RESCUED FROM THE DAY COACH

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Reports filtering into the Burlington offices here over damaged telegraph wires from the creek near Lockett, Wyo., where passenger train No. 30 plunged into the swollen waters, indicated that rescue work was progressing slowly because of the rushing waters pushed high above their normal level by recent heavy rains.

Six more passengers were rescued from the day coach, one of the cars which toppled into the creek bed. Two of these were injured but not seriously, E. P. Bracken, operating vice president, reported. It is impossible to get at others known to be in this car and the smoker, the only two falling into the creek bed, although the end of the leading Pullman car toppled into the water.

Almost all of the 32 Pullman passengers have been accounted for. Three are reported missing and until Guy Goff, train conductor lost with the head coaches, is found, no estimate can be made of the number in the smoker and chair car.

Goff, as well as Ed Spangler, assistant reading.

LOST HIS LIFE WHILE RACING WITH DEATH

Denever, Colo., Sept. 28.—Russell T. Gierhart, who died from injuries in the Burlington wreck near Casper, Wyo., last night, was racing with death when he lost his life. Gierhart was trying to reach the bedside of his little son, Fred Bernard, who is dangerously ill of scarlet fever here.

The lad's condition took a turn for the worse yesterday and Mrs. Gierhart telegraphed for her husband to some home.

Five Bodies Recovered.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 28.—Five bodies had been recovered this afternoon from Burlington train number 30, wrecked at Casper, Wyo., last night, according to the Post. One man died of injuries in Casper hospital.

SCHNEIDER CUP WON BY LIEUT. RITTENHOUSE

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Sept. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Lieut. David Rittenhouse, of the U. S. Navy, driving his Curtiss navy racer at a speed of 177.38 miles an hour, today won the Schneider cup from its English holder against a field which had simmered down to another American, an Englishman and a Frenchman.

Lieut. Rittenhouse crossed the finish mile of the 186 mile course in 1 hour 12 minutes 26 4-5 seconds; his American colleague, Lieut. Rutledge Irvine, was less than 2 minutes behind him, and the Englishman, Capt. H. C. Biard, more than 9 minutes behind. The Frenchman was eliminated when forced to make a landing in the water, and his plane was towed ashore undamaged.

Capt. Biard had been disqualified because he rose from the water before crossing the starting line, instead of taxying over it, but as the plane bumped the water after crossing the line the judges withdrew their disqualification ruling. Engine trouble developing at the last minute kept two of the French entrants from flying. Accidents during trials had already accounted for one of the Americans and two of the English entrants.

Lieut. Rittenhouse's speed is a record for the event, beating by 35 miles an hour the record established at Naples last year by Capt. Biard. The course consisted of five circuits of a triangular course.

Huge crowds, which included many of the highest of the British navy officials, gathered to see the race, the Cowes was filled with American and French visitors. The U. S. S. Pittsburgh was anchored off Cowes, and two French ships were stationed in Thesolent.

The Americans heavily backed their countrymen to take the honors, and there was plenty of confidence in Capt Biard and his Napier seaplane among the Englishmen.

SITUATION IN BULGARIA SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Washington, Sept. 28.—The situation in all of Bulgaria tends toward complete pacification, except in the county of Ferdinandovo, where the communists still shown some resistance, the Bulgarian legation was informed today in an official message from Sofia dated yesterday.

The dispatch added that news had just been received to the effect that at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Ferdinandovo "had been cleared of rebels," who were retreating toward Belogradtchik, near the Serbian frontier.

The cablegram said "many fugitive rebels are surrendering to the authorities," and that "as a preventative measure about 500 communists in Sofia have been arrested.

33 NEW WOMEN DETECTIVES FOR NEW YORK POLICE FORCE

New York, Sept. 28.—Thirty-three women, wives or sisters of men who lost their lives in the New York Police department were graduated today from the department's detective school, and received their diplomas from Commissioner Enright.

The women have been put through a regular police training and many of them have shown remarkable aptitude in the detection of crime. While still in their apprenticeship the women detectives will be used largely in tracing lost children and young girls who have disappeared from their homes.

Russian Minister Hastens to Finland.

Moscow, Sept. 28.—The Russian minister to Finland, Alexej Tchernych, who has been in Moscow on leave, is hastening back to Helsingfors to seek adjustment of the difficulties raised by the assassination of M. Lavroff, chairman of the Russian-Karelian border commission.

PERCY R. TODD OPPOSES TRUNK LINE CONSOLIDATION

Boston, Sept. 28.—Opposition to the trunk line consolidation for New England railroads came from Percy R. Todd, the Boston Chamber of Commerce, whose membership is 7,000, and the New England Paper and Pulp Association, at today's session of the Interstate Commerce Commission's hearings here.

Arguments for and against the proposal of the joint New England railway committee for a New England system of railroads, as preferable to further trunk line control, are being heard by Commissioners Hall, Eastman and Cox.

C. L. Whittemore, the spokesman for the Paper and Pulp Association which, he said, includes in its membership thirty of the largest mills in New England, declared that the New York Central, if given control, over the Boston and Maine, the Maine Central and the Bangor and Aroostook, would impose severe restrictions upon shippers and manufacturers.

"The New York Central would control the entire paper and pulp business of Maine," Mr. Whittemore said. "It could make the Canadian differential routes so uncomfortable that shippers would be glad to route by all-New York Central lines. New England management of New England's roads is the only hope in our situation of inadequate trade service."

President Todd, of the Bangor and Aroostook, said that a trunk line controlling New England roads would set itself to destroying the northern differential freight route facilities, east and west bound, and prophesied that with such an arrangement New England would in five or six years find herself dependent upon a single gateway to the west. He equally condemned the so-called McDonald plan for merger of the Maine Central, and the Bangor and Aroostock with the New York Central, linked together by a division of the Boston and Maine.

The feasibility of rehabilitating the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, which the Storrow report says is urgently in need of financial reconditioning, was assured by Homer Loring, of Boston, chairman of the Massachusetts state committee on administration and finance. The credit of the Boston and Maine would be restored, he thought, and there was no need of a receivership for either road.

Dr. Otto H. Schultze, medical assistant to the district attorney's office, immediately went to Rye, at the request of the dead woman's friends, to make a preliminary examination of her body. He declared today that in his opinion death had been caused by poison. He stated that certain corrosive substances had been found in the body.

On last Tuesday friends of Mrs Webb went to Mr. Pecora's office and infored him that "death was imminent" and that "most unnatural conditions" prevailed, he stated. He added that the New York office could take no action unless further developments proved, as had been suggested, that Mrs. Webb was given some slow poison in New York City before going to Rye.

Mr. and Mrs. Webb, who were socially prominent in New York, Philadelphia and various resorts, were married November 4 last. Before her marriage Mrs. Webb was Gertrude Emily Gorman, daughter of S. Jennings Gorman.

Urge Ruhr Workmen To Return to Work

Representatives of Trades Unions Approve German Government's Policy.

Berlin, Sept. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Having lost in his first struggle with the government, Adolph Hitler, national socialist leader in Bavaria, has ordered his followers to return to their homes and await his call at a more favorable opportunity.

The central and Bavarian governments now are discussing the suggestion of the former that the Bavarian emergency decree should be withdrawn, as it has been superceded by the decree of President Ebert and it is hoped that at a not distant date it will be possible to rescind both decrees.

Representatives of the trades unions of the occupied territories, meeting at Giessen, Hesse, have unanimously approved the government's policy and issued a manifesto to the officials and workmen in the Ruhr, urging them to return to work.

FRANCE PUZZLED BY THE SITUATION IN GERMANY

Paris, Sept. 28.—(By the A. P.)—"Prudence" was the watchword tonight in French official circles, to which the situation in Germany appears more than ever puzzling.

There is an impression that the Berlin government is trying to see with how little the allies will be content in the way of formal repudiation of the measures of resistance in the Ruhr. Premier Poincare, it is said authoritatively, will not be satisfied with any mere repudiations; he is waiting for the resistance actually and permanently to cease and for the industrial heads in the Ruhr to accept the situation and establish by the allied regulations.

It is anticipated that if the government has matters definitely under control, Chancellor Stresemann will appoint ambassadors to Paris and Brussels at an early date in order to resume conversations in the regular way, and it is thought likely that he will propose a new scheme for payment of the reparations through the diplomatic channels thus re-established.

FOR READJUSTMENT OF GERMANY'S FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Berlin, Sept. 28 (By the A. P.)—With the Munish situation having calmed down and the internal situation generally safeguarded for the time being through the provisions of the government's emergency proclamation, Chancellor Stresemann is directing official activities toward accomplishing a speedy liquidation of the situation in the Ruhr and the Rhineland with the purpose of facilitating an early readjustment of German's foreign affairs.

The Bavarian flurry no longer is viewed as harboring menace to the situation at home, a working understanding having been reached with the Bavarian Premier Von Knilling which it is believed will relieve the Berlin government of any immediate concern over developments in Munich especially as reports from the Bavarian capital continue reassuring.

An official communication issued tonight sets forth the reasons which prompted the government to proclaim a state of emergency throughout federal territory. It says the government's action has been wrongly interpreted abroad. The precautionary measure, the official statement declares, was dictated primarily by a determination to forestall any attempt to creat disturbances in the present precarious economic, financial and social situation, obviously the result of the French policies in the Ruhr and the abandonment of passive resistance. By proclaiming a state of emergency, it adds, the government proposes to make the most effective use of such defensive resources as are at its disposal and promptly quell any attempt to place the government of the republic in jeopardy

COMPLAIN THAT LONDON IS BECOMING AMERCANIZED

London, Sept. 28.—Many Englishmen have complained that London is becoming more Americanized every day, and one of their grievances is over the tendency of the English newspapers to forsake their traditional style for glaring headlines, after the manner affected by some American publications.

Now the country across the sea is receiving most of the blame for the alarming increase in street accidents in London. The latest report shows that 171 people were killed in 18,199 accidents in the streets of the capital during the months of April, May and June, the largest number in a similar period in the city's history.

Several of the London newspapers, pointing out that this increase is due to the ever increasing hurry, declare it is result of the further spread of the American idea.

Don't Overlook Any Diamonds

Kimberley was going backward. The farmers were disgruntled. They said they couldn't eke out a living from the rocky soil.

And all the time their ragged youngsters were playing with diamonds!

But the farmers didn't know. Many of them died poor. They thought the priceless gems were pebbles.

Some folks are just like those Kimberley farmers. They seek opportunity in some distant place and overlook the wealth that is daily within their grasp.

Advertising is a diamond mine of opportunity. It tells of values you would probably overlook if it was not there to guide you.

Don't fail to use the advertising columns of The Bulletin and don't fail to read the advertisements it carries.

BLEACHES COLLAPSED AT BOXING BOUT IN DANIELSON

Nearly 200 Men Fell With Heap of Broken Lumber, Some of Them Landing in the Ring—Number of Persons Injured Was Estimated at Thirty—Abner Barzume of This City, Suffered Internal Injuries—Several Norwich Men Are Among the Slightly Injured.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Sept. 28.—Approximately thirty people were injured, some of them probably seriously, when a section of bleachers collapsed in the town hall this evening and catapulted nearly 200 men into a heap of broken lumber and struggling humanity.

Notwithstanding that the crash was terrifying and wholly unexpected, the more than 1,000 men who were in the hall retained their calm and there was not the slightest sign of a panic.

The section of bleachers that went down was part of a big installation of extra seats put in Thursday to accommodate the overflow attendance attracted to the first boxing event of the season, at which Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion of the world, was to be featured in a boxing exhibition.

The attendance represented about every section of eastern Connecticut, and a number of those who were injured were residents of Norwich and other towns and cities in this section of eastern Connecticut.

The show had not started when the bleachers collapsed. Commissioner Frank Murphy of the boxing commission of Connecticut had just introduced Attorney E. L. Darbie, who was to have made a brief address to the audience, and had just started talking when the bleachers without any warning whatever began to crack and immediately crashed. Numbers at the boxing show were occupying reserved seats underneath the elevated bleachered section when the structure above them tore apart.

Men came tumbling down off their high perches, some of them being hurled into the ring. Willing hands quickly started pulling the injured out of the wreckage, while others extricated themselves. It was regarded as miraculous that no fatalities resulted.

The injured went unassisted or were carried to nearby drug stores and doctors' offices and within a few minutes all the physicians in town were caring for the injured.

Among the most seriously hurt was Abner Barzume of the Auditorium hotel, Norwich. His injuries appeared to be internal. He was removed to the home of Charles S. Francis and later removed to Norwich in the ambulance of the Backus hospital.

John Youngblood of Danielson was removed from the hall unconscious and taken to his home here in Danielson. The nature of his injuries had not been determined late tonight.

Albert Cardinal West Side, Danielson, was removed to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam after treatment at a local drug store. He had a badly injured leg and was in a state of collapse.

Albert Malbboeuf, also of Danielson, has a badly injured leg and was taken to the hospital at Putnam.

Moses Seigal of Norwich was cut on the head and suffered from shock. After treatment here at a doctor's office he was taken to his home in Norwich.

Charles Conrade of East Great Plain received an injury to his back, one leg was cut and his nose cut. His injuries are not serious.

Others on the injured list are Patrick Hayes, Slater avenue, Norwich, hip injured; D. J. Hayes, Williams street, Norwich, shock and bruises; Joseph Williams, Peck street, Norwich, bruises, slight wounds; Elsworth J. Allen, Norwich, cut over the eye; Joseph Sabourin, Wauregan, injured ankle; Benjamin Mandell, Auditorium hotel, Norwich, cut over eye; Michael LeBlanc, Dayville, cut on head; John Wheeler, Dayville, cut on head and suffered from shock; William Pechie, Dayville, bruises and shock; Daniel Weaver, Dayville, minor injury to leg.

This is not a complete list of injured. Some of those hurt hunted up doctors and after treatment went directly home without waiting medical attention.

Scores of those who came down in the collapsed section were not hurt at all or received only the most minor cuts and bruises. Several had suits torn to shreds, lost hats and other apparel.

Within a short time after the collapse of the bleachers the card of boxing bouts was staged and carried through successfully. Promoter Frank Barber who staged the show, was heart-broken over the accident and was in tears as the injured were being taken out.

Brand new lumber had been used in erecting the extra bleachers and a competent contractor employed to erect them. No limitation was placed on the cost of making them safe and secure.

If the bleachers had collapsed a few minutes later when the reserved seats underneath them had been filled, the casualty list undoubtedly would have been far heavier and more serious than was the case.

WARD ACQUITTED OF MURDER OF PETERS

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Walter S. Ward today was acquitted of the murder of Clarence Peters.

The jury just reentered the courtroom shortly before 4:30 Ward and his wife preceded the jury into the courtroom and when Mr. Mills informed him he had been acquitted he sat down a complacent smile on his face and chewed a large wad of gum. Having been apprised beforehand what the verdict was he displayed no visible emotion when foreman Charles H. Shelling, a shipper, announced it.

As the jury foreman announced the verdict a cheering throng of spectators, mostly women, climbed over rows of benches and chairs to grasp the hand and kiss the face of the wealthy baker's son.

Ward, blushing, smiling and chewing gum, tried in vain to fight his way through the milling crowd that packed the court room, and reach the side of his wife who had fallen into the arms of his brother Ralph, when she heard the jury's verdict. Mrs. War was in an ante-room. Ralph burst in with the glad tidings and with a murmur sank into his arms.

It was not merely a polite demonstration that greeted the verdict of "no guilty." It was an outburst of emotion. For 10 days the court room has been packed an almost of the spectators each day have been women. Never in fashionable Westchester county has there been more interest displayed in a murder trial than in this one in which the wealthy member of a leading family fought for his life for the killing of an inconspicuous youth. And seldom, if ever, has there been a more emotional display upon the receiving of a verdict.

DEBATE IN ASSEMBLY OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Geneva, Sept. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Well worthy of being characterized a world forum, with voices rising from four continents, was the great rebate in the assembly of the League of Nations tonight when the delegates, while generally approving the decision of the council of the league to submit the question of the interpretation of the covenant of the league to jurists, scourged the old-time practice of bigger states coercing the weaker and also sent out a warning that henceforth violence must cease and peaceful methods be followed in harmonizing national differences.

That it was a hard session for Italy is the unanimous opinion in league circles in Geneva tonight. Signor Salandra, head of the Italian delegation, said nothing during the debate as speaker after speaker directly or indirectly accused Italy of not living up to his solemn engagements. He even remained silent when Gilbert Murray, Great Britain, openly reproached the league for what he termed its neglect in protecting weak communities against the chicane and tyranny of the strong.

GREECE MAKES PAYMENT OF 80,000,000 LIRE TO ITALY

Athens, Sept. 28.—(By the A. P.)—Acting on instructions issued by the Greek government, the National Bank of Greece has telegraphed the Swiss National Bank authorizing that institution to make immediate payment of the 50,000,000 lire indemnity deposit to Italy.

The presentation of Greece's reply to the council of ambassadors with regard to the council's decision in the controversy between Greece and Italy, has been postponed until tomorrow.

PROPOSING A MEMORIAL TO PRESIDENT HARDING

Washington, Sept. 28.—Consideration was given by President Coolidge and his cabinet today to the proposal that a memorial be erected in honor of the late President Harding and it was indicated that such a proposition will have the backing of the chief executive and the cabinet members who served under the late president.

Such a proposal was presented to the president several days ago by a delegation representing the veterans of foreign wars and has appealed to the president as worthy of consideration.

The delegation suggested that the government hospitals be opened to veterans of all wars and for all sorts of disabilities. There are thousands of vacant beds in veterans hospitals. Inasmuch as it often is difficult to ascertain whether the disability of a former service man is of service origin and as the determination of such a point sometimes works an injustice to veterans, the president believes that it would be a beneficial policy to open up the hospitals. He feels that congress would approve such a step.

A corporation headed by Mr. Coolidge and the members of the cabinet probably will be formed, in which many other friends of Mr. Harding will be associated for the purpose of raising money and directing the building of the memorial.

The form and location have not been decided but the suggestion has been made and considered that the memorial be directed in Marion, Ohio, the home and burial place of the late chief executive.

TO FIND REMEDY FOR ILLS OF AGRICULTURISTS

Washington, Sept. 28.—Informed through a series of conferences as to the situation faced by the wheat growers of the central northwest, President Coolidge expects to meet with Secretaries Wallace and Hoover within a few days to determine what remedies may be applied to the ills of the agriculturists generally.

The plight of wheat growers was laid before Secretary Hoover in details today by the delegation which conferred yesterday with President Coolidge and Secretary Wallace. The conferences with the two cabinet members treated the subject of relief in more detail than was possible at the White house meeting with the president in his study of the question desires to avail himself of the information and advice of the two secretaries.

Members of the delegation from the northwestern states embraced in the Minneapolis Federal Reserve District have proposed that the president call congress into special session to enact legislation to revive the United States Grain Corporation, minus its war time powers to fix prices. They also have a reduction in freight rates on wheat and wheat products.

Mrs. Eugene Hawley Pierce, 49, died at St. Joseph's hospital in this city, Friday morning, about 4 o'clock, as the result of burns sustained on Thursday at her home in Lebanon. Mrs. Pierce was preparing to light a fire on which she put kerosene oil, before starting to cook supper, and the flames spread to the contents of the oil can, which exploded. Mrs. Pierce was instantly in a mass of flames which caused the fatal burns. First aid was given the scorched woman and she was rushed to the hospital here. Her burns, however, were of such a nature that even the best of treatment failed to relieve her and she died Friday morning. Medical Examiner Dr. L. I. Mason, who was called, gave as the cause of death, accidental burning.

Mrs. Pierce, who was Ellen Hawley, was born in Rockland, a daughter of Sylvester and Ella Fairchild Hawley. She leaves her husband, Eugene Pierce, and seven children. The office of the American Thread company plant here, announced Friday afternoon that, starting Monday, the working hours at the local mills would go on the winter schedule. The plant will begin operations one-half hour later than at present. The hours will be: 7.30 a. m. to 12 m., and from 1 p. m. to 5.15 p. m. The manufacturing department will continue on four days a week—Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. It is expected that most of the other manufacturing plants in the city will soon adopt the winter schedule.

Interest among voters in the town elections and the adjourned town meeting Saturday, Oct. 6, is directed to that clause of the warning which calls on the voters to determine whether the town will make an appropriation for construction of state aid roads here, to obtain the $30,000 allotment from the state for the next two years. The allotment is in accordance with an act of the general assembly approved June 5, 1923, and the final date for the receiving of applications for this aid was set for Monday, Oct. 1, which is election day here. It was at first thought that a special vote would have to be taken on the matter Monday, but Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton was informed Friday forenoon by John A. MacDonald, state highway commissioner, that the time for receiving applications for state aid road work had been extended until Wednesday, Oct. 10.

Should the citizens vote in favor of the state aid road appropriation, the town will be obliged to stand but one-quarter of the amount, or $5,000 of the $20,000 appropriation. It is planned to reconstruct the road between Windham Center, half a mile from the top of Bricktop Hill, to North Windham, a stretch of three miles. A good road there would relieve much of the traffic over the roads leading to this city.

Another clause which arouses interest relates to the towns of the state in general and is a vote on the proposed constitutional amendment which will appear on the ballot in Monday's election.

A singular accident took place at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, corner of Main and Walnut streets, when Charles Flubacher, 318 Prospect street, received a broken bone in his left ankle when his foot was jammed by a wheel of an automobile driven by William A. Dawson, a florist. Mr. Flubacher had been standing on the curbing talking to a friend and stepped backward off the curb just as the Dawson car was approaching. Mr. Flubacher saw his danger and quickly stepped back to the sidewalk but Mr. Dawson was unaware and in avoiding Mr. Flubacher squarely, he pulled the machine to the sidewalk, jamming Mr. Flubacher's left foot against the left front wheel of the car. The injured man was taken to a physician and then to his home. The matter was reported to the police department.

Funeral services for Jabez S. Maine were held Friday afternoon at The J. C. Lincoln Company undertaking rooms at 2 o'clock. Rev. Harry S. McCready conducted the service. The bearers were George Snow, John N. Williams, Warren Nichols and William Rathbun. Burial was in the North Windham cemetery.

Every street in the business section and all nearby residential streets were lined with motor cars during Friday evening while patrons of boxing from all parts of eastern Connecticut were crowded into the town hall to see the card of bouts scheduled. Business men benefited from this influx of visitors for the latter spent a very considerable sum of money about town before and after the events of the evening.

Fans resident in Killingly who were present at Friday evening's bouts were told that unless they with other citizens defeat at next Monday's town meeting the proposal to close the town hall to professional sports during the coming year there will be no further boxing matches and only high school basketball for sporting entertainment during the next year. The fans, after hearing what was expected of them, voiced in no uncertain manner their plan to be on hand Monday afternoon and vote against the proposal.

In the superior court at Putnam Friday morning the case of Miss Gertrude A. Wardell vs. the town of Killingly was specially assigned for trial on Wednesday, Oct. 17. Attorney E. L. Darbie, counsel for the town, explained to the court that the plaintiff is now resident in Pennsylvania and that the witnesses, principally school teachers, in a number of cases no longer employed here, are now located at various points in the eastern states and a considerable tiem in advance of the trial will be required to arrange for their appearance in court.

Negotiations that have been pending for settlement of this case between counsel for Miss Wardell and counsel for the town have been without definite results up to the present. The case has been in the court for several years and grew out of the summary discharge of Miss Wardell from her duties as teacher of music in Killingly's schools during the winter of a school year for which she had been engaged. Miss Wardell filed suit for damages of $5,000. On legal points developed the case has been up several times before judges of the superior court and has twice been considered by the supreme court of the state.

Outspoken objection to imposing indiscriminately regardless of the circumstances jail sentences on first offenders in liquor cases was heard Friday afternoon at the conference between Chief Justice George W. Wheeler of the supreme court of errors and enforcement officers from Windham county towns at the superior court room in Putnam, but resolutions providing for such disposition of cases were eventually adopted, but with a minority of those present voting against the proposal.

Objection to the jail sentence program was voiced by representatives of the police court of Willimantic, of the city court of Putnam, of the Killingly town court and of justices' courts in Sterling, and on the original vote, which was later reconsidered, the resolutions offered were rejected by a majority vote because of the inclusion of a jail sentence clause for first offenders. After further discussion and further urging for jail sentence for a first offense, the meeting reversed itself and voted in favor, with about a dozen of those present dissenting to the end.

PUTNAM

Charging that at different times during their married life she had regarded her husband as the murderer of five of her unborn children and that he used her as a punching bag and constantly cursed and abused her, Delia C. Rattee of this city sought for and obtained a divorce from her husband, Peter J. Ratte, also of Putnam, in the superior court here Friday morning, Judge L. B. Waldo Marvin presiding.

Mrs. Ratte told of being beaten by her husband while she was in a delicate condition until his blows made her body black and bruised, of being punched in the nose and having her eyes blackened by him and of the maledictions he heaped upon her when he was drunk from indulgence in liquor which he made himself in their home. Mrs. Ratte told of the loss of five unborn children as the result of beatings she received.

The couple married at Metheun, Mass., August 5, 1911. She came to Putnam on August 22, 1920, after her husband had obtained employment in a local mill and they lived together on South Meadow street until November 19, 1921, when, after giving her a beating, the husband ordered her to leave, and she did so the following day. There were times during their married life, she testified, when herself and their child were without enough to eat and always were poorly clothed. Mrs. Ratte charged her husband with having taken $500 she had saved, going away with it. He lived in Woonsocket for a time under an assumed name.

Mrs. Ratte's mother, Mrs. Exide Lefebre of Sherbrooke, P. Q., and Mrs. Mary usseault, who lived in the same house here with the Rattes testified in Mrs. Ratte's behalf. The decree was granted on the ground of intolerable cruelty and Mrs. Batte was given custody of her daughter, Laura E., born October 10, 1914.

Another divorce granted Friday to Jessie McK. Webster, of Manchester, this state, from Burt W. Webster, now of Worcester. Desertion, April 6, 1919, was charged in this suit. Mrs. Webster testified that she had talked to her husband about going about with other women and that he had become angry and had left home. Since then—a period of four years—she has supported herself and their two sons, David and Clarence, by working in tobacco warehouses and doing housework for other people. She was given custody of the children.

Another divorce on the ground of desertion was granted LeRoy B. LaPlace, of Killingly, from Nellie Bates LaPlace. The couple married at Norwich November 24, 1903. There, after they lived in Sterling for about a dozen years, then went to Essex, later to Haddam and subsequently to Killingly, where they were living when Mrs. LaPlace deserted her husband and their three children, July 29, 1915. Prior to this she left home at one time and was gone about a year and a half. With the divorce Mr. LaPlace was granted custody of his three children, Mildred, 19, Raymond, 16, and Ralph, 13.

William S. Exley of Plainfield was allowed a divorce on the ground of desertion from Ethel M. Avery Exley. They were married October 8, 1919, and she deserted him April 13, 1920, and they have not since lived together. Mr. Exley offered no detailed explanation of why she left the comfortable home he had provided for her. She had been in the habit prior to her final desertion of going to Brooklyn for visits of several days and seemed to have special interests there. Edward M. Allen, a constable, Henry Dorrance and Mrs. N. F. Bradford, all of Plainfield, were witnesses for Mr. Exley.

A fifth divorce case was one in which Robert W. Hueston, of Brooklyn, sought a divorce from Hedwig C. M. Hueston, desertion being claimed in this case. This couple married at Hempstead, L. I., June 14, 1916, while Mr. Hueston was employed as a timekeeper for the Long Island Railroad company.

April 4, 1917, the couple, with Mr. Hueston's mother, came into Connecticut and went to live on a farm in Brooklyn, that the elder Mrs. Hueston's father and mother and some other relatives came to visit them at the farm and insisted that she and her baby be allowed to return to Long Island with them for a visit of two weeks. The husband agreed and gave her money to pay her expenses while away. She has never returned, though her husband had affectionately urged her to do so. Disposition of this case was not completed as a contest over the custody of the child promises to develop, the husband and wife each desiring authority as custodian.

Among the assignments made were the following: Friday, Oct. 5, following the short calendar session: Willie H. Bowen of Killingly vs. Jennie E. Bowen, now resident in Massachusetts; Wednesday, Oct. 10, Edward A. Gooding vs. Tremor A. Rice; Tuesday, Oct 9, Arthur King et al, appeal from probate, first case; Joseph H. Elliott vs John P. Goodwin, John J. Sullivan, Margaret A. Whelan, Mary A. Sullivan and William Kirby, stockholders.

This court action is of greatest possible interest to a large number of people, particularly Putnam, Mechanicville, Thompson town and the Grosvenordales, who some years ago purchased thousands of dollars worth of the stock, through Edmond Durant, a local man, selling agent for the security.

CHIEF JUSTICE WHEELER CONFERS WITH OFFICIALS

At a conference of judges of the town and city courts, trial justices, grand jurors and prosecutors of Windham county, in the superior court chambers here Friday afternoon, with Chief Justice George W. Wheeler of the Connecticut supreme court of errors, resolutions were adopted urging more vigorous enforcement of the 18th federal amendment. The resolutions called upon citizens of the county to support the 18th amendment and to get behind the local enforcement officers; the state's attorney's office was called upon to vigorously prosecute all original and appeal cases in the superior court. The resolutions stated that the sentiment of the meeting was that a fine in so-caller "liquor cases" was looked upon merely as a license and that the offender went right along violating the law and trafficking in liquor. The resolutions set forth that the only way to cope with this flagrant law violation, is to impose jail sentences on offenders.

On motion the chair appointed a committee on resolutions consisting of Prosecutor A. G. Bill, Killingly; Judge Foss, Willimantic, and Justice Arthur H. Mathewson, Plainfield, who reported the resolutions, which were adopted, 30 to 11.

Algiero, near Avondale.

Corcetta Liotta was presented in the case of the state, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police, complaintnt, a case continued from last Friday, charged on two counts, Aug. 20 and Aug. 17, with the possession of intoxicating liquors, containing more than one-half of one per cent. alcohol. Attorney John J. Dunn, for the defendant, asked that she might change her previous plea of not guilty to nolo, which was allowed. Attorney Dunn said that there might be a technical case of possession, but that "the chivalry and gallantry in the human mind of every individual where a woman was concerned would not desert when a person is in the exalted place of a judge." Attention was directed to the fact that the defendant had never before appeared in court and he thought the ends of justice would be met by a small fine. Town Solicitor Ferguson said that the state had not been put to the trouble and expense of a trial and in the matter of witnesses a chemical expert had been called from Boston, expense $10, which should be added to the costs. Further than that he had nothing to say.

Judge Turrano saw no reason why he should be more lenient with a woman offender than with a man, although there appeared to be a tendency along these lines in other courts in the state. He said he would consider the fact that the state had not been put to the expense of a trial and that witnesse costs were rather larger than the average; he would find her guilty and sentence her to pay a fine of $25 on one count and $10 on the other with costs, which was pand.

Frank A. Algiero, 27, was presented by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, charged on the 26th of September with operating a motor car on the Watch Hill road at so reckless a rate of speed, considering the width, traffic and use of the highway, as to endanger persons and property. Algiero, through his attorney, John J. Dunn, entered a plea of not guilty. Continuance of one week was asked by Attorney Dunn as he expected to leave Westerly on a case in Norwich which was continued from Thursday. Town Solicitor Ferguson said that Dunn had already obtained continuance on four previous cases from week to week and thought some of them should be disposed of. In answer to Judge Turano, Attorney Ferguson said as a result of the alleged reckless driving a 2 year old child had been thrown through a windshild and was then in a New London hospital. Attorney Dunn said that two of his cases had been disposed of and that he was also desirous of taking the docket out of the complainant condition and would direct his efforts along that line. The reckless driving case was continued to Friday next, with a bond set at $500, for which George Turano became surety.

A decision was given in the case of Westerly Furniture Co. vs. Annie McCormick that plaintiff recover in the sum of $257.05.

Fred Clark, formerly of Westerly, now in Providence with the Narragansett Light & Power Co., was a visitor in town Thursday.

Workmen were engaged Friday in setting the plate glass in the new south window of the Woolworth store.

Early Thursday afternoon, one of the limestone blocks being placed in position on the Main street wall of the new Washington Trust Co. building at the third story slipped from its place and crashed to the sidewalk near Milo's market, carrying with it part of the second story staging. A hole was made in the sidewalk where the stone was broken in its fall. No one was on the sidewalk at the time, but a pedestrian on the sidewalk nearby is said to have been struck by a falling timber.

Considerable interest is being shown in Westerly as to the route which the large U. S. dirigible Z R-1 will take when it makes its promised visit to Brockton fair, next month. The New England voyage is to be made following the big blimp's return from the annual convention of the National Aeronautic association to be held in St. Louis, Mo., the first week in October. A promise was made by the war department following the los of the Italian dirigible that, it possible, Westerly would be included in the itinerary of an airship when it made a visit at some future time to this part of the country.

JEWETT CITY

An audience of 150 enjoyed a fine program at the September meeting of Pachaug Community club Thursday evening. Mrs. James Crary Charles Perkins Elon Karjalo and Frank Morgan, the Pachaug orchestra played several selections. Frank Mell and Mrs. George Briggs gave readings. A piano solo by Miss Elizabeth McCluggage was a pleasing number. James Armstrong, a Jewett City man, whose home is in the Canal Zone, gave a lecture on the canal, its benefits and possibilities, illustrated with lantern slides, shown by Rev. H. L. Wilber. Ice cream and cake were the refreshments. Added attractions were the games in which all joined. The committee of arrangements comprised Mr. and Mrs. George Edmonds, Miss Bertha Geer, Benjamin Gallup and Lucy Gray. The committee for the October meeting is Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Elon Karjalo and Frank Morgan. Something new is added to the pleasant attractiveness of these gatherings every time they are held.

Andrew L. Jensen not very long ago purchased the property in Hopeville known as the Charles Wilkerson farm. The purchase was made from John F. Hennon, who had owned the property a few years. Situated over toward the western border of the farm is Sky Rock and its very old cemetery of that name. Here lie some of Griswold's distinguished forefathers, their bones mingled in common dust with that of old-time settlers and Indians of a forgotten age. Some more than a hundred years ago Gen. John Tyler gave to each of his sons large grants of land in various parts of this town. The Tylers in the main have died, and for years the descendants of the brothers have been away from Griswold.

Last week Mr. Jensen had a welcome and altogether distinguished visitor who drove up to his gate in a big limousine. The caller inquired who owned the farm. Mr. Jensen calculated he did, that is, as far as he knew. "Then," said the man "do you see those pigeon holes in the barn away up in the peak of the gable?" Mr. Jensen allowed that they were visible to him. "Well," said the man, "over 50 years ago I made those holes and I fell off the ladder and struck on that stone, right there, and broke my arm." In answer to Mr. Jensen's inquiry, he said he was Fred Tyler, president of one of the largest banking houses in the city of Chicago, who had called to look once more on the never-forgotten scenes of his boyhood home. Many of the older people in Jewett City remember well the older Tylers and their sons. More than 40 years ago, when the late E. M. Swift first came to Pachaug as tutor in a private school, it was the late Joseph E. Leonard and the late George Tyler who helped materially to make the idea become a reality. Fred S. Leonard of this place and Fred Tyler of Chicago are, respectively, these honored men's sons.

The item in the Danielson column in Thursday's Bulletin in reference to the narrow bridge at Central Village stirred up excitement among local automobile drivers. Some maintained that two touring cars of any standard make could not pass on the bridge in question. Another local driver claimed that he had passed a big Buick on the bridge Sunday evening, both going at a smart clip. Finally some bank rolls were gotten out and bills of a heavy denomination were peeled off. To settle it, the journey to Central Village was made Friday afternoon. The facts are that any two automobiles of standard make, barring trucks, can pass, with a bit to spare, but it must be done at exceedingly moderate speed.

DUTY OF THE VOTERS.

Each and every one who has the right to vote has a responsibility that should be discharged next Monday. For all who are able to get to the polls it is their duty to do so and cast their votes for those who possess fitness and have demonstrated their fitness for public office.

There is no credit to be gained from being numbered among the stay-at-homes. That cooperation which every good citizen is expected to give in behalf of good government should be manifested at the ballot box. The sooner it is realized that desirable government is obtained and maintained through the continued display of interest and support on the part of the voters and increases the fewer will be the instances of regret that come from leaving the responsibilities of election day to one few.

The idea of considering that one vote makes no difference one way or the other may be true, as long as only one or two feel that way, but when it represents the attitude of a large majority of the voters, both men and women, it presents a deplorable situation. And it does no good to note such a situation after the polls have been counted. The thing to do is to give due consideration to it now and make it a point to get to the polls on election day.

Norwich is anxious that good government should be continued in connection with town affairs. The ticket as named above has been selected with that end in view. It is made up of well known citizens, men who have served the city or town in responsible positions, men of good judgment, men of good business ability and citizens in whom confidence can be placed. They have been tried and found faithful to their trust.

The ticket is made up of citizens who are worthy of the support of not only partisans but of all voters who are desirous of the continuance of good government and the proper handling of the important duties of such offices.

Get out to the polls and vote.

GERMANY'S REVOLTS.

Germany has gotten to the point where it was found wise to admit that passive resistance in the Ruhr was a failure and announces that it must stop. That is awakening some opposition from those who were responsible for such a policy in the first place and who are reluctant to see it go even after the mistake has been clearly shown to them.

The resistance to the government's plan is the natural outcome of that sentiment which has been responsible for getting Germany into its present predicament. If it is necessary for a test of strength the government may as well face it now as at any other time, but it should do so with a firm hand and a determination to put into operation a policy that will serve to bring Germany to that basis of understanding with the other European nations which will put an end to bickerings and suspicions and permit of the much needed settlement and reconstruction.

France has insisted upon Germany losing the mark because it believed that it should, and that despite its claims that it was not able to do so. The admission by Germany of its failure in the Ruhr supports the course that France took to obtain it. However much the leaders of the revolt movement in the various sections of Germany are endeavoring to offset the French success by indicating conditions are most unstable in the German republic France is not worried. It stands ready to do what it has maintained that it would do in the Ruhr with proper cooperation on the part of Germany, and it can be expected that it will make good just as rapidly as Germany does, and Germany must look well to the fact that conditions at home do not serve to reverse a favorable situation. Germany cannot dodge its responsibility in any such way.

SAM HILL WINS.

The election in the state of Washington for the purpose of filling a vacancy for congressman in the Fifth district caused by the elevation of the former member to a judgeship has been attracting some attention because of the political situation that has prevailed in that state and the chance to note whether there has been any noticeable change.

The election of the candidate who was running as a democrat in what is normally a republican district indicates that there has been a change, but not one which can be said to be for the benefit of the district, and it can hardly bring any satisfaction to the democrats.

In the last election a republican was elected by a plurality over the democratic and farmer-laborite candidates. Had there been unity on the part of the last two parties the candidates representing such a combination would have won by nearly 1000 votes. Apparently that was given consideration by the democratic candidate this time, for the platform of Judge Samuel Hill was built of excellent farmer-laborite material, calculated to win that support and it seemingly succeeded, even though the policies were so flimsy as to cause surprise that other than farmer-laborites would fall for them.

The change that the election discloses is that the opponents of the republicans won by getting together, but there is some significance in the fact that the majority under the combined strength of something like 500 was only about a half of what it was two years ago when there was a divided opposition. The election means the going to Washington of not a regular democrat but one of the radical advocates with a democratic label, whose services may be conspicuous but not very impressive.

GOT QUICK RESULTS.

For months there has been a struggle on the first of each month by the steamship lines to get their list of immigrants into the country before the quota from the respective countries is filled. It has resulted in a race for quarantine and an eager have been some steamships that they have actually brought their immigrants into the country before the legal hour.

Brought to task and heavily fined on the first of September interest has been centered upon the effect that such action would have on the companies in succeeding months. Sunday night, after midnight, will be the next opportunity to bring in immigrants and already it has been arranged by the steamship lines that no ship will attempt to cross the quarantine line until five minutes after midnight and thereafter at ten minute intervals others will follow in the order of arrival outside.

It is a sensible arrangement. It does away with the racing and it is in accordance with the existing law. Unfortunately it required the imposition of heavy fines on the companies in order to bring them to a proper respect for the law, but they have already indicated that one lesson is enough. Henceforth it can be expected that they will give no more trouble. Had they been permitted to go on rushing their passengers in hours or minutes before the lawful time the situation would have grown steadily worse. As it is the tendency to override the law has been promptly and effectively checked.

OIL REFUSE.

Pollution of harbors and beaches by the waste oil that is thrown overboard from steamships in cleaning their tanks and bilges has long been a nuisance to say nothing of a menace to shell and other food fish. Efforts to have it abated have not succeeded to the point desired. It means a serious obstacle to the fishing industry and no small annoyance to summer residences along the coast.

Emptying such refuse in the harbor may well get a prompt check, but when it is thrown overboard a few miles out the effect on the fish or the beaches is not overcome. Sooner or later much of it will get in its detrimental work.

The government has had the business of mines like up the problem and after much study it finds that the best remedy lies in continued attention and cooperation whereby the petroleum and steamship interests are expected to give their assistance in curing the trouble.

Being refuse material mixed with water there is no use for it. Whether it will be possible to develop some method of utilizing it if it should be discharged at some central point at a port remains to be seen. Certainly there is need of curbing the practice because of the harm that is done. It seems likely that the steamships would be put to some inconvenience in thus disposing of refuse but on the other hand they can hardly insist that they have a right to inflict injury upon others by ridding themselves of something they do not want and cannot use. Time may yet develop some use for the refuse that will overcome any expense of discharging it at certain stations or of collecting it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Remember Monday is town election day. You have a duty to perform.

The man on the corner says: Don't forget to turn your clocks back tonight.

Germany needn't be surprised if it takes time to convince France that its change of heart is actually so.

Give consideration to the town election before it gets here on October first and avoid regrets afterwards.

La Follette says he is bringing home the truth about the soviet government. Probably all dolled up in red paper.

Getting back to standard time will be like returning home from one of those very delightful vacations. It's necessary but you hate to do it.

From Albania comes a report indicating that the Greeks were innocent of the murders charged by Italy. It would not be a surprising development.

A contest has been started in Boston to determine the ten greatest women of that city. Anyone entering such a contest would have courage enough to judge a baby show.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Is it really a fact, or are we getting hold of evidence quicker and better when we say that cases of driving automobiles under the influence of liquor are on the increase? We would very much like to believe that it was not so, but, we cannot discredit what seems to be a painful fact. But why is this danger increasing? The automobile is better understood and better handled every day. More people are driving cars than ever before, and examinations for getting a driver's license are growing harder right along. It may be that greater familiarity in operating a machine is making men careless of their fitness. The main reason probably is that greater boldness in selling "booze" illegally has brought much more of it into general use and men feel that they can use it with safety because running a machine has become second nature to them. However this may be there is but one way to deal with it if the public is to be safeguarded. Make the penalty so stiff that no man for a moment would think of being a second offender.

At present France seems to be the center of the world's political gaze. Her Ruhr policy does not receive a consensus of agreement in Europe, although it is generally conceded that she has a just claim to reparation for her damages. But just at present many diplomatists are looking askance at her colonial policy. In her African possessions she is putting the latest modern firearms into the hitherto untrained hands of ignorant savages. In this colonial army of black men 100,000 are being trained for military service. Some far-seeing statesmen are looking at this policy with some degree of alarm, and with a good deal of reason. It is perfectly natural for men to be used in the business they are trained for. A great standing army hardly makes for peace and especially one made up of uncivilized barbarians. But is there not another and possibly greater menace to civilization? What may happen to civilization when these savages come to a realization of their military strength? What happened to Rome when their apt pupils, the Visegoths, swooped down into Italy under the able Alaric?

In a somewhat opposite direction is the British attitude toward the difficult race problem. The logical trend of the French action is toward an equality of the races in military affairs. But what will be the outlook when the sleeping millions of Africa wake up to the fact, that they, too, are militarists? When China, the so-called sleeping giant of 400,000,000 souls, wakes up and finds that she may be a great military people—what then? Now Britain is more inclined to work for the supremacy of the white race along military lines. Taken as a whole the white race with its thus far superior advantages, is better fitted for supremacy than any other race. For the most part Great Britain has been humane in its colonial policy and that explains its success. Power has been given to the colonies as they have been able to exercise it. This same policy has been followed by our own government in its treatment of Cuba and the Philippines. The white man's home is ought to [illegible] good common ability in Christianizing rather than exterminating the other so-called inferior races.

Let us, for a moment, enter another and far more agreeable world—one that [illegible] physical senses. [illegible] Within [illegible] Connecticut [illegible] the [illegible] no [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO TRANSPORTING LIQUOR

Marion Ponte of Stonington was put to plea in the superior court here late Friday afternoon before Judge Allyn L. Brown on the charge of illegal transportation of liquor in a boat at Stonington on Sept. 8.

Ponte was without counsel present and Judge Brown directed that a plea of not guilty be entered for him. Bonds were placed at $3,500 in default of which Ponte went to jail. He was brought to court Friday morning by Deputy Sheriff W. H. Casey on a bench warrant.

He is held as an accomplice with four Westerley Italians arrested about ten days ago who are awaiting trial. The latter are supposed to have taken the liquor which was seized in their possession from a boat owned by Ponte.

Patents to Stonington Man.

In the list of patents issued by the United States patent office to citizens of Connecticut, as contained in the Official Gazette, dated Tuesday, Sept. 18, was one issued to Howard M. Barber of Stonington on a machine for cutting and feeding sheets of different length from acontinuous web.

MOHEGAN INDIANS INVITED TO MANCHESTER ANNIVERSARY

It is probable that Lemuel Fielding and a party of Mohegan Indians will visit the big Indian encampment at the Centennial celebration at Manchester the latter part of next week. The committee in charge of the celebration have extended an invitation to the Mohegan Indians to attend the celebration Thursday, Friday and Saturday and automobiles will be sent to Mohegan from Manchester to transport the Mohegans to that town.

Hundreds of automobile parties from New London, Tolland and Windham counties will visit the encampment and a number of Norwich people are planning to make the trip.

The band of Paesmaquoddy Indians, who are to camp on the Centennial Midway grounds and give daily exhibitions all next week, arrived in Manchester Thursday afternoon from Maine. There was a good crowd at the station to meet them and in all Chief William Neptune had thirty-two with him, ranging in age from 84 years to 14 months. With the chief is his grandmother, who is eighty-four years old, his wife and three princesses. They are designated from the rest of the tribe by the blue band worn around their head. They were taken to the grounds in automobiles and soon had army tents pitched on platforms that had been built for them.

The Indians are to be one of the leading features of the celebration. They are accompanied by their own band and bring into Connecticut genuine Indian wigwams of birch bark, also tepees, tents, birch bark canoes and all the accoutrements necessary for typical Indian life in an Indian village. They will wear blankets, war paint, baubles dear to the Indian's simple heart; they will cook their fish and prepare their meals after their native outdoor manner; they will have birch bark canoe races on the lake each day and will give daily demonstrations of Indian music with all its melody and plaintive weirdness, with an occasional war whoop for good measure.

While the coming of the Indians will be a notable feature of Manchester's Centennial celebration the Indian encampment will be but one of several remarkable interesting features. Twenty-one committee comprising one hundred ninety-two workers have been much of the time during the past four months on arrangements for the coming centennial Manchester which consists of 20,000 people, is the leading silk center of New England and the whole town is back of the coming Centennial heart and soul.

It is probable that the Indians will be extended an invitation to visit the home of Uncas at Mohegan before returning to their reservation in Maine.

D. A. R. MUSEUM IS CONCLUDING FOURTH YEAR

Today the Museum of Antiques, on the Norwich Town Green, in charge of Faith Trumbull Chapter, Inc., Daughters of the American Revolution, concludes its fourth year.

In this little museum the public of Norwich can find much of interest and profit. This season, especially, has seen many very interesting and valuable gifts and loans.

It would be most gratifying to the committee in charge of the people of the town would remember that here is a place where relics of old Norwich families can be safely cared for and also be displayed to serve as a link between the present and the past.

While started by Faith Trumbull Chapter, D. A. R., it has been the hope that the idea of preserving to Norwich articles of local interest would appeal to the entire community. The educational and historic value of such a place in a town where so much history has been made, cannot be overestimated.

The little old silversmith shop on the green is serving as the nucleus of what, with public support, should develop into a museum which would compare in interest with the Shaw Mansion in New London, or the many other historic collections throughout the New England states.

Under the advice of Harry W. Kent of the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts, the committee is planning to rearrange and classify the exhibits, in the immediate future.

TELLS BAPTIST MEN NEED IS FOR CHRISTIAN VIEW OF INDUSTRY

About ninety members of the City Bible Class for Men gathered at Bushnell chapel, Central Baptist church, Friday evening for a get-together supper, followed by an interesting address by Rev. Samuel Zane Batten, D. D., head of the department of social service of the Baptist denomination. Members of four of the young mens classes of the Sunday school were present as guests of the men. The supper was served at 6.15 o'clock with the following menu, the women of the church being in charge:

Cold Boiled Ham. Tongue.
Escalloped Potatoes.
Rolls. Pickles.
Coffee.
Ice Cream. Cake.

The meeting was called to order by President Shepard B. Palmer and Hugh Kinder entertained with two excellently rendered vocal selections. Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, instructor of the class, spoke briefly on the new lesson book which has been adopted for the next three months. Dr. Pitt announced with regret that Hon. Henry Bond of Brattleboro, Vt., who was to have been one of the speakers, was unable to be present. Rev. Dr. Pitt introduced Rev. Dr. Batten, who gave a very interesting address on the church, its aim, and Christianity as applied to everyday life.

I congratulate the pastor because he has such a fine group of men, said the speaker in his opening remarks. Then I congratulate you men that you have such a fine pastor and leader. Rev. Dr. Batten said there are a good many signs of progress in the world today, despite indications to the contrary. One sign lies in the fact that the men of our churches are realizing that Christianity is a real religion and that men have a real responsibility in the church. The men are waking up. Men, we ought to know something about the great book God has given us and about some of the principles of Christianity and how to apply them. Every man who calls himself a Christian ought to be in a class such as this, that makes a study of these things.

If you want men, you can get them. But you must do a great deal more than bewail the fact that you have no men. Men can get men if they go after them. Just make up your minds you are going to do it. When we have our men, what are we going to do with them? You are studying the Bible for principles, ideals and inspirations. You can have Christianity with churches and Christian homes, but you can't have Christianity with churches and pagan homes. What can we do to promote the kingdom of God through the family? One of the wisest bits of knowledge a young man or young woman can have is how to fall in love intelligently.

Industry is the divine means by which God gives us our daily bread. What we need is a Christian view of industry. If 100 men left this church with a pretty thorough understanding of the Golden Rule and were determined to apply it to their business, there would be some radical changes in the city before the day was out. If they kept it up a week, I warrant The Associated Press would be carrying despatches telling that something had happened in Norwich.

The man who says that labor trouble is caused by a lot of agitators is blind. The labor man who blames the capitalist and manufacturer for labor troubles hasn't any eyes at all. He is the kind of man who has to keep his hat on tight when woodpeckers are around.

The business of the church is to bring together people who have differences of opinion. If we can't talk over our troubles without getting mad and calling each other names, then there is something wrong with our religion.

Bent's office. They brought cars and the procession started for Sheepshead Bay under the escort of two motorcycle policemen whome Mr. Bent had detailed to get the party to its destination without a stop and most of the members declared it was the fastest time they had ever made in a machine through New York city. The cars were decorated with flags and with the motorcycle police escort created a lot of interest along the route. At Villipigne's one of his old fashioned shore dinners was served and the Norwich Society members all thought the dinner the best shore dinner served outside of Connecticut.

After the dinner President William B. # GIANTS WIN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE PENNANT FOR THIRD CONSECUTIVE YEAR

New York, Sept. 28.—(By the A. P.)—The New York Giants today clinched the 1923 National league pennant by defeating Brooklyn 3 to 0 and will oppose the New York Yankees, American league pennant winners, for the third successive season in the world's series which will start at the Yankee stadium October 10.

The victory increased the Giants lead over their nearest rival, Cincinnati to four and a half games. Thus the champions would finish at the top by a half game, even if they lost all of their remaining four games while the Reds were victorious in all of their remaining four. In such an eventuality, the final standing would be:

|---|---|---|
| Giants | 94 | 59 |
| Reds | 94 | 60 |

By capturing the 1923 flag, the Giants scored their eleventh victory in National league history, thus tying the record of the Chicago Cubs. Nine of these pennant triumphs have been gained under the indomitable leadership of John Joseph McGraw, "Little Napoleon" of the diamond, who leads all other managers in this respect. His nearest rival is Connie Mack, tall tutor of the Philadelphia Athletics, who has six to his credit.

McGraw holds the additional distinction of having twice in his career won three pennants in a row. A feat no other manager has ever performed. The Giant chieftain piloted his club to victories in 1911, 1912 and 1913. The Chicago Nationals twice captured three flags in a row, but two managers shared in the honors, the late "Pop" Anson leading the club to the top in 1880, 1881, 1882, while Frank Chance piloted the Cubs to championships in 1906, 1907 and 1908.

Besides his triumphs of the past three seasons, McGraw also accounted for pennants in 1904, 1905 and 1917. The other New York pennants were won in 1888 and 1889.

McGraw's goal now is to establish a record of winning three consecutive world's championships. His club conquered its Metropolitan rival in 1921 and 1922.

The Giants won the pennant this year only after one of the hardest fought campaigns in annals of the senior circuit. Except for a brief spurt by the Brooklyn Dodgers early in the season, the world's champions met their stiffest opposition from three western clubs, with Cincinnati and Pittsburgh forming the chief menace to their supremacy.

The real turning point in the race came in the crucial mid-summer western trip of the Giants, who played at the top of their game to defeat Pittsburgh in the opening series and then take five straight from the Reds. These victories gave the McGrawmen a formidable advantage but they were forced to stand off further challenges. The Reds, despite their crushing setbacks, rallied and crept close to the top by taking a later series from the Giants at the Polo Grounds. Virtually all further chance for the Reds vanished, however, when these two rivals broke even in a two-game series at Cincinnati early this week.

One game in the Giant schedule will be unplayed, a contest with St. Louis, scheduled earlier in the season, having been cancelled.

GIANTS WIN PENNANT, SEAT BROOKLYN, 3 TO 0

New York, Sept. 28.—The New York Giants clinched the 1923 National League championship here today, defeating Brooklyn, 3 to 0. Nehf, the New York lefthander, pitched his first shut out of the season. He was aided by three double plays and two Brooklyn players being caught napping on the bases. The Giants stopped Grimes after he had won six straight games. ### ACADEMY OPENS SEASON TODAY AGAINST KILLINGLY

After a long session of signal practice yesterday the Academy eleven is ready to open its season today against Killingly at Killingly. It looks are to be counted on the local institution promiseos to have a football team this fall far superior to those of the last year or two.

The line appears to be a little better than medium in weight, while the backfield, although light, makes up for its lack of weight in fast play.

The MacNamara brothers, Paul and Phil, will do the punting and as both have been doing between 35 and 40 yards they will at least be able to hold their own with their rivals.

The following will be the probable lineup:

Hollander re, Paul MacNamara rt, Ely rg, Haslam c, Steinman lg, Palisceba lt, McGowan le, Covey qb, Kilroy rh, Capt. Phil MacNamara lh, Hinricks fb.

Although little is known of the Killingly aggregation local fans can be sure that their team will do its utmost to bring home the bacon. They have the do-or-die spirit and this is sure to count, especially in a close game.

Sept. 29, Killingly at Killingly. Oct. 6, Stonington at Norwich. 13, Westerly at Westerly. 20, Vocational at New London. 24, Windham at Norwich. 27, Stonington at Stonington. Nov. 2, Westerly at Norwich. 10, Bulkely at New London. 17, Windham at Willimantic. 24, Vocational at Norwich. 29, Alumni at Norwich.

BOTH SIDES READY FOR FIGHT FOR FIRST NORWICH-TAFTVILLE GAME

Norwich and Taftville fans are on edge today awaiting the first clash between teams representing the two places which takes place Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Norwich Fairgrounds.

Both managers have gone to great expense in securing players to represent their clubs and as both have been claiming the victorious teams the outcome of the battle of words will be watched with interest by the hundreds of friends of both men.

Taftville scored a feature when Manager Troland jumped into the fray and signed the entire Worcester Eastern League team to play for Taftville, thus securing one of the best teams in the league, a team on which Stryker is pitching. This able pitcher needs to bow to no other pitcher in the league and Manager Troland claims he is the best pitcher of the Eastern League. In back of Stryker will be that bunch of players who sent Worcester into third place in the league fight only recently ended. Many of these men are heavy hitters, especially Bagwell in left field who leads the league hitters with an average of .503 for the series. Other hitters over the .300 mark that will fight for Taftville Sunday are Lefler, .389; Reis, .307; and Shay, .339.

Against this formidable team Manager O'Leary was forced to go out after a powerful team to uphold the reputation of Norwich, who has never yet lost a series to Taftville. The strongest battery in the Eastern League was secured when Canavan and Redman of Hartford, league championship team, were signed to fight against Taftville. Canavan occupied the first place among Eastern League pitchers with his record of .750 and is rated one of the best in the league. In back of him will be a bunch of players and hitters, many of them hitting above .350 for the past season.

Rivalry is keen and as a large crowd is expected arrangements have been made to accommodate them and both gates at the fairgrounds will be open Sunday afternoon. Vehicles, however, must go into the grounds through the main gate. Umpires will be Stafford behind the bat, Corcoran on bases.

DEFOE STOPPED CORBIEY IN 6TH AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, Sept. 28.—Over 1,000 men crowded into the town hall Friday evening for a series of boxing exhibitions were splendidly entertained by Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion of the world, and his sparring partner in a sparring exhibition and by the other bouts scheduled on the card. The collapse of a section of bleachers in which more than a score of persons were injured just before the opening of the evening program delayed the show somewhat, but after the excitement the entire bill of the evening was staged as originally planned.

In the star bout of the evening Billy DeFoe of Providence stopped Tommy Corbley of Gloucester, Mass., in the sixth round of an event that was scheduled to go twelve. The men were in the lightweight division. It was a flashing go from the start but DeFoe won when the referee stopped the bout to save Corbley from a knockout.

The semi-final went the limit of eight rounds, Young Eddy of Providence winning the decision over Frankie Johnson of Boston. This was a very closely contested match. In an event scheduled to go six rounds Joe Busch of Norwich put away Billy Johnson of Lynn after one round of whirlwind fighting. These men fought at 175 pounds.

MOOSUP-STERLING SERIES GAME AT MOOSUP SUNDAY

Moosup, Sept. 28.—The fourth game of the Moosup-Sterling series will be played Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Carpet Grounds in Moosup, both teams out to win as Moosup has won two games and Sterling one game.

Sterling is bringing down a fast team for Sunday and Moosup is taking no chances and has built up her team. The Sterling team will comprise such men as "Al" Perriotte, formerly of the Boston Braves, who will be on the mound, with Carrigan of the Boston Twilight League receiving. Couillard of Riverview on first, but the rest of the lineup is kept dark by Sterling, it being rumored that big leaguers have been secured, with "Bud" Feld of Providence college at short, and Pettinger, formerly of the Boston Red Sox in left field.

Manager Loughran of Moosup is keeping his battery dark for the game Sunday but it will be one out to beat the best Sterling has produced, as it is the first time Loughran has refused to announce his battery before the game. The rest of the team will comprise Frechette of Moosup, 1b, Phillips of Boston college 2b, Kendricks of Warren, Mass., ss, Finnigan of Boston University 3b, Commerford of Boston college, lf, McCarthy of Hartford cf and Halligan of Boston University rf. Bentley of Blackstone, Mass., utility.

As this series is bitter and both towns are out to win arrangements are being made to accommodate the largest crowd ever at a game at the Carpet grounds.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Fairies Busily at Work.

The next morning after the visit to the little white house on the hill where the new baby had come to stay, the Fairy Queen said to Little Jack Rabbit:

"Would you like to see the fairies work?" and calling a little workman fairy she told him to show the bunny boy what a busy place Fairyland is.

"Oh, there's lots to do," explained the workman fairy removing his cap to wipe his forehead with a piece of spider-web. "I have to sheer the wool of the young peaches and spin it into winter cloaks for delicate fairies. I don't know what would become of us with another such winter as the last and a short peach crop. Then, I must turn the grapes and the plums so that the sun will ripen them and see that my workmen keep the apples polished, besides superintending the Cobweb company upon which all Fairy Land depends for hosiery. You have no idea what a bother these spider spinners are. Sometimes they go on a strike and won't work.

Then, too, I have charge of the palace music. Sometimes a katydid won't sing and pretends she has a cold from sleeping on a damp dahlia and I must get Dr. Bee to prescribe red-clover honey for her sore throat.

Or, if Madame Katydid doesn't happen to have a cold, maybe Signor Bullfrog who sings bass gets balky and wants more salary and then I must catch flies for his supper before he will open his mouth. Dear me! You've no idea what troubles I have!" and the little workman fairy scratched his beard and looked quite sad.

"Would you care to see the pixies polishing their lamps?" asked the fairy workman, feeling more cheerful at the bunny boy swords.

"I want to see everything in Fairy Land," answered Little Jack Rabbit and so would I if I had been there, and so would you, I'm sure.

"There they are busy now, trimming and filling them," said the fairy workman, pointing to a crevice in the rock.

Peeping in, the bunny boy saw hundreds of little folk at work on their tiny bronze lamps, trimming the cobweb wicks and filling the bowls with liquid sheet lightning and while they worked they laughed and sang and were in great glee over the pranks which they were to play when night came down over the earth.

When Little Jack Rabbit grew tired of watching these funny little folk, the workmen fairy pointed to the meadow where hundreds of fairies were caring for the wild flowers, stretching the roots out, downwards and sideways through the earth, away from the hot sun.

"Gracious me!" exclaimed the bunny boy, "what busy people fairies are!" And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

FIVE DIVORCE CASES HEARD IN SUPERIOR COURT AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 28.—In the superior court in New London this morning, Judge Isaac Wolfe granted Ina B. K. Lincoln of Middletown, a divorce from Howard N. Lincoln, also of Middletown, on the grounds of infidelity. The divorce action was heard before State Referee Gardiner Greene of Norwich, in New London, a fortnight ago and the decision of Judge Wolfe was based upon the referee's finding.

Ralph O. Bump of New London was granted a divorce from Alva Weeks Bump of New Haven on the ground of infidelity, between Jan. 1, 1920, and May 8, 1923. Bump was also granted the custody of their two children, Ralph O., aged 4, and Russell A., aged 3. The couple were married Sept. 19, 1917.

Maty M. Alves of Norwich, was granted a decree from Joseph Alves, of parts unknown, on the grounds of desertion. The couple were wedded Aug. 2, 1914, and the desertion took place in February, 1920.

Lillie M. Nelson, of Waterford, was granted a divorce from Nicholas John Nicholson of Groton, on the grounds of cruelty and was permitted to resume her maiden name, Lillie Margaret Gohl. The couple were married April 24, 1922, and cruelty was alleged from the date of the marriage.

Judge Wolfe also heard testimony in the divorce action of Elvenia M. Kelsey, against Howard W. Kelsey, both of Montville. The complaint alleged cruelty. The couple were married July 6, 1922, and the cruelty is alleged to have started Sept. 1, following. Judge Wolfe announced that the decree would be entered when the sheriff who served the process had signed its return.

Former City Manager James E. Barlow is to keep his promise to remain in New London, at least temporarily, for it became known today that Mr. Barlow is to be associated with ex-Mayor and Councilor Lucius E. Whiton, head of the Whiton Machine company on Howard street. Councilor Whiton stated this morning that the former city manager will be general manager and efficiency expert, although the position will be an experimental one, as Mr. Barlow has never had any experience in the line of machinery manufacture. Mr. Barlow is absent from the city on a vacation, but will return to New London the middle of October when he will assume his new duties.

Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin has caused Harvey J. Hooper, chief engineer of the fishing steamer Herbert N. Edwards, now at Promised Land, to appear before him and relate what he knows in connection with the fight between members of the crew of the Edwards and the resultant death by drowning of one of the fighters, Harry Olsen, a fireman, yesterday morning, while the Edwards was moored at the lumber wharf of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company. It is expected that Hooper will tell his story to Prosecutor Cronin tomorrow or Monday.

Yesterday morning about 2.30 o'clock and but a short time after the drowning of Olsen was revealed, Hooper, accompanied by Capt. Ewrence Brown, master of the Edwards, appeared at the police station and declared all that he knew of the fatality was that the fighters aroused him from his bunk as they battled upon the deck, but that he did not leave his cabin until he heard a splash in the water. Then with an extension light, which he lowered over the side of the boat, he endeavored to learn the position of Olsen, but he saw nothing of the missing man, it being presumed that Olsen had sunk before Hooper reached the side of the craft.

Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond this morning visited Lawrence hospital where another of the Edwards' firemen, Emil Strom, is under treatment; he was the opponent of Olsen in the fight. Strom declared that he, together with Olsen and Edward Helstrom, a third fireman, were ashore for several hours Wednesday night, returning to the craft about 1 o'clock and they had a quantity of whiskey. He alleges that Olsen attacked him on the craft and that the latter fell to the deck, sustaining a gash on the back of the head and a few minutes afterwards staggered to the side of the steamer and fell over into the river. Strom corroborated in part the story told by Helstrom immediately after the drowning to the effect that Helstrom, who is held a prisoner at the New London county jail on a technical charge of breach of the peace, had nothing to do with the fight. Helstrom asserts that he tried to subdue the fighters and that while he was aboard another fishing steamer, tied up alongside the Edwards, for assistance, that Olsen was drowned, for Helstrom declares that Olsen was nowhere to be seen when he again boarded his steamer, although he heard a sound in the water.

Helstrom will be given a hearing in the police court Monday morning. Strom is suffering from a fractured right foreleg sustained when he leaped into the hold of the Edwards as he was being taken from the steamer to go to the police station.

The musicians and stage hands of the Lyceum, Capitol and Crown theatres are seeking a new wage and working schedule. Manager Walter T. Murphy, of the three theatres, has taken up the question with the American Federation of Musicians. A state delegate from the organization, it is expected, will come to New London next week to confer with Manager Murphy. The latter has not refused to grant the increase, but has requested the union to defer action until March 1st. The musicians demand an increase of $3 per week at the Capitol theatre, with a $15 per week increase for the leader. They set the minimum number of musicians to be employed at the Capitol theatre, where vaudeville is produced, at seven, but they do not set a minimum number for the Crown theatre. The musicians demand 15 minutes after the afternoon performance at the Capitol, and an intermission of 30 minutes between the evening performances, while the motion pictures are being shown at the end of each performance, during which time the orchestras have always played. The increase of wages sought by the Capitol theatre stage hands is $5 per week. The scale calls for a six-day week and, if granted, it means that the theatres will have to employ extra help for all Sunday performances, but it is believed that the present musicians would be ready to accept the seventh night's work because of the extra pay they would receive.

Miss Gertrude H. Dunham, instructor in German in Ripon, Wis., college, has returned to her duties after having spent the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dunham.

Lloyd Armstrong has returned to his studies at the Berkshire school, having spent the summer vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Armstrong.

Capt. Ezra Daboll, master of the New London line steamer, New Hampshire, with Mrs. Daboll, has returned, having spent a fortnight with Capt. Daboll's sister in North End Harbor, Maine.

In the police court today, William Butler, a New York chauffeur, found operating a car in New London without having taken out a Connecticut registration, had the excuse that he had sent for the necessary papers for him to run a car in this state, but had not received them. That brought him a fine of $3, which he paid.

Herbert Bombard, stationed at the submarine base, operated his car so fast at the corner of Bank street and Montauk avenue that the vehicle was upset and damaged considerably. Bombard admitted that he was going pretty fast, but said his tires caught in the tracks of the street railway. He was fined $10.

Paul S. Hammond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hammond of Stonington, and Miss Florence D. Perkins, daughter of Mrs. Isabel Cheney, 271 Crystal avenue, were married this evening at 8 o'clock, by Rev. W. S. Green. Ralph Perkins, brother of the bride, was best man and Mrs. Marion Batting was matron of honor. Mr. Hammond is a clerk in the office of the New Haven railroad at Midway. His bride was until recently night telephone operator for the Southern New England Telephone company.

James Hoecvar and Charles Grandy, seaman on the U. S. S. Camden, were arrested Wednesday night by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock and Patrolman George Labous, following complaint by John Cooper, 14 Federal street, that the sailors had broken windows of her home with stones. The sailors were turned over to the military authorities. Today the chief executive officer at the submarine base, informed the police that Hoecvar and Grandy had been transferred to the submarine base and that disciplinary measures would be taken by the military authorities.

NEW SYSTEM OF FAT REDUCTION

Here's a new way for all fat people to laugh together at at that old bugaboo —Obesity. The saying that "there is nothing new under the sun" does not now apply to fat people any more. Here is something new for them—a new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slimness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription: that harmless combination of fat-defying elements perfected by one of the foremost physicians. Now, from the same high authority, there comes another idea—the idea of condensing these same, safe, harmless ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating and at bedtime, they help the stomach to dispose of all the fatty foods, converting them into compact, solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system—do for you what bodily exertion, self-denial and absurd greases and salves cannot do, and the fat, once routed, is gone for good. You can prove all this at a trifling cost. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent postpaid by the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. A case—sufficient to bring results—is but one dollar.

Twenty Years Ago.

I've wander'd to the village, Tom, I've sat beneath the tree,
Upon the schoolhouse playground, which shelter'd you and me;
But none were there to greet me, Tom, and few were left to know,
That play'd with us upon the green some twenty years ago.

The grass is just as green, Tom—barefooted boys at play
Were sporting just as we were then, with spirits just as gay;
But the "master" sleeps beneath the hill which, coated o'er with snow,
Afforded us a sliding-place, just twenty years ago.

The old schoolhouse is alter'd some, the benches are replaced
By new ones very like the same our penknives had defaced;
But the same old bricks are in the wall, the bell swings to and fro,
Its music just the same, dear Tom, 'twas twenty years ago.

The boys were playing the same old game beneath the same old tree—
I do forget the name just now; you've play'd it oft with me
On that same spot; 'twas play'd with knives, by throwing so and so,
The loser had a task to do, there, just twenty years ago.

The river's running just as still, the willows on its side
Are larger than they were, Tom, the stream appears less wide;
But the grapevine swing is ruin'd now where once we play'd the beau,
And swung our sweethearts—"pretty girls"—just twenty years ago.

The spring that bubbled 'neath the hill, close by the spreading beech,
Is very low—'twas once so high that we could almost reach;
And kneeling down to get a drink, dear Tom, I even started so!
To see how much that I am changed since twenty years ago.

Near by the spring, upon an elm, you know I cut your name,
Your sweetheart's just beneath it, Tom, and you did mine the same—
Some heartless wretch had peeled the bark, 'twas dying sure but slow,
Just as the one whose name was cut died twenty years ago.

My lids have long been dry, Tom, but tears came in my eyes,
I thought of her I loved so well—those early broken ties—
I visited the old churchyard, and took some flowers to strew
Upon the graves of those we loved, some twenty years ago.

Some are in the churchyard laid, some sleep beneath the sea,
But few are left of our old class, excepting you and me,
And when our time is come, Tom, and we are called to go,
I hope they'll lay us where we play'd, just twenty years ago.

The Night Cometh.

Sometime a day shall dawn for thee
In which thine eyes no change may see;
The sun will shine, with wonted grace,
On every dear, familiar place;
No cloud will veil its skies with gloom,
Yet it shall be thy day of doom.

Thy life web shall unfinished stand
Where falls the shuttle from thy hand;
No loving deed can add its gold,
No kindly word, in silver told,
May broider its design for thee—
Once stopped, the loom shall idle be

Then, since each morn may bring the day
When unseen hands thy work shall stay,
Let every act and word of thine
Fulfil the harmonious design;
Weave life's strange web with watchful care—
Each thread may be the last one there.

—Ninette M. Lowater.

SAVING FOR CHRISTMAS.

Dear Editor and Sisters: I want to tell you of my easy method of saving for Christmas this year. I commenced in June to save the pennies that were given me in change. As soon as even one was given me I put it in a tin box. Sometimes there were six or seven, and one day I had 19 pennies. No matter how much I needed them to make the right change I never let them go. I always broke a larger piece of money to pay with and of course that meant more pennies. It does not sound possible that you can save much, until you try it. Now here is the value of it: We all experience the same difficulty. When there is a sale we cannot spare the money for something that we know we would like to give at Christmas time. Now this year I have been able to pick up some fine gifts at half the cost they will be later on. When I see a sale advertised I go to my box. Sometimes there is only $1.50, but more times there are three and four dollars in it. I take it with me and my list of names I have for Christmas. Then I go and see if there is a gift I can get that they will like. Now I do not buy just any old thing just because it is cheap, but try to get something I know they will really like. I have a new baby on my list this year and I was able to get her a sterling silver spoon for a good deal less than I ever bought one before; just because there was a good sale and my boy had plenty of pennies in it. I just put the gifts away as they come from the store, with the owner's name on them and then the week before Christmas I have such a good time doing them up in their pretty paper and ribbons. Hope some of the sisters will try it even now and see how much they can do. Luella is trying it and she is making it work out nicely.

Yours for the Corner.

CADY.

BRIGHTNESS AND CHEERFULNESS OF NATURE.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: The bright tinted leaves of scarlet and gold that are scattered along the paths remind one that autumn is here. October is bright and cheery for the air is filled with the sweet, spicy incense of the different fruits and the wind blows the sweet perfume everywhere.

Looking at nature we can but feel the influence of brightness and cheerfulness. Let us put in a reserve stock so when the trying days beset us and things go wrong and everyone around us seems affected by nerves or feel that they have been wronged in some way, we will realize that ill will and a desire to retaliate come from a mistaken viewpoint and overcome it with our reserved stock of good will and kindness. If we do this we will oftentimes find that we were a little in fault ourselves, for we can, by searching often find faults in ourselves that we see plainly in others. Try always to see the good in the people who try us. Apply the Golden Rule, be cheerful and bright and do not form the habit of looking on the dark side and expecting all kinds of bad luck. Make the best of what is, hoping and expecting that the future will hold something brighter and better for us, but if as sometimes troubles and perplexities almost swamp us by one following another without cessation, let us still press on and find comfort in knowing that we only have to live one day at a time. Tomorrows never come, the present is the Todays and "as our days so shall our strength me," so let us press on and ere we know it, the clouds will lift and we will see rays of brightness ahead.

I presume you sisters are busy pickling and preserving, but take a few minutes off to write the Corner. Tell us what you are doing and how you are doing it.

It is nearly time to close the outdoor picnics and you will soon be meeting in the different halls. Either way you cannot help but enjoy yourselves those days out of each month and for it be better able to cope with the daily duties.

To the sick and invalids I send my best wishes and think of you all often.

Best wishes.

DIANA.

SOME GOOD RECIPES.

Dear Corner Members: Favorites with the rest of the family are apt to please others. Here is one that never fails to make a hit.

Cocoanut Cakes: One and one-half cups flour (self-rising), one and one-half cups dried cocoanut, two small eggs, one-half cup sugar, one-half teaspoon essence of almond, two ounces butter. Mix dry ingredients, rub in butter, then add essence and well beaten eggs. This makes a stiff mixture. Break off small pieces, roll into balls size of walnut, roll in granulated sugar, place in pan leaving a good space between each. Bake in rather hot oven. I use pastry flour and generous teaspoon baking powder.

Gold Molasses Pound Cake: Two-thirds cup butter, three-fourths cup sugar, two eggs, two-thirds cup milk, two-thirds cup molasses, two and one-third cups flour, three-fourths teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon allspice, one-fourth teaspoon cloves, one-fourth teaspoon mace, one-half cup seeded raisins, cut into pieces, one-half cup citron thinly sliced and cut in strips. Cream the butter, add sugar gradually, eggs well beaten, milk, molasses and mix. Sift the flour with soda and spices and add to the first mixture, then add fruit. Bake in small buttered tins from 25 to 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Makes 24 little cakes.

For Catsup try one-half bushel of tomatoes (peeled), one quart of cider vinegar, six tablespoons of salt, three hot red peppers, 12 onions, six teaspoons of all-spices, two teaspoons of cloves, three cups of sugar. Boil all this together three hours, then put through sieve and bottle hot.

Yours for the Corner.

LACK OF LETTERS CAUSING INQUIRIES.

Editor and Corner Sisters: Not having a chance for some time to have a chat with you and seeing the big advertisements on our Corner page last week, of the Hudson Super Six, I thought that we sisters had better get busy and do our bit in filling up our page or they will be trying to sell some of the Corner sisters a car, or like some of the auto drivers, they will crowd us off from the page as many do on the road when they pass.

Aunty No. 1: I was very disappointed in not being with you all at your picnic, also at the others which have been held at different places, and will also say that it was impossible for me to have one at my house this summer. And now the season for out door picnics is near the end and soon they will be held at the halls, where I hope we will all be able to meet each other often and have our good gatherings as in the past.

I suppose you sisters are nearly through canning and pickling for this fall. If there is any who has a quantity of small onions to pickle and dreads the job of peeling them if you put them in boiling water and let stand in it for a few minutes then the skins will peel easily. Another thing I have just learned and perhaps some of the others have never heard of it. When taking grease or spots out of clothing with gasoline, put a little salt into it and it won't leave a dark circle around the spots.

Now as the vacation season and the summer rush of work are nearly over let us all join in and see if we can't have more letters on the Corner page in the weeks to come. Don't let our editor get discouraged and have to fill out the page with advs. One lady said to me the other day, "What is the matter with the Corner sisters now days; why don't they write and fill the page as it used to be? Where are all the old writers?" You see they would like to have all take care and not lose their pen names. Glad to see so many new writers joining the Corner with us. Long may the Corner live, and with best wishes to all sisters, I will close for now.

C. E. S.

WOULD LIKE TO SEE MORE LETTERS.

Dear Corner Sisters: I am thinking the editor will take the Saturday page away from us if we don't write more.

A friend said once that she thought it was better to say something if it was not quite so cunning than not to say anything.

We hear the sisters say if I could write as nice a letter as this one or that one, I would be glad to write. You don't know how well you can do until you try.

Aunty No. 1: Your picnic was the best yet. I did have a nice auto trip but thought I was coming back that way.

Pepper Hash: If any one would like to make pepper hash here it is: Twelve large onions, 12 red peppers, 12 green peppers; chop fine, pour boiling water over it and let stand five minutes; drain off all water and boil together, vinegar, 2½ pints, sugar two cups, salt four tablespoons. Let all come to a boil and can.

Yours for the Corner.

WILD FLOWER.

DOING OUR WORK.

Dear Corner Sisters: I've begun to think that if I do not write soon there'll be no Corner to write to. Where are all those who boast of being Corner members? The Corner is just like an interesting story that is continued. I can hardly wait for the next number to come.

Drudgery is, or should be, a thing of the past. How many of us think of our systems, being like any machinery? Attention must be paid to both. One will say, "Oh! I couldn't let the work go for pleasure." Rest if it is only ten minutes. Can you converse on the topics of the day? No. Why? You work, work, and that's all. I try to keep up the house each day. Do the most essential first; others at leisure.

Take time to sit by the window; watch the children run with their childish games; think of when you were young. After your thoughts are of the brighter things, you are not so tired. Go in the back yard or at the window and watch the antics of the little birds. Watch the formation of the clouds; the beautiful things they form; unknown to some. How many have a flower sitting here and there to brighten the home. Make the home so the children or husband will feel free to come and go. Many a pleasant home keeps the husband or children away from bad company. Don't think of what might be and worry. Take things as they come, for your life is as you make it.

DORIS.

A WONDERFUL DAY.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: On September 20th, was celebrating my birthday which came on Sept. 12th, but owing to Aunty No. 1 having a picnic on my birthday, the date was set for one week later. It was surely a day of surprises for me, a wonderful day, a wonderful hostess and an ideal place for a picnic. And I must not forget to mention the lovely chowder. There was a birthday cake with 75 candles made by my daughter, G. A. C., ice cream and pies, salads, cake, and other good things to eat. I received 56 birthday cards, several gifts, some of them from the Social Corner sisters, a gift of money, from the society, and I am trying to think what I shall buy with the $4.08 in remembrance of the day. I want to thank all for the lovely shower of cards and gifts. It was a day I shall never forget if I live to be 100 years young. It was one of the happiest days of my life. Please remember I am in my second childhood.

I think there were 55 present. One sister not knowing what Sis Hopkin's real name was, and coming from Putnam, did not arrive till most all had gone home. There was a rhymed reference to the anniversary written for the occasion by Sis Hopkins, our hostess, and read by Rose Lee.

HOLDERS.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I suppose everybody is busy or there might be more letters contributed to the Corner page. One pair of hands can only do its limit from week to week. At this season there is much to be done, both indoors and outside.

Beautiful weather we are having just now, and we must make use of these days while they last.

The many little items we read in our columns pertaining to household helps are most acceptable in their various places, and much appreciated by us who are on the alert for such hints. To add another suggestion, I make a plea for the simple cloth holder, its usefulness for handling hot dishes, kettles, pans, etc., in fact everything where the hand cannot bear the heat. Some women do not think a holder is much of a convenience for the corner of her apron will answer the purpose. Or perhaps the dish towel is handy and that will do. Well, as we do not all think alike, we have our privileges in using the kind of protection for our fingers we choose. As a matter of convenience, cleanliness and economy it appeals to me, a good supply of holders is desirable. I usually have three at a time in use every day. I always sew loops rings on my holders by which to hang them up, on a small hook near my gas stove. I always keep a surplus stock on hand, so there are plenty of clean ones all the time. I believe in the rule—a place for everything, and everything in its place, and surely this applies to the holder.

When taking in the coal stove oven sometimes we forget its contents, but no better reminder can be furnished than the holder placed on the hearth, where it will prove a faithful sentinel. It will take a few minutes time to cut out some thick pieces of cloth, put together, bind around the edge, and sew on the ring, but the handy holder in its place is no small thing to be despised. Holders need the washtub fully as much as any of the laundry, and it's much easier to wash the holder than a large apron or dish towel. A good clean holder used to handle the tea or coffee pot at the table harmonizes better than a soiled or ragged-edged substitute.

Holders for various uses, and made attractive, without expense except the rings (five cents a dozen) are always desirable little gifts to friends, and nothing can serve a better daily reminder of its giver.

JENNIE.

USING OLD STOCKINGS.

Dear Cornerites: What becomes of your silk stockings? By using three pairs of old silk stockings of which the feet are worn, and buying a ready made ruffle at a department store I have an excellent underskirt for a very small sum. Cut the stockings off at the heel and down the center-back. Use one for the front and two on each side. For a small person this five-gored skirt is large enough, but a larger person could have six gores and a side opening. Face at the top and put in elastic. If stockings are good but of different colors, dye them—you'll have a much warmer and better skirt than it would be easy to buy. Mine is a year old and still good.

India Relish: Some might like to try my India relish. Take one-half peck green tomatoes, two large cabbages (or half celery), 15 large onions, six green peppers, one-fourth pound white mustard seed, one ounce tumeric powder, one ounce ground cinnamon, one ounce celery seed, one-fourth pound ground mustard, three pounds white sugar, three quarts vinegar. Chop tomatoes, cabbage, celery and onions fine and pack with one cup salt and let stand over night. Then drain and put to soak in weak vinegar and water for a day or two and drain again. Mix vinegar, sugar and spices and pepper (chopped fine) and let all come to a boil and then can.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week in Norwich the total abstinence party at a caucus in Temple of Honor hall nominated J. L. Denison for first selectman of the town, Rufus Sibley as second selectman and William P. Case as third selectman. In their annual report for 1872-1873, made public the same week, the selectmen of the town recommended a tax of eight mills for the ensuing year. The report showed that the town's expenses that year amounted to $33,960.98.

Monday, Sept. 22, 1873.—An alarm of fire about half past 10 o'clock Saturday night brought the fire department with their usual alacrity of purpose. The alarm was caused by the burning of a barn on Orchard street, the property of F. W. Treadway. The loss is little if less than $1,000, against which there is insurance of about $300.

Among the divorces granted at New London last week by the superior court were the following: George E. Chase and Maria Chase; cause general misconduct; A. P. Park for petitioner. Ralph Kinney and Ann Maria Kinney; cause intemperance and general misconduct; Walt & Swan for petitioner.

By a special despatch we learn that the report of the death by drowning of Capt. James Carberry of the schooner B. S Young and two of his crew in the Bay of Fundy, which appeared in the evening papers of Saturday, is incorrect.

Tuesday, Sept. 23, 1873.—The annual report of the selectmen of Norwich for the fiscal year ending Sept. 1, 1873, has appeared. It contains a full statement of all the bills paid as well as the money received, and we think it will be regarded as a satisfactory document by the people. The current expenses of the year have been $33,-960.98. This is something of a decrease upon last year's figures, which were $35,949.56. The selectmen recommend a tax of eight mills on the dollar. This, if the expenses are no larger than last year, will pay them and leave a small margin for the reduction of the town debt.

George Gibson of Greeneville, by George Dwight, his attorney, has brought complaint on statute in the superior court now in session at New London against the towns of Norwich and Preston, the suit of which complaint is that the bridge between Greeneville and Preston is unsafe and in its present dangerous condition an obstruction to public travel. The selectmen are cited to appear before the superior court on Friday next to show cause why said bridge should not be repaired.

Monday the last spike of the Water Power company's dam at Greeneville was driven and the final gravelling up was begun.

Wednesday, Sept. 24, 1873.—Rev. J. J. Twiss, pastor of the Universalist church, has selected a number of interesting subjects for a series of Sunday evening services at his church. We believe the first will be given on Sunday next.

The annual fair of the Horticultural society of this town was held Tuesday afternoon and evening at Breed hall. Although a backward and drought season had prevented the display that otherwise would have been made, the show was very fine.

F. M. Ashmore of Norwich and W. P. Chapman of Mystic were on Saturday elected to the presidency and vice presidency of the junior class at Brown university.

Thursday, Sept. 25, 1873.—About 5.30 o'clock yesterday morning an alarm called the fire department to Brook street, which street, we will remark for the benefit of those who have not a directory at their elbows while reading this, runs from Hickory street to Providence road. The fire, when the department reached the spot, was destroying the icehouses known as Moore's icehouses, two of which, one double one with an M roof and one single one, together with a barn, were destroyed. The loss is about $2,000, partially covered by insurance.

A. T. Converse received a large quantity of pig iron yesterday that came by barge from Albany. This is somewhat rare importation in this vicinity, but we trust the business will be found profitable.

A city meeting to lay the taxes on this year's list is called for next Monday afternoon in the city hall building, or new courthouse.

The Norwich Horse Railroad company are putting in a new turntable on Franklin square.

Friday, Sept. 26, 1873.—Dr. William Hyde of Stonington, who died at that place yesterday at 1 o'clock, is a loss that will be deeply mourned. For 30 years he practiced his profession in Stonington and was a most popular physician. Dr. Hyde was not far from 60 years old.

The Jewett City Savings bank has declared a dividend payable on the 15th of October on all moneys on deposit for one month or more at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum. We are pleased to state that this new bank is a success, having already gained the confidence of the people.

A cargo of coal for Colchester was shipped over the Air Line road to Turnerville Tuesday. From that village the distance is about four miles. Heretofore the Colchester people have been compelled to transport all their freight from Norwich by teams, a distance of 16 miles. It is probable that a railroad will soon be built from Colchester to connect with the Air Line at Turnerville.

Saturday, Sept. 27, 1873.—The caucus of the total abstinence party, at Temple of Honor hall last night, was numerously attended. The meeting was called to order by U. S. Gardner and A. F. Park was chosen chairman and Solomon Lucas, secretary. The nomination of town officers was then proceeded with and resulted as follows:

Assessors—Moses Pierce, Garrad G. Pitcher, Charles Maples.

Board of Relief—Hiram Crosby, William R. Potter, Lucius Thompson.

Town clerk and treasurer, Othniel Gager.

Registrar, A. F. Park.

First constable and collector, Mason Kinney.

The woman's reading room committee held an executive session on Thursday no results of which have as yet been divulged. It is said that the sterner sex will be as much astonished when the committee's plans get fairly into their heads as Sisera was at Joel's little nail and hammer trick.

The city roller is shortly to make Washington street a pleasant road to travel. Yesterday it was anchored at the foot of the street, where it attracted considerable attention.

If a man has one little vice it hides a lot of virtues from the eyes of his neighbors.

MARKET WAS PROFESSIONAL

New York, Sept. 28.—Mixed price movements in today's stock market continued to reflect the shifting sentiment of professional traders.

Failure of a stock exchange house caused some unsettlement at the start as stocks were sold "under the rule" but except in a few stocks in which the bankrupt firm was heavily interested, the reactions were rel[illegible] small. Jones Bros. Tea added [illegible] drop yesterday at [illegible] new low record for the year at 3 1-4, but it snapped back later to 33 and then eased up to 35 3-4, where it was up 1-4 points on the day.

American Woolen was subjected to a sharp attack in the late afternoon, being driven down 4 3-8 points to 73 1-8, also a new low record for the year. Weakness of this issue revived rumors that the $7 dividend was in danger although previous reports to this effect were denied by President Wood a week ago.

Studebaker also was offered freely on publication of a report that 3000 employes had been laid off, and manufacturing operations substantially reduced. The stock sold at its lowest price of the year, closing at 95 5-8, off 2 1-8. Other motors yielded in sympathy.

Strength of the tobacco issues was predicated upon reports of a merger of the several companies with which the Whelan interests are identified. American Tobacco advanced 2 5-8 to 150, and B stock 1 5-8 and tobacco products, 1 1-2. There were a few other conspicuous strong spots notably Cluett Peabody, Inland Steel Foundation Company, General Cigar, American Snuff and Tidewater Oil, all up 2 to 3 points.

Copper shares held relatively firm on reports that a merger of some of the southwestern companies was again under way. Shipments this month approximated 200,000,000 pounds, or about the same as last month, while stocks of refined on hand are reported to be about 5,000,000 tons below those of a month ago.

Baldwin opened more than a point lower at 113 3-4, rallied to 115 3-4 and then eased off to 113 1-8, off 1 5-8 on the day. U. S. Steel closed 3-4 lower at 86 7-8 and American Can was off 1-2.

Call money opened at 5 1-4 per cent., receded to 5 and then jumped to 5 1-2, where it closed. The time money market was on a virtual 5 1-2 per cent. basis with business quiet. Commercial Paper was slightly more active with 5 1-4 per cent. the ruling rate.

Foreign exchanges were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling eased 1-4 of a cent to $4.55 7-8. French francs held fairly steady around 6.15 cents. German marks were quoted at 80 cents a hundred million, the weekly Reichsbank statement showing an increase of more than two quadrillion paper marks in note circulation, or more than double the outstanding circulation of the week before.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—New Canadian crop estimates 57,000,000 bushels smaller than the Canadian government's latest returns, had much to do with a decided upturn today in wheat prices here. The market closed firm, 3-4 to 1c net higher. December 106 3-8 to 106 3-8@1-2 and May 110 7-8 to 111. Corn finished 1-8 to 1 1-4c up, oats at 1-8 to 1-2@5c gain and provisions showing 2 to 25c advance.

With buying on a much broader scale than has of late been the rule, wheat ascended readily, and profit taking sales led to only transient setbacks. The wide discrepancy between the estimate today from the Northwestern Grain Dealers' Association was explained here as due largely to differences in the acreage basis used. According to a leading authority in Chicago, the Canadian official estimate for 1922 had failed to justify itself and the inference was that the extraordinary recent government estimate of 470,000,000 bushels for this year in Canada was also overstated.

Attention to Washington plans for farm relief measures counted noticeably as an additional bullish factor in the wheat market, and were more or less responsible for lifting values just before the close, which was virtually at the topmost level of the day. Strength of corn and oats tended also to aid the wheat bulls. On the other hand, messages from the southwest indicated that there would be less reaction of winter wheat planting than had of late been looked for.

High price records for the season were again outdone in the corn market by all months except December. Wet weather acted as a stimulus to buyers, and it was said farm reserves were the smallest in 20 years, barring one instance. Shorts in oats covered freely. Provisions were firmer in line with grain and hogs.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Sept. 28.—Persistent pressure against United States government bonds, carrying most of them down from 1-32 to 4-32 of a point, featured today's rather uninteresting bond market. The volume of business continued relatively small but bond traders reported increased inquiry from private investors.

While the drop in tax exempt 3 1-2s of the U. S. government was only 1-32 of a point the bonds touched a new low for the year at 98.17. Bankers report they are not active in the Liberty market although admitting there has been some selling because of relatively higher interest rates to be obtained elsewhere.

Continued reports of internal trouble in Germany were held responsible for the comparative heaviness of foreign issues, several French bonds dropping as much as a point.

Railroad mortgages moved uncertainly, largely as individuals, with the chief inuence being current earnings statements which always affect adjustment and income issues. Steel bonds generally moved up fractionally. Otherwise little activity was displayed in industrial liens.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Sept. 28.—Stock prices displayed a slightly better tone, for the most part, in today's transactions on the curb. There was some unsettlement in a few stocks over the failure of a stock exchange house but the announcement had no untoward influence on the general list.

Industrials were bought more freely but most movements were dependent on individual speculative opinion of the particular shares involved. Durant Motors fell off 1 1-4 while Stutz moved up a point. Gillette Safety Razor gfiained a point and Goodyear Tire & Rubber advanced 1 1-8.

Activity in the oils was quite evident in the late dealings, advances of a point or more being recorded by Buckeye Pipe, Gulf Oil of Pennsylvania, Imperial Oil of Canada, and Prairie Pipe, Eureka Pipe Line was pushed down 6 points on a reported reduction in the dividend rate.

Mining shares moved irregularly within a narrow trading area without definite trend. The volume of trading approximated that of the previous day.

METAL MARKET.

New York, Sept. 28.—Copper quiet, electrolytic spot and futures 13 1-2. Tin firmer, spot and nearby 41.62; futures 41.150. Iron steady, prices unchanged. Lead steady, spot, 6.85@7.10. Zinc quiet, East St. Louis spot and nearby 6.35. Antimony, spot, 7.65@7.75.

MONEY.

New York, Sept. 28.—Call money: firm; high 5 1-2; low 5; ruling rate 5; closing bid 5 1-2; offered at 5 3-4; last loan 5 1-2; call loans against acceptances 4 1-2.

COTTON.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

NEW YORK AUCTIONEER TO APPEAR AT GROTON

Joseph P. Day, who is the auctioneer for the U. S. Shipping Board in the sale of the Groton property which is scheduled for October 4th, is one of the outstanding business characters of New York city.

Mr. Day sold 2000 houses owned by the U. S. government at Camden, N. J.; has sold a $2,000,000 railroad at auction; has sold over 400 houses at Bridgeport, Connecticut, for the Remington U. M. C. company, and has successfully conducted auction sales for the following well known estates: Russell Sage, Palmer, Juilliard; James Gordon Bennett, Crimmins, Woolworth and Alfred G. Vanderbilt.

Mr. Day has at times as many as four and five sales on one day and it is a human impossibility for him to personally act as auctioneer at all sales held by his company. His coming to Groton, Connecticut, therefore, on October 4th to personally conduct this sale for the U. S. government will give a number of people in this part of the state the opportunity to see "Joe Day in action" as the term goes in New York city. Added interest is attached to Mr. Day's coming because he is a close personal friend and has been a business associate in many enterprises with Charles F. Noyes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Noyes of Lincoln avenue. Mr. Day's greatest achievement in lot sales was his recent successful handling of 9000 lots for the Sheepshead Bay—Harkness Estate corporation, which corporation recently took over the old Sheepshead Bay race track, Brooklyn, New York. Mr. Day was associated in this enterprise with Charles F. Noyes who organized the syndicate, bought the property for the syndicate, financed the proposition, and in conjunction with Joseph P. Day arranged for the advertising and marketing of this $6,000,000 property.

Mr. Day was 50 years old on September 22nd. An interesting feature of the Sheepshead Bay sale was the fact that Mr. Noyes and his associates insured Mr. Day's life for one million dollars and in case of Mr. Day's death before the sale the syndicate would have received this sum: this being the value placed on this wonderful man's services. In this connection, Mr. Day is one of the most heavily-insured men in the real estate business as he pays premiums on insurance aggregating $1,600,000. He is one of the big business leaders of New York; the owner of Manhattan and Brighton Beaches (where his investment is said to represent between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000); is a director in the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, the real estate board of New York, the Realty Associates, Realty Notice Corporation, and a dozen real estate organizations, including memberships in all real estate exchanges in and around New York, and, is a member of the board of directors of the Manhattan Beach Estates and Manhattan Beach Park.

The Strand.

Mermaids belong to another age, but there is one at least in these parts. She is Niobe, an exceedingly attractive young woman who is more of a fish than any fish, in fact in her huge glass aquarium she disports herself with a flock of fish, doing many things under water which they can't even attempt. She breathes as they do, swims as they do, and she also sings under water and juggles and does other remarkable stunts. Her voice is quite audible in all parts of the theatre though she is submerged beneath the water. Absolutely no mechanical device or illusion is employed in this exhibition. Niobe is truly remarkable both from a scientific and an amusement viewpoint.

The other acts scheduled are as follows: Jean La Crosse, California's favorite soprano; Kinnear & Frabito in Who Cares at Luna Park; Will J. Kennedy and Will F. Petrie in Hoosick Falls, New York.

To write for human beings, one must understand the "critter." That is exactly what Edgar Saltus attempted to do in his years of philosophical study. Daughters of the Rich, the first of the popular Saltus novels to be filmed, is anything but a scientific treatise on philosophy, but the author has employed the underlying principles of his study, realizing that these control the emotions and actions of human beings. The most elaborate production ever staged at the Schulberg Studios was prepared for Daughters of the Rich, showing at the Strand theater next week.

Broadway Theatre.

A story of the sea, packed with drama and every scene having a distinct thrill of its own, Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture, Homeward Bound, based on the story The Lass: to Leeward, by Peter B. Kyne, and superbly directed by Ralph Ince, will be the feature at the Broadway theatre for four days beginning Sunday. Lila Lee, beautiful and popular, plays opposite the star.

In this captivating photoplay, Mr. Meighan is seen as Jim Bedford, a sailor who saves a ship from foundering after Captain Svenson, the cowardly skipper, quits the bridge and gives up the struggle. When the ship reaches port, Svenson is given an ovation and Rufus Brent, the owner, unaware of the facts, makes him skipper of his yacht which Brent aims to present to his daughter, Mary.

Bedford, who loves Mary, refuses to permit Svenson to command the yacht and thus imperil Mary's life. When the yacht is about to sail, Bedford forces Svenson off the vessel and himself takes command. Brent threatens to have Bedford arrested for piracy and after a severe time aboard Bedford takes the yacht back to port. He then takes command of an unseaworthy schooner and before sailing, quietly marries Mary. Events follow in quick succession, all of which combine to make the picture tremendously interesting and appealing.

A comedy and news will be the short subjects.

The Breed.

A famous stage play, Walter Hackett's Captain Applejack, filmed under the title of Strangers of the Night, is coming to the Breed theatre for four days, starting Sunday. It has been produced by Fred Niblo, who directed The Three Musketeers, Blood and Sand and The Famous Mrs. Fair, and is presented by Louis B. Mayer through Metro.

Niblo was given free reign to build magnificent settings and the cast is made up exclusively of players entitled to be classed as stars. Matt Moore, Enid Bennett, Barbara La Marr and Robert McKim have the four principal roles while such favorites as Emily Fitzroy, Otto Hoffman, Mathilde Brundage and Thomas Ricketts share honors in the secondary group of popular players.

The story concerns a timid Britisher into whose life comes pirate romance on the crest of a storm. Bess Meredyth adapted the story to the screen and it was photographed by Alvin Wyckoff.

Other pictures on the bill include Topics of the Day and an Educational comedy.

Today's bill consists of the Ralph Ince production, Success, with an all star cast, Ruth Roland in Haunted Valley, the Pathe News and an Educational comedy.

Norwich Music Association.

The Norwich Music Association will open its ninth season on Monday evening, October 1st, in Slater Memorial Hall at 8 p. m.

The program for the winter includes seven monthly meetings to be held on the first Monday evening of each month, and the list of artists engaged to appear before the association is a very promising one.

For the opening number, the association has been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dittler of New York city and Old Lyme, Conn. Mr. Dittler has charge of the violin department of the music school at Columbia university, and Mrs. Dittler is pleasantly remembered by many Norwich friends as a pianiste of ability and a former resident of New London.

The fee for membership in the association is the modest one of $2 for regular members and $1 for student members. Application should be made promptly by mail to Robert C. Johnson, 170, Broadway, or in person early on Monday evening at the hall.

Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A. Sunday.

The concluding part of the moving picture showing of The Life of Moses will be shown at the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association on the coming Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. This most impressive Bible story in picture form never fails to grip the interest of those who see it, and doubtless a goodly number will avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing this last part on this occasion. In addition to the pictures, there will be pleasing vocal solos by Hugh Kinder, who also will accompany the pictures with piano music. A brief talk will be given by a layman. Both men and women are cordially invited, and boys and girls if accompanied by adults.

Next Week at United Congregational Church.

The semi-annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Union of Connecticut will be held in the Second Congregational church, New London, sessions at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., with luncheon served for fifty cents. The program is a rich one, and all women of the parish are urged to avail themselves of the privilege of attending this meeting.

Mid-week worship, Thursday evening, at 7.45.

The first meeting of the Camp Fire will be held at the Community House, promptly at 7 o'clock, Friday evening, with a program of organization and Camp Echoes.

First Evangelical Lutheran Church.

On Monday the pastor, H. Hunzinger, will attend the monthly meeting of the pastoral conference at Immanuel Lutheran church, New Haven, Conn. Wednesday night there will be a rehearsal of the male chorus at the Maennerchor in Taftville. Thursday afternoon there will be a meeting of the Ladies Sewing Circle at the home of Mrs. H. Betkofske, 41 East Baltic street, Thursday night. Rehearsal of the church choir under the leadership of Professor Eckstein Mrs. A. Hero will preside at the piano. A complete attendance is desired. Saturday morning, German school and religious instruction given by the pastor in the basement of the church, beginning at 9.15 sharp. Confirmation instruction Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Beginning tomorrow all services and meetings will be on standard time again.

Cash and deposits in commercial banks, other than savings accounts, in excess of Five Hundred Dollars ($500), are subject to taxation in this state.

What Rent Receipts Mean

Rent receipts are certificates of deposits to the credit of your landlord and are equal in point of value to tickets to a last year circus.

If you pay $25 a month rent for ten years, you will have paid $3,340.26. The landlord still owns the house and the "increment" the property has earned while you have protected it for him. In the ten years' rent you've paid for the house and the land and you don't own a shingle on the roof!

Does it Pay to Rent?

Let us show you how to combat these problems and avail yourselves of our facilities. We have some exceptional bargains at this time.

JURY DISAGREES IN TRIAL OF CARNEY ON LIQUOR VIOLATION

Late Friday afternoon in the superior court here before Judge Allyn L. Brown the jury disagreed in the trial of John J. Carney, proprietor of the Pequot Casino at New London, on the charge of violation of the liquor law. Judge Brown discharged them from further consideration of the case after sending them back once to the jury room to endeavor to reach an agreement.

A verdict of "not guilty" was returned for Henry Pellyzani, chef at the Casino, who was tried jointly with Carney. The jury had been directed to return a "not guilty" verdict in Pellyzani's case by Judge Brown when he made his charge to the jury. This was in line with earlier action by the court when Judge Brown granted a motion by Attorney G. C. Morgan to direct a verdict of "not guilty." for Pellyzani.

It was learned that the jury stood 6 to 6 on the first count against Carney, selling and keeping liquor with intent to sell on Aug. 29. On the second count, which was on reputation, from July 1 to Aug. 30, the twelve men stood 8 to 4 for conviction on their first ballot and 7 to 5 on their final ballot. After that they returned to the court room and Foreman W. W. Ives of this city told the judge that there seemed to be no possibility of agreement.

The jury was out the first time from 2.20 to 3.45. After being sent back to the jury room, they came back at 4.10. After answering Clerk Parsons that they had not agreed upon a verdict, Foreman Ives stated to Judge Brown that they had agreed upon one part but not upon the other. He asked if the jury should report.

Judge Brown inquired if it seemed impossible to reach an agreement. All the jurors concurring in the previous statement by Foreman Ives, Judge Brown directed Clerk Parsons to inquire of the jury what its findings were and Foreman Ives reported the "not guilty verdict" for Pellyzani and the failure to reach a verdict in the case of Carney.

Judge Brown discharged the jury, thanking them for their services and directing them to remain to be paid off as this was to be the last jury trial of the present term of court.

The defense closed its case after putting one witness on the stand Friday morning. This was Dr. Joseph M. Ganey of New London, who testified to the good reputation of the Casino and on cross-examination denied that he drank liquor there on the night before boat race day.

After rebuttal testimony by Prohibition Agent Fitzpatrick and Police Sergeant Hick, both sides rested and Attorney Morgan asked to have the jury excused while he made his motion to direct a verdict of "not guilty" for Pellyzani, which Judge Brown granted.

Arguments by Attorney Warren Burrows for the state and Morgan for the defense occupied the rest of the morning and State Attorney Hull concluded his argument after the noon recess. The case went to the jury at 2.20 after Judge Brown had delivered his charge.

NO DEFENSE OFFERED IN FORECLOSURE SUIT

Judge Isaac Wolfe entered a default in the case of the estate of Morton F. Plant of Eastern Point against Tom Prusher, formerly of New London, in a foreclosure of a mortgage on the tract of land in East Lyme and Lyme, formerly the Plant game preserve, at a short calendar session of the superior court in New London Friday morning. The default was entered because of the failure of the defendant to disclose a defense. A motion for an order for decree of sale, which was on the list, was postponed.

Attorneys Arthur T. Keefe and Frank L. McGuire made arguments in a hearing of remonstrance in the case of Joseph Ziminiski against Edward Kelley, both of Montville, and Judge Wolfe took the papers. The case involves the establishing of a lost boundary between tracts of land owned by the parties in the suit in Montville, which was heard by a committee of the superior court. The remonstrance was on the finding of the committee that the boundaries had not become lost.

Counsel fees of $50 to defend were allowed in the case of Abraham T. Feingold vs. Lena Kaplan Feingold.

Demurrers were argued in the case of Annie C. Ealahan vs. David Ealahan and others and the judge took the papers.

BOY SCOUTS STUDY TO KNOW THEIR TOWN

Troop 1 of the United Congregational church held its regular weekly meeting at the Community House Friday evening. The suggestion made in the editorial column of The Bulletin with regard to knowing your own town were taken up for discussion. Imaginary trips over the highways out of Norwich to surrounding towns were made and several short talks were given on how the city and town is governed.

There was also a discussion on the industries of the town and products manufactured in Norwich. Reference was made to the lives of prominent men who were born in this city. Games were played during the evening and the meeting came to a close with the scout benediction.

MOOSE ARE PREPARING FOR INITIATION CLASS

Norwich Lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., held its regular meeting Friday evening at the Moose home, with a good attendance. Considerable interest was shown in the plans for the national convention to be held in New York city next summer.

There will be a class for initiation Sunday, Oct. 7, at 2.30 p. m. A social and entertainment will be held in connection with the initiation. William R. Hastedt, chairman of the "On to New York" committee, announced that on the first Sunday in November there will be a class of candidates known as the Taftville class.

The nominating committee of the lodge will meet Friday, Oct. 5th, at 8 p. m., to accept any nominations that members may wish to bring for the office of vice dictator.

TAFTVILLE

Taftville Fire Company, No. 1, celebrated the completion and opening of the new fire house on Merchants avenue, Thursday evening, when the Fire company and the Property Owners' association were hosts to a company of about eighty members and guests at a social gathering and supper. The event took place in the hall in the second story of the building, and the tables were decorated with dahlias. The following delicious menu was served:

Consomme
Creamed Chicken With Rice
Sweet Potatoes
Tomatoes Hasta Celery
Assorted Cakes Ice Cream
Demi Tasse
Cigars

Joseph G. Marsan acted as toastmaster, and following the supper, called upon Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the Sacred Heart church for remarks. Father Bellerose thanked the company for their untiring efforts in their desire to provide the village with protection, and voiced his appreciation for the co-operation given the Fifth District by the town officials. Mayor Milo R. Waters of Norwich who was also a speaker at the meeting complimented the Taftville Fire Company for the erection of the new building to house the pumper that the town recently purchased for Taftville. He stated that the Taftville company was the second line of defence for Norwich, and he knew that in case of conflagration in the city, the local company could be depended upon for aid, just as the Yantic Fire Department had aided in the past. Wardlectman Casper K. Bailey told of the efforts of the town officials to obtain the appropriation from the town for the new pumper. He stated that he had served on the fire committee for some time and that in his opinion, the Taftville company was as fully equipped as any. Ex-Mayor Timothy C. Murphy of Norwich told of the erection of the new building by the residents of Taftville, unaided by any town appropriation, when he believed that it was the town's duty to provide the site and the building to house the pumper. Rev. Frederick F. DesSureault of Occum told of the greater security felt by residents of his village since the purchase of the new fire apparatus. Senator Hermon J. Gibbs, of Yantic, brought the greetings of the Yantic Fire Department and assured the aid and co-operation of his department with the local firemen. Deputy Chief Henry H. Taft of Norwich told of the great need for fire protection in this neighborhood and told the benefits of the State Firemen's Association. Other speakers were Louis J. Fontaine, A. E. Pingree, Earle M. Wood and John D. Sharples.

The women in charge of the supper were Mrs. Ralph C. [illegible] and Mrs. Mathias Paradis, and they were assisted by Mrs. Louis Gregory, Mrs. Edward Adams, Mrs. Joseph Gauvin, Mrs. Noe Frechette, Mrs. Tougsaint Brodeur, Mrs. Ozias Blais and Mrs. George Couture. Hormidas Benoit also assisted. Victrola music was enjoyed while the supper was in progress. The ladies also presented the Fire company a large cake bearing the words "Taftville Fire Department, No. 2."

After the supper the guests were shown through the building, which is to be open for inspection on Sunday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock.

POETRY

SHADOW DREAMS.

I dreamed that autumn winds were sighing,
The year in vain regret was dying—
That rustling leaves stained ruby red
Bared breaking hearts that slowly bled.

I dreamed that sapphire streams sobbed low,
That old gray crones were scattering snow,
And bare brown trees upon the hill
Were wailing with the grumbling rill.

I dreamed the sky with clouds was dun
That shadows veiled the fitful sun—
And all about the fleeting year
Were chanted miserere drear.

I woke, and heard a sweet-toned wind
Breathe to the world a message kind
"You deem poor mortals, autumn grieves
Just see the crimson of her leaves."

Do those who mourn don garments gay
And deck themselves in silk array?
The stream's low song you thought a sigh
Was autumn's soft-toned lullaby.

The crones in gray, who scattered snow
Were mothers with white quilts, I know
Who tucked the flowers, warm, in bed
And wrapped them snug in ermine spreads.

The bare brown trees upon the hill,
Whose wail seemed echoed by the rill
Were chanting hymns to God, who sent
The gold of summer days now spent.

Dun clouds your vision saw on high,
Were shadow dreams that fade and die—
For no sad song through autumn seeps
A season but seeks dreams—and sleeps

LIFE.

Laughter and song,
A friend and a smile or two,
Then a lonely and long
Hard pull for a mile or two,
Danger and fear
The despair and the doubt of it,
Then the skies clear
And the glad coming out of it!
Meet what you must,
As a man, as a friend,
Be strong and be just,
Joy shall come in the end.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

A Texas lad, lacking a team of horses or mules for his plowing, engaged his sister to direct the plow while he yoked himself to a steer for the pulling.

The steer promptly ran away, and the lad had no choice but to run too. Soon they reached the village and went tearing down the street. And as he raced wildly, the young man shouted:

Margaret has a habit of taking off her shoes and stockings while out at play, although her mother objects. The other day Margaret came in again barefooted.

"Why did you do that?" asked her mother.

"Well, mother," said the little girl, "I have to cold my feet—they get so hot."—Chicago News.

Things were not going to suit the stage manager, who became vociferous.

"Speed up that farce."

"We are speeding."

"Then speed up a little more."

"Boss, you can't make a stage farce look like a movie."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Weren't you awfully embarrassed, sitting through such a play with Charlie?"

"Oh, no, not at all. The dear boy didn't dream that I had the faintest idea what it was all about."—New York Sun.

"Pa," said Johnny, "what is the fourth dimension?"

"I can't be bothered with that just now, my son."

"Why? Is it a foolish question?"

"I guess the question is all right, but I must say I never heard an answer to it that struck me as very sensible."—Boston Transcript.

"These people you have invited to your bridge party are not very interesting."

"Don't you worry. One lady loaned me the card tables and another loaned me the cards."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"The movie showed that the Moroccan men bid for their wives." "Just think of being put up on the auction block and having men bid for you. It must be terrible."

"Must be," assented the other girl. "And just suppose there were no bids."—Boston Transcript.

"Johnny," said the teacher, "if coal is selling at $14 a ton and you pay the dealer $65, how many tons will he bring you?"

"A little over three tons, ma'am," said Johnny, promptly. "Why, Johnny, that's not right," said the teacher. "No ma'am, I know it ain't right," said Johnny, "but he will do it."—Judge.

JURY DISAGREES IN TRIAL OF CARNEY ON LIQUOR VIOLATION

Late Friday afternoon in the superior court here before Judge Allyn L. Brown the jury disagreed in the trial of John J. Carney, proprietor of the Pequot Casino at New London, on the charge of violation of the liquor law. Judge Brown discharged them from further consideration of the case after sending them back once to the jury room to endeavor to reach an agreement.

A verdict of "not guilty" was returned for Henry Pellyzani, chef at the Casino, who was tried jointly with Carney. The jury had been directed to return a "not guilty" verdict in Pellyzani's case by Judge Brown when he made his charge to the jury. This was in line with earlier action by the court when Judge Brown granted a motion by Attorney G. C. Morgan to direct a verdict of "not guilty." for Pellyzani.

It was learned that the jury stood 6 to 6 on the first count against Carney, selling and keeping liquor with intent to sell on Aug. 29. On the second count, which was on reputation, from July 1 to Aug. 30, the twelve men stood 8 to 4 for conviction on their first ballot and 7 to 5 on their final ballot. After that they returned to the court room and Foreman W. W. Ives of this city told the judge that there seemed to be no possibility of agreement.

The jury was out the first time from 2.20 to 2.45. After being sent back to the jury room, they came back at 4.10. After answering Clerk Parsons that they had not agreed upon a verdict, Foreman Ives stated to Judge Brown that they had agreed upon one part but not upon the other. He asked if the jury should report.

Judge Brown inquired if it seemed impossible to reach an agreement. All the jurors concurring in the previous statement by Foreman Ives, Judge Brown directed Clerk Parsons to inquire of the jury what its findings were and Foreman Ives reported the "not guilty verdict" for Pellyzani and the failure to reach a verdict in the case of Carney.

Judge Brown discharged the jury, thanking them for their services and directing them to remain to be paid off as this was to be the last jury trial of the present term of court.

The defense closed its case after putting one witness on the stand Friday morning. This was Dr. Joseph M. Ganey of New London, who testified to the good reputation of the Casino and on cross-examination denied that he drank liquor there on the night before boat race day.

After rebuttal testimony by Prohibition Agent Fitzpatrick and Police Sergeant Hick, both sides rested and Attorney Morgan asked to have the jury excused while he made his motion to direct a verdict of "not guilty" for Pellyzani, which Judge Brown granted.

Arguments by Attorney Warren Burrows for the state and Morgan for the defense occupied the rest of the morning and State Attorney Hull concluded his argument after the noon recess. The case went to the jury at 2.20 after Judge Brown had delivered his charge.

NO DEFENSE OFFERED IN FORECLOSURE SUIT

Judge Isaac Wolfe entered a default in the case of the estate of Morton F. Plant of Eastern Point against Tom Frusher, formerly of New London, in a foreclosure of a mortgage on the tract of land in East Lyme and Lyme, formerly the Plant game preserve, at a short calendar session of the superior court in New London Friday morning. The default was entered because of the failure of the defendant to disclose a defense. A motion for an order for decree of sale, which was on the list, was postponed.

Attorneys Arthur T. Keefe and Frank L. McGuire made arguments in a hearing of remonstrance in the case of Joseph Ziminiski against Edward Kelley, both of Montville, and Judge Wolfe took the papers. The case involves the establishing of a lost boundary between tracts of land owned by the parties in the suit in Montville, which was heard by a committee of the superior court. The remonstrance was on the finding of the committee that the boundaries had not become lost.

Counsel fees of $50 to defend were allowed in the case of Abraham T. Feingold vs. Lena Kaplan Feingold.

Jury waivers were argued in the case of Annie C. Ealahan vs. David Ealahan and others and the judge took the papers.

BOY SCOUTS STUDY TO KNOW THEIR TOWN

Troop 1 of the United Congregational church held its regular weekly meeting at the Community House Friday evening. The suggestion made in the editorial column of The Bulletin with regard to knowing your own town were taken up for discussion. Imaginary trips over the highways out of Norwich to surrounding towns were made and several short talks were given on how the city and town is governed.

There was also a discussion on the industries of the town and products manufactured in Norwich. Reference was made to the lives of prominent men who were born in this city. Games were played during the evening and the meeting came to a close with the scout benediction.

MOOSE ARE PREPARING FOR INITIATION CLASS

Norwich Lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., held its regular meeting Friday evening at the Moose home, with a good attendance. Considerable interest was shown in the plans for the national convention to be held in New York city next summer.

There will be a class for initiation Sunday, Oct. 7, at 2.30 p. m. A social and entertainment will be held in connection wiht the initiation. William R. Hastedt, chairman of the "On to New York" committee, announced that on the first Sunday in November there will be a class of candidates known as the Taftville class.

The nominating committee of the lodge will meet Friday, Oct. 5th, at 8 p. m., to accept any nominations that members may wish to bring for the office of vice dictator.

TAFTVILLE

Taftville Fire Company, No. 2, celebrated the completion and opening of the new fire house on Merchants avenue, Thursday evening, when the Fire company and the Property Owners' association were hosts to a company of about eighty members and guests at a social gathering and supper. The event took place in the hall in the second story of the building, and the tables were decorated with dahlias. The following delicious menu was served:

Consommee
Creamed Chicken With Rice
Sweet Potatoes
Tomatoes Beets Celery
Assorted Cakes Ice Cream
Demi Tasse
Cigars

Joseph G. Marsan acted as toastmaster, and following the supper, called upon Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of the Sacred Heart church for remarks. Father Bellerose thanked the company for their untiring efforts in their desire to provide the village with protection, and voiced his appreciation for the co-operation given the Fifth District by the town officials. Mayor Milo R. Waters of Norwich who was also a speaker at the meeting complimented the Taftville Fire Company for the erection of the new building to house the pumper that the town recently purchased for Taftville. He stated that the Taftville company was the second line of defence for Norwich, and he knew that in case of conflagration in the city, the local company could be depended upon for aid, just as the Yantic Fire Department had aided in the past. Fire... lectman Casper K. Bailey told of the efforts of the town officials to obtain the appropriation from the town for the new pumper. He stated that he had served on the fire committee for some time and that in his opinion, the Taftville company was as fully equipped as any. Ex-Mayor Timothy C. Murphy of Norwich told of the erection of the new building by the residents of Taftville, unaided by any town appropriation, when he believed that it was the town's duty to provide the site and the building to house the pumper. Rev. Frederick F. DesSureault of Occum told of the greater security felt by residents of his village since the purchase of the new fire apparatus. Senator Hermon J. Gibbs, of Yantic, brought the greetings of the Yantic Fire Department and assured the aid and co-operation of his department with the local firemen. Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft of Norwich told of the great need for fire protection in this neighborhood and told the benefits of the State Fireman's Association. Other speaker: were Louis J. Fontaine, A. E. Pingree, Earle M. Wood and John D. Sharples.

The women in charge of the supper were Mrs. Ralph C. ... and Mrs. Matthias Paradis, and they were assisted by Mrs. Louis Gregory, Mrs. Edward Adams, Mrs. Joseph Gauvin, Mrs. Noe Frechette, Mrs. Toussaint Brodeur, Mrs. Ozias Blais and Mrs. George Couture. Hormidas Benoit also assisted. Victrola music was enjoyed while the supper was in progress. The ladies also presented the Fire company a large cake bearing the words "Taftville Fire Department, No. 2."

After the supper the guests were shown through the building, which is to be open for inspection on Sunday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock.

SHADOW DREAMS.

I dreamed that autumn winds were sighing,
The year in vain regret was dying—
That rustling leaves stained ruby red
Bared breaking hearts that slowly bled.

I dreamed that sapphire streams sobbed low,
That old gray crones were scattering snow,
And bare brown trees upon the hill
Were wailing with the grumbling rill

I dreamed the sky with clouds was dun
That shadows veiled the fitful sun—
And all about the fleeting year
Were chanted misereres drear.

I woke, and heard a sweet-voiced wind
Breathe to the world a message kind:
"You deem poor mortals, autumn grieves
Just see the crimson of her leaves

Do those who mourn don garments gay
And deck themselves in silk array?
The stream's low song you thought a sigh
Was autumn's soft-toned lullaby

Were mothers with white quilts, I know
Who tucked the flowers, warm in bed,
And wrapped them snug in frosty spreads.

SEVERAL PERSONS KILLED, MANY WOUNDED AT SAPARATIST MEETING IN DUSSELDORF

Between Two and Three Hundred, Many of Them Women and Children, Were Injured During the Disorder—Forty Thousand Persons Assembled in Hindenburgstrasse Fled in Panic—Police, Communists and Separatists Engaged in a General Shooting Affray—German Government's Laws for the Protection of the Republic Are No Longer in Force in Bavaria.

Duesseldorf, Sept. 30.—(By the A. P.)—The great separist demonstration here today terminated in a veritable massacre. A score of persons are known to have been killed and the wounded are believed to be numbered in hundreds. Duesseldorf is still seething with excitement and more trouble is feared tonight.

The French occupation authorities told the German green military police—the security police—responsible for the outbreak, declaring that they started the shooting, in which the Communists groups later joined. The hospitals and police barracks are filled with wounded, and French military doctors are rendering all possible assistance.

The French authorities late this evening sent out patrols to round up all the security police they could find in the streets and placed them under arrest all those still held in reserve at headquarters.

The city awoke early teeming with excitement; thousands were abroad in spite of an appeal addressed to the population to remain indoors. But street cars, authorities and other vehicles were absent from the streets and the hotels and stores had already lowered their iron and steel gratings. About 10 o'clock the first of the 95 trains bearing the manifestants to Duesseldorf arrived, and was received by a company of Rhineland public militia, which had just sworn allegiance to the green, white and red flag.

Soon after noon all the manifestants from points in the "Rhineland republic" had reached the city and a procession formed and marched behind innumerable green, white and red republican emblems to Hindenburgstrasse—a thoroughfare 200 feet wide by 1,000 feet long, adorned with heroic size statues of William I, Bismarck and Von Moltke.

The procession filed past in impressive marching order to the number of about 75,000 republicans, but with curiosity seekers added, the assembly probably totalled 40,000 when the open air meeting place was reached.

Standing directly under the statue of William I, the separatist leader, Herr Matthes, began speaking.

"The separatists," he declared, "are animated by hatred toward none, but only desire peace, security and tranquility."

Suddenly, without warning, several shots were fired from behind a lowered steel curtain protecting the plate glass entrance to a store. In the panic that ensued, a small group made a concerted rush for the speakers. The security police fired a fusillade, and the shooting became general.

French military forces were rushed to the scene and ordered the green police to cease using their revolvers, but according to the French the police refused and continued to fire. The cavalry seized many of the police and surrounded their barracks, quelling the disturbance in few minutes.

French cavalry and armored cars are patrolling the streets.

When the French cavalry patrols were sent out to round up the security police, they found the separatists so enraged that the soldiers had difficulty in stopping them from killing the police. A correspondent saw two of the police clubbed to death by separatists, who broke through the French cavalry escorting them to prison.

Later in the evening armored cars patrolled the streets and guards were placed in all the buildings in the city occupied by the French. After a semblance of order had been restored the separatists returned to their meeting place and Herr Matthes wound up the proceedings briefly.

The visiting separatists finally left Duesseldorf in their special trains. An official statement issued by the the green police attacked the crowds without provocation, and adds that "a certain number" of persons killed, including three police, and "some sixty" were seriously hurt.

FRANCE AND BELGIUM AWAIT ACTION BY GERMANY

Arlwood, France, Sept. 30.—(By the A. P.)—"The sullen proclamation of truce she could not avoid is nothing. It is what she does, that is everything. We await Germany's acts."

This was the keynote of Premier Poincare's first Sunday speech delivered before a large assemblage here. "Germany has abandoned the idea of laying down conditions" said M. Poincare; "that is well. But we shall not have made a step toward the alleviation of strained conditions unless Germany shows a real desire to enable results to be obtained from the seized guarantees in the occupied territories, or if she expects France to change her policy, or if she cherishes the secret hope of obtaining advantage, in return for mere words of resignation.

"The moment has not yet come for us to believe that our task is ended; tomorrow's work is more difficult than that we have accomplished."

M. Poincare began his address by repeating the reference he had made the previous Sunday to those in Germany, and perhaps elsewhere, who find his weekly repetitions tedious, declaring that they would continue until France's claims had been justified.

"With what joy shall we remain silent the day Germany indicates!" he exclaimed. "But she has given us daily fresh proof of her lack of understanding.

"Germany has just surrendered on an important point, in declaring that she was obliged to cease resistance in the Ruhr," continued the premier, "thus recognizing that the mad undertaking of her resources practically has come to an end with the miserable enterprises which was condemned by the population affected. Germany's attempt to cover her retreat by blank-cartridge volleys is but human. But why this bragadocio, these threats and lamp thunderbolts?

"When the German government declares that the Franco-Belgian invasion of the Ruhr contravenes the law and treaties, when it reproaches them with oppressing the inhabitants and abolishing individual liberty, it brazenly reverses the roles, attributing to the French and Belgians crimes which were committed against them in territory legally occupied. This it forces us to remain on guard and continue these weekly meditations."

Education Week To Begin Nov. 18th

President Coolidge Has Issued a Proclamation Calling for Observance of the Week.

Washington, Sept. 30. — President Coolidge issued a proclamation today calling for observance of the week beginning Nov. 18th as National Education Week.

"Every American citizen," the president said, "is entitled to a liberal education. Without this, there is no guarantee for the permanence of free institutions. No hope of perpetuating self-government. Despotism finds its chief support in ignorance. Knowledge and freedom go hand in hand."

Education Week is held each year under the joint auspices of the National Education Association, the United States Bureau of Education and the American Legion cooperating with more than a hundred other national organizations, the purpose being to bring the people closer to their schools. The president's proclamation follows:

"From its earliest beginnings, America has been devoted to the cause of education. This country was founded on the ideal of ministering to the individual. It was realized that this must be done by the institutions of religion and government. In order that there might be a properly educated clergy and well trained civil magistrates, one of the first thoughts of the early settlers was to provide for a college of liberal culture, while for the general diffusion of knowledge, primary schools were established. This course was taken as the necessary requirement of enlightened society.

"Such a policy, once adopted, has continued to grow in extent. With the adoption of the federal constitution and the establishment of free governments in the states of the Union, there was additional reason for broadening the opportunity for education. Our country adopted the principle of self-government by a free people. Those who were worthy of being free, were worthy of being educated. Those who had the duty and responsibility of government must necessarily have the education with which to discharge the obligations of citizenship. The sovereign had to be educated. The sovereign had become the people. Schools and universities were provided by the various governments and founded and fostered by private charity, until their buildings dotted all the land.

"The willingness of the people to bear the burdens of maintaining these institutions, and the patriotic devotion of an army of teachers, who, in many cases, might have earned larger incomes in other pursuits, have made it possible to accomplish results with which we may well be gratified. But the task is not finished, it has only been begun.

"We have observed the evidences of a broadening vision of the whole educational system. This has included a recognition that education must not end with the period of school attendance, but must be given every encouragement thereafter. To this end the night schools of the cities, the moonlight schools of the southern Appalachian countries, the extension work of the colleges and universities, the provision for teaching technical, agricultural and mechanical arts, have marked out the path to a broader and more widely diffused national culture. To insure the permanence and continuing improvement of such an educational policy, there must be the fullest realization of its absolute necessity. Every American citizen is entitled to a liberal education. Without this, there is no guarantee for the permanence of free institutions, no hope of perpetuating self-government. Despotism finds its chief support in ignorance. Knowledge and freedom go hand in hand.

"In order that the people of the nation may think on these things, it is desirable that there should be an annual observance of Educational Week.

"Now, therefore, I, Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, do hereby proclaim the week beginning on the eighteenth of November, next, as National Education Week and urge its observance throughout the country. I recommend that the state and local authorities cooperate with the civic and religious bodies to secure its most general and helpful observance, for the purpose of more liberally supporting and more effectively improving the educational facilities of our country."

It is believed there were no casualties.

Due In Liverpool Today.

Liverpool, Sept. 30.—A radio despatch this evening announced that the steamer Cedric is due at Liverpool Monday morning.

ACCIDENTS DUE TO FOG OFF THE BRITISH ISLES

London, Sept. 30.—A despatch from Queenstown says a tender with a hundred passengers on board for the steamer Scythia, was obliged to return to Queenstown owing to the collision between the Scythia and the Cedric, which obliged the Scythia to return to Liverpool.

Several minor shipping accidents happened during the week end and owing to the prevalence of dense fogs around the coasts of the British Isles.

The Cedric had called at Cork between six and seven o'clock this morning and landed passengers. She proceeded and was off Tuskar when she came into collision with the Scythia.

The steamship Moorfawl, which runs between Cork and Fishguard, is reported to have struck a rock off Ballycotton today during a fog. The passengers were put ashore. The vessel is reported to have been seriously damaged.

"During the dense fog Sunday morning the Scythia, outward bound, and the Cedric inward bound, came into collision off South Ireland, causing slight damage to the Scythia.

"As a measure of precaution the Scythia is returning to Liverpool with her passengers to enable a full examination to be made of the damage, which is all above the water line."

The Cedric also escaped with slight damage.

SEARCHING FOR LEADER OF HOUSE OF DAVID COLONY

Benton Harbor, Mich., Sept. 30.—(By the A. P.)—State police aided by Berrien county deputies invaded the House of David Colony here early today in a fruitless search for Benjamin Purnell, missing head of the cult, sought on a warrent charging him with a statutory crime.

The raiding party consisted of more than 50 state police, deputy sheriffs and newspapermen. They reached the colony before daylight after throwing a cordon about the place and posting guards on all highways leading to it. They trooped through the halls and corridors of Shiloh house, the temple home of Purnell. They poked into the basement and attic, seeking subterranean tunnels, sealed rooms and secret passages through which Purnell's accusers charged he flitted when officers of the law sought him. No trace of mysterious passages or trap doors was discovered. There was little of the bizarre luxury reputed to exist in Shiloh house and there was no sign of "King" Benjamin.

Accompanying the raiding party were Gladys Bamford Rubsi and Ruth Bamford Reed, former members of the colony who have brought serious charges against the missing cult leader. The girls, familiar with the interior of Shiloh house, guided the raiding party through its various rooms.

The chemical analysis has not been completed, he said, and no definite steps will be taken until a written report has been received of Dr. Goettler's findings. The coroner's attitude toward the case has changed considerably, as at first he declared there was nothing to show that death had not occurred naturally.

GOV. WALTON TO PREVENT ELECTION IN OKLAHOMA

Entire Force of Arms of the State Will be Thrown Into the Field on Tuesday to Curb Rioting That Might Result From Closing of the Polls—Besides the 5,000 Guardsmen 75,000 Volunteer Militiamen Will be Called Upon to Cope With Any Emergency That Might Develop.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 30.—(By the A. P.)—The entire force of arms of the state will be thrown into the field at which a measure would be submitted providing a way for the legislature to consider impeachment charges against Governor J. C. Walton, and to curb rioting that might result from closing of the polls, it was announced by the governor tonight.

The governor said that mobilization orders for the entire Oklahoma National Guard, numbering approximately 5,000 men, had been issued today and that tonight 75,000 volunteer militiamen will be called to designate strategic centers for an emergency. He declined to reveal details of the mobilization plans.

In addition the executive said that he had instructed his special corps of secret service operatives, which he said numbered 3,000 men, to assist regular county authorities to keep polls closed.

Meanwhile, plans directed by W. D. McBee, member of the state house of representatives and other legislative opponents of the executive, went forward rapidly to ensure an attempt by the public to vote. Following a proclamation early today by the governor postponing the election, the leaders of the movement to override him established communication by telegraph and telephone with every county in the state, and tonight they announced that meetings were in progress in virtually all sections at which speakers were urging citizens to attempt to vote in defiance of the governor's proclamation.

Simultaneously the governor declared that he was on the verge of proclaiming more stringent martial law throughout the state.

"I have been very patient," he said. "But one more crack and I am going to put this state under martial law that will be martial law. I am going to make them go to bed at six o'clock and there will be very few passes issued after that hour.

"I have no doubt there will be many vacant houses in Oklahoma soon."

The executive made it plain that only the civilian arm of the enforcement machinery, consisting of regular county officials and his secret service operatives, would be used to prevent the casting of ballots and that the military would be held in reserve for use in event of rioting that might result from the closing of the polls.

He explained that he did not intend to order the arrest of persons seeking to vote. The whole action, he said, would consist in keeping the polls closed.

"There may be bloodshed," he asserted, "but there will be no election."

"This is my election. I called it and I certainly have the right to postpone it. Furthermore, it would be illegal to holde it now for the reason that the law has not been complied with through proper publication of the questions to be voted on."

The executive declared that D. C. McAlister, secretary of the state election board by whose orders machinery of the election was put in motion, was "playing with the klan crowd."

Mr. McAlister, following the announcement of the governor's proclamation, declared he was powerless to stop the work that had been started, and that if the election was to be prevented the burden would be on the governor alone.

Governor Walton again bitterly assailed the Oklahoma press, declaring that the opposition of newspapers to his programme in the state was alone responsible for conditions in the state.

"If the Muskogee Phoenix, the Oklahoma City Oklahoman and its echo, The Oklahoma City News, and The Tulsa Tribune had been locked up and the keys to their doors thrown in the river six weeks ago, we would not be having trouble in Oklahoma today," he asserted.

"If there is bloodshed you can lay it at their door and there may be bloodshed, although I dread to say it."

Mr. McAlistsr could not be located for a statement tonight. Upon his earlier declaration that he was powerless to stay the election, after having put the machinery in final action, several newspapers in the state printed extra editions this afternoon advising citizens that the election would be held.

SAYS ELECTION WILL BE HELD ACCORDING TO LAW

BUSINESS UNCERTAINTY IS REFLECTED IN MARKETS

New York, Sept. 30.—(By the A. P.)—Restlessness and irregularity in the markets of last week were interpreted in financial quarters as reflecting uncertainty over the course of business. Most observers agreed that while a good volume of industrial activity is in prospect this fall, the pickup from midsummer dullness has been no more than what might be expected on a seasonal basis, and that a return to the high rate of last spring is unlikely. The view prevails that the spring boom represented urgent buying to replenish stocks which had been depleted during the depression of 1921, and that the extraordinary volume of goods which is now being carried by the railroads is made up largely of deliveries of orders placed at that time.

Nevertheless, it is widely held that stocks of goods are moderate, that consumption is high, and that the credit position is comparatively easy. In these important particulars the situation differs radically from that of 1919 and 1920. Business men have shown unusual caution in making commitments and reports from banking circles indicate that great liquidity has been maintained in the working capital position.

While business prospects are fairly good, brokerage houses feel that they are not particularly promising to encourage renewed public participation in the stock market. And with public participation reduced commissions naturally are severely diminished, a condition which creates pessimism in the brokerage fraternity.

2,700,000 PUBLIC SERVANTS ON THE NATION'S PAYROLL

New York, Sept. 30.—One person out of every twelve over 16 years who are gainfully employed in the United States is on the public payroll, and as a result, the American people are paying them nearly four billion dollars a year in salaries it was declared in a statemet made public today by the National Industrial Conference Board. The board based its figures on the census of 1920.

The board has prepared a report on the nation's taxation problem and the magnitude of the country's public payroll cost to every man, woman and child in the United States of $34 a year.

The statement says: "The annual cost of salaries paid directly to active and inactive government employees is $91 a person over 16 years of age gainfully employed, who comprise, in the last analysis, the large body of taxpayers of the nation."

Exclusive of pensioners there are 2,700,000 public servants on the nation's payroll, the board declared. Pensioners and other inactive persons persons were said to number 670,000.

SEVERAL PERSONS KILLED, MANY WOUNDED AT SAPARATIST MEETING IN DUSSELDORF

Between Two and Three Hundred, Many of Them Women and Children, Were Injured During the Disorder—Forty Thousand Persons Assembled in Hindenburgstrasse Fled in Panic—Police, Communists and Separatists Engaged in a General Shooting Affray—German Government's Laws for the Protection of the Republic Are No Longer in Force in Bavaria.

Duesseldorf, Sept. 30.—(By the A. P.)—The great separatist demonstration here today terminated in a veritable massacre. A score of persons are known to have been killed, and the wounded are believed to be numbered in hundreds. Duesseldorf is still seething with excitement and more trouble is feared tonight.

The French occupation authorities told the German green military police—the security police—responsible for the outbreak, declaring that they backed the shooting, in which the Communists groups had joined. The hospitals and police barracks are filled with wounded and French military doctors are rendering all possible assistance.

The French authorities late this evening sent out patrols to round up all the security police they could find in the streets and placed them under arrest, all those still held in reserve in headquarters.

The city awoke early this morning with excitement, thousands were abroad in spite of an appeal addressed to the population to remain indoors. But street cars, automobiles and other vehicles were absent from the streets and the hotels and stores had all lowered their iron and steel curtains. About 11 o'clock the first of the 25 trains bearing the manifestants to Duesseldorf arrived, and was received by a company of Rhineland public militia, which had just sworn allegiance to this green, white and red flag.

Soon after noon all the manifestants from points in the "Rhineland republic" had reached the city and a procession formed and marched behind innumerable green white and red republican emblems to Hindenburgstrasse—a thoroughfare 200 feet wide by 1,000 feet long, adorned with heroic size statues of William I, Bismarck and Von Moltke.

The procession filed past in impressive marching order to the number of about 40,000 republicans, but with curiosity seekers added, the assembly probably totalled 100,000 when the open air meeting place was reached.

"The separatists," he declared, "are animated by hatred toward none, but only desire peace security and tranquility."

Suddenly, without warning, several shots were fired from behind a lowered steel curtain protecting the plate glass entrance to a store, in the panic that ensued, a small group made a concerted rush for the speaker. The security police fired a fusillade, and the shooting became general.

French military forces were rushed to the scene and ordered the green police to cease using their revolvers, but according to the French the police refused and continued to fire. The cavalry seized many of the police and surrounded their barracks, quelling the disturbance in few minutes.

French cavalry and armored cars are patrolling the streets.

When the French cavalry patrols were sent out to round up the security police, they found the separatists so enraged that the soldiers had difficulty in stopping them from killing the police. A correspondent saw two of the police clubbed to death by separatists, who broke through the French cavalry escorting them to prison.

Later in the evening armored cars patrolled the streets and guards were placed in all the buildings in the city occupied by the French. After a semblance of order had been restored the separatists returned to their meeting place and Herr Matthes wound up the proceedings briefly.

The visiting separatists finally left Duesseldorf in their special trains. An official statement issued by the the green police attacked the crowds without provocation and adds that "a certain number" of persons killed, including three police, and "some sixty" were seriously hurt.

FRANCE AND BELGIUM AWAIT ACTION BY GERMANY

Allywood, France, Sept. 30.—(By the A. P.)—"The sullen proclamation of a truce she could not avoid is nothing; it is what she does, that is everything. We await Germany's acts."

This was the keynote of Premier Poincare's first Sunday speech delivered before a large assemblage here. "Germany has abandoned the idea of laying down conditions" said M. Poincare, "that is well. But we shall not have made a step toward the alleviation of strained conditions unless Germany shows a real desire to enable results to be obtained from the seized guarantees in the occupied territories, or if she expects France to change her policy, or if she chersishes the secret hope of obtaining advantage, in return for mere words of resignation.

"The moment has not yet come for us to believe that our task is ended; tomorrow's work is more difficult than that we have accomplished."

M. Poincare began his address by repeating the reference he had made the previous Sunday to those in Germany, and perhaps elsewhere, who find his weekly repetitions tedious, declaring that they would continue until France's claims had been justified.

"With what joy shall we remain silent the day Germany understands!" he exclaimed. "But she has given us daily fresh proof of her lack of understanding.

"Germany has just surrendered on an important point, in declaring that she was obliged to cease resistance in the Ruhr," continued the premier. "thus recognizing that the mad squandering of her resources prevented her from going on with the miserable enterprise which was condemned by the population affected. Germany's attempt to cover her retreat by blank-cartridge volleys is but human. But why this braggadocio, these threats and lamp thunderbolts?

"When the German government declares that the Franco-Belgian invasion of the Ruhr contravenes the law and treaties, when it reproaches them with oppressing the inhabitants and abolishing individual liberty, it brazenly reverses the roles, attributing to the French and Belgians crimes which were committed against them in territory legally occupied. This it forces us to remain on guard and continue these weekly recitations."

Education Week To Begin Nov. 18th

President Coolidge Has Issued a Proclamation Calling for Observance of the Week.

Washington, Sept. 30. — President Coolidge issued a proclamation today calling for observance of the week beginning Nov. 18th as National Education Week.

"Every American citizen," the president said, "is entitled to a liberal education. Without this, there is no guarantee for the permanence of free institutions. No hope of perpetuating self-government. Despotism finds its chief support in ignorance. Knowledge and freedom go hand in hand."

Education Week is held each year under the joint auspices of the National Education Association, the United States Bureau of Education and the American Legion cooperating with more than a hundred other national organizations, the purpose being to bring the people closer to their schools. The president's proclamation follows:

"From its earliest beginnings, America has been devoted to the cause of education. This country was founded on the ideal of ministering to the individual. It was realized that this must be done by the institutions of religion and government. In order that there might be a properly educated clergy and well trained civil magistrates, one of the first thoughts of the early settlers was to provide for a college of liberal culture, while for the general diffusion of knowledge, primary schools were established. This course was taken as the necessary requirement of enlightened society.

"Such a policy, once adopted, has continued to grow in extent. With the adoption of the federal constitution and the establishment of free governments in the states of the Union, there was additional reason for broadening the opportunity for education. Our country adopted the principle of self-government by a free people. Those who were worthy of being free, were worthy of being educated. Those who had the duty and responsibility of government must necessarily have the education with which to discharge the obligations of citizenship. The sovereign had to be educated. The sovereign had become the people. Schools and universities were provided by the various governments and founded and fostered by private charity, until their buildings dotted all the land.

"The willingness of the people to bear the burdens of maintaining these institutions, and the patriotic devotion of an army of teachers, who, in many cases, might have earned larger incomes in other pursuits, have made it possible to accomplish results with which we may well be gratified. But the task is not finished, it has only been begun.

"We have observed the evidences of a broadening vision of the whole educational system. This has included a recognition that education must not end with the period of school attendance, but must be given every encouragement thereafter. To this end the night schools of the cities, the moonlight schools of the southern Appalachian countries, the extension work of the colleges and universities, the provision for teaching technical, agricultural and mechanical arts, have marked out the path to a broader and more widely diffused national culture. To insure the permanence and continuing improvement of such an educational policy there must be the fullest realization of its absolute necessity. Every American citizen is entitled to a liberal education. Without this, there is no guarantee for the permanence of free institutions, no hope of perpetuating self-government. Despotism finds its chief support in ignorance. Knowledge and freedom go hand in hand.

"In order that the people of the nation may think on these things, it is desirable that there should be an annual observance of Educational Week.

"Now, therefore, I, Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, do hereby proclaim the week beginning on the eighteenth of November, next, as National Education Week and urge its observance throughout the country. I recommend that the state and local authorities cooperate with the civic and religious bodies to secure its most general and helpful observance, for the purpose of more liberally supporting and more effectively improving the educational facilities of our country."

ACCIDENTS DUE TO FOG OFF THE BRITISH ISLES

London, Sept. 30.—A despatch from Queenstown says a tender with a hundred passengers on board for the steamer Scythia, was obliged to return to Queenstown owing to the collision between the Scythia and the Cedric, which obliged the Scythia to return to Liverpool.

Several minor shipping accidents happened during the week end and owing to the prevalence of dense fogs around the coasts of the British Isles.

The Cedric had called at Cork between six and seven o'clock this morning and landed passengers. She proceeded and was off Tuskar when she came into collision with the Scythia.

The steamship Moorfawl, which runs between Cork and Fishguard, is reported to have struck a rock off Ballycotton today during a fog. The passengers were put ashore. The vessel is reported to have been seriously damaged.

"During the dense fog Sunday morning the Scythia, outward bound, and the Cedric inward bound, came into collision off South Ireland, causing slight damage to the Scythia.

"As a measure of precaution the Scythia is returning to Liverpool with her passengers to enable a full examination to be made of the damage, which is all above the water line."

SEARCHING FOR LEADER OF HOUSE OF DAVID COLONY

Benton Harbor, Mich., Sept. 30.—(By the A. P.)—State police aided by Berrien county deputies invaded the House of David Colony here early today in a fruitless search for Benjamin Purnell, missing head of the cult, sought on a warrent charging him with a statutory crime.

The raiding party consisted of more than 50 state police, deputy sheriffs and newspapermen. They reached the colony before daylight after throwing a cordon about the place and posting guards of all highways leading to it. They trooped through the halls and corridors of Shiloh house, the temple home of Purnell. They poked into the basement and attic, seeking subterranean tunnels, sealed rooms and secret passages through which Purnell's accusers charged he flitted when officers of the law sought him. No trace of mysterious passages or trap doors was discovered. There was little of the bizarre luxury reputed to exist in Shiloh house and there was no sign of "King" Benjamin.

Accompanying the raiding party were Gladys Bamford Rubel and Ruth Bamford Reed, former members of the colony who have brought serious charges against the missing cult leader. The girls, familiar with the interior of Shiloh house, guided the raiding party through its various rooms.

GOV. WALTON TO PREVENT ELECTION IN OKLAHOMA

Entire Force of Arms of the State Will be Thrown Into the Field on Tuesday to Curb Rioting That Might Result From Closing of the Polls—Besides the 5,000 Guardsmen 75,000 Volunteer Militiamen Will be Called Upon to Cope With Any Emergency That Might Develop.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 30.—(By the A. P.)—The entire force of arms of the state will be thrown into the field at which a measure would be submitted providing a way for the legislature to consider impeachment charges against Governor J. C. Walton, and to curb rioting that might result from closing of the polls, it was announced by the governor tonight.

The governor said that mobilization orders for the entire Oklahoma National Guard, numbering approximately 5,000 men, had been issued today and that tonight 75,000 volunteer militiamen will be called to designate strategic centers for an emergency. He declined to reveal details of the mobilization plans.

In addition the executive said that he had instructed his special corps of secret service operatives, which he said numbered 25,000 men, to assist regular county authorities to keep polls closed.

Meanwhile, plans directed by W. D. McBee, member of the state house of representatives and other legislative opponents of the executive, went forward rapidly to ensure an attempt by the public to vote. Following a proclamation early today by the governor postponing the election, the leaders of the movement to override him established communication by telegraph and telephone with every county in the state, and tonight they announced that meetings were in progress in virtually all sections at which speakers were urging citizens to attempt to vote in defiance of the governor's proclamation.

Simultaneously the governor declared that he was on the verge of proclaiming more stringent martial law throughout the state.

"I have been very patient," he said. "But one more crack and I am going to put this state under martial law that will be martial law. I am going to make them go to bed at six o'clock and there will be very few passes issued after that hour.

"I have no doubt there will be many vacant houses in Oklahoma soon."

The executive made it plain that only the civilian arm of the enforcement machinery, consisting of regular county officials and his secret service operatives, would be used to prevent the casting of ballots and that the military would be held in reserve for use in event of rioting that might result from the closing of the polls.

He explained that he did not intend to order the arrest of persons seeking to vote. The whole action, he said, would consist in keeping the polls closed.

"There may be bloodshed" he asserted, "but there will be no election."

"This is my election. I called it and I certainly have the right to postpone it. Furthermore, it would be illegal to holde it now for the reason that the law has not been complied with through proper publication of the questions to be voted on."

The executive declared that D. C. McAlister, secretary of the state election board by whose orders machinery of the election was put in motion, was "playing with the klan crowd."

Mr. McAlister, following the announcement of the governor's proclamation, declared he was powerless to stop the work that had been started, and that if the election was to be prevented the burden would be on the governor alone.

Goveror Walton again bitterly assailed the Oklahoma press, declaring that the opposition of newspapers to his programme in the state was alone responsible for conditions in the state.

"If the Muskogee Phoenix, The Oklahoma City Oklahoman and its echo, The Oklahoma City News, and The Tulsa Tribune had been locked up and the keys to their doors thrown in the river six weeks ago, we would not be having trouble in Oklahoma today," he asserted.

"If there is bloodshed you can lay it at their door and there may be bloodshed, although I dread to say it."

Mr. McAlister could not be located for a statement tonight. Upon his earlier declaration that he was powerless to stay the election, after having put the machinery in final action several newspapers in the state printed extra editions this afternoon advising citizens that the election would be held.

BUSINESS UNCERTAINTY IS REFLECTED IN MARKETS

New York, Sept. 30.—(By the A. P.)—Restlessness and irregularity in the markets of last week were interpreted in financial quarters as reflecting uncertainty over the course of business. Most observers agreed that while a good volume of industrial activity is in prospect this fall, the pickup from midsummer dullness has been no more than what might be expected on a seasonal basis, and that a return to the high rate of last spring is unlikely. The view prevails that the spring boom represented urgent buying to replenish stocks which had been depleted during the depression of 1921, and that the extraordinary volume of goods which is now being carried by the railroads is made up largely of deliveries of orders placed at that time.

Nevertheless, it is widely held that stocks of goods are moderate, that consumption is high, and that the credit position is comparatively easy. In these important particulars the situation differs radically from that of 1919 and 1920. Business men have shown unusual caution in making commitments and reports from banking circles indicate that great liquidity has been maintained in the working capital position.

While business prospects are fairly good, brokerage houses feel that they are not particularly promising to encourage renewed public participation in the stock market. And with public participation reduced commissions naturally are severely diminished, a condition which creates pessimism in the brokerage fraternity.

2,700,000 PUBLIC SERVANTS ON THE NATION'S PAYROLL

New York, Sept. 30.—One person out of every twelve over 16 years who are gainfully employed in the United States is on the public payroll, and as a result, the American people are paying them nearly four billion dollars a year in salaries, it was declared in a statemet made public today by the National Industrial Conference Board. The board based its figures on the census of 1920.

The board has prepared a report on the nation's taxation problem and the magnitude of the country's public payroll cost to every man, woman and child in the United States of $34 a year.

The statement says: "The annual cost of salaries paid directly to active and inactive government employees is $91 a person over 16 years of age gainfully employed, who comprise, in the last analysis, the large body of taxpayers of the nation."

Exclusive of pensioners there are 2,700,000 public servants on the nation's payroll, the board declared. Pensioners and other inactive persons were said to number 670,000.

There will be contests for the offices of assessor, first selectman, collector of taxes and the school committee. Piche for the office of collector of taxes, the best paying of the various offices of the towns. Another hot contest is expected between Lawrence S. Casey, democrat, and F. Louis Hall, republican, for the three-year term for assessor. Russell A. Andrews, democrat, is pointed out as having a fine record for the term which he has just completed as first selectman but will find a strong opponent in Ernest P. Chesbro, the republican candidate. There are about five thousand five hundred voters in the town, according to the registrars' list.

The polls for the First district will be on the ground floor of the town building, corner Main and High streets; Second district, second floor old town building, Church street; Third district, voting booth located at the head of Jackson place, opposite Jackson street. Snow said that he was hurrying to get to the bedside of a sick child and may have speeded, after leaving the city limits but denied driving recklessly on the city streets. He said that he had been driving for ten years and had never been arrested. Judge Foss nolled the case on the payment of costs, which amounted to $5.15.

The breaking off of a whistle valve on a locomotive at Steele's crossing on the Providence road of the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad caused a noticeable stir in Willimantic, late Friday night, when the natives became excited over the unearthly sounds. The whistling was first heard between Jackson and Ash streets and when people ran to that section all was quiet and the distress signal traveled on, to the roundhouse. The engine was No. 113 and when found at the round house was enveloped in a cloud of steam. The engine was part of a freight train of thirty-five cars bound from Providence to the west. It was over an hour before the steam pressure was reduced enough to allow repairs to be made on the whistle. By that time people in Andover, Hop River and Willimantic had been awakened and it was some time before all had learned the true cause of the whistling.

Walter Champagne, an occupant of Brooklyn jail at present, has written to Chief Allyn McArthur that he will settle for a certain claim for damages as soon as released from jail. Champagne is a resident of Pomfret Center. On the night of September 3 a wagon driven by Joseph Hecklecki, R. F. D. No. 2, North Windham, was struck by an automobile driven by Champagne on Windham road. The latter agreed to pay $18 for the damage he had caused. The agreement was never carried out and in attempting to get in touch with Champagne Chief McArthur found that he was in Brooklyn jail. It was learned that he had been sent there from Danielson a few weeks ago for reckless driving.

William Pawlikowski, 7, who died Friday night at the home of his parents in Hampton, was born in Bloomfield, N. J., July 26, 1916, a son of Bernard and Mary Kopecs Pawlikowski. The funeral services were held at the grave in Litchfield cemetery, Hampton, Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Arrangements were in charge of Avery & VanZandt.

On the charge of embezzlement preferred by his father, Herman Prag, proprietor of the Modern Shoe Store at 748 Main street, Fred Prag, 16, was arrested Saturday noon by Chief of Police Allyn McArthur. For some time the young man has been left in charge of a branch store of the company in the basement of the Hurley-Grant block, corner of Railroad and Main streets. The amount of embezzlement is placed at $75 and is said to have been paid out for gambling debts. The young man is being held at the station house and his case will be heard this (Monday) morning.

At the home of Miss Mary Cummings, Windham Road, a miscellaneous shower was tendered Miss Alice Johnson recently by the girls of the winding department of the thread company, in honor of her approaching marriage with John F. Regan. The house was decorated in a color scheme of pink and lavender. Present were Miss Helen Johnson, Mrs. Charlotte Johnson, Mrs. Charles Geer, Mrs. Charles Close, Mrs. Grace Winters and Misses Doctina and Leona Normandin, Alma Berard, Isabelle Pepin, Yvonne Bellargon, Cora LaRue, Mildred, Mary and Cathleen Cummings and Dorothy Cox. Miss Johnson was given a handsome hand-painted picture.

The motor vehicle operator's license of Alfred Cote, 22 Valley street, is suspended from September 28th, according to a communication received by Chief McArthur, Saturday morning, from the office in Hartford.

Announcement has been made at the Holland Silk company and the Windham Silk company offices that these plants will start on winter schedule this (Monday) morning, the working hours to be from 7.30 a. m. to 12 m., and 1 to 5.15 p. m. and on Saturdays from 7.30 to 11.45 a. m.

Mrs. Grace Ackerman of New York has purchased the Dingwell residence at Hebron and expects to make it her summer home.

Charles Currier, one-armed, and a resident of Willimantic for the past four weeks, was arrested Saturday evening by Officer Arthur Hurley on the charge of being drunk. Currier was rather disturbed about being arrested and an additional charge of breach of the peace was near to being tacked on. His case is scheduled to be taken up in police court this (Monday) morning.

Andrew Yuschalk of Franklin was arrested Saturday evening by Deputy Sheriff Hoxie of Lebanon on the charge of intoxication and breach of the peace. Yuschalk was locked up at the local police station for a hearing before the Franklin town court today (Monday).

The chief's private headquarters at the local police station has been dusted out and opened up to the sunlight, after several years of darkness and disuse. The room has been repainted, the fine furniture varnished and a new carpet laid. Chief Allan MacArthur has purchased little odds and ends for his office and in the future, private business will be carried on there.

While tramping through the woods on the bank of the Shetucket river, about a mile and a half west of Bingham bridge, on the old Windham Center road, John J. Hoey, of 25 Godfrey street, found a young dark brown colored cow mired in the river Sunday morning. The animal was only a few feet from shore but three of its legs were sunk in the mud and the fourth leg was twisted under the root of a tree. The young cow was alive but showed the results of exhaustion and exposure. Mr. Hoey secured the help of E. F. Kramer, of Windham road and the two men worked hard for several hours in an attempt to release the beast, but were unsuccessful. Later in the afternoon assistance was secured and with the aid of block and tackle the animal was pulled from the mud to the dry bank. There were no signs of broken bones but the cow was in such a condition that it was deemed best to have it shot and relieved of its sufferings. Up to late Sunday afternoon the owner of the animal had not been found and the Willimantic police and Frank P. Fenton of the humane society were notified.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES.

Homesick.

Yes, it's nice out in th' country,
Where you never hear a gong,
An' there ain't no big policeman
Tellin' you to hop along.
Still, theres times—out in th' country—
When you'd like to hear a clang,
An' your ears git kind o' hungry
Fer th' whistle of Th' Gang.

Sure, it's nice out in th' country
'Cept at night, an' then—gee whiz!
You can't help but sit an' wonder
Just where all th' fellers is.
They is times, too—in th' country—
When th' owls start their harangue,
You git crazy fer a street light
An' th' comp'ny of Th' Gang.

Yes, it's nice out in th' country,
Where they have good things to eat,
But a sody at the drug store—
If you had one—would be sweet.
Folks, it's nice—out in th' country—
Where you never hear no slang,
But it's harder to interpret
Than th' language of Th' Gang.

Sure, it's nice out in th's country,
But inside me is a sign
That I'm gittin' kind o' homesick
Fer a little friend o' mine.
Yes-s-s, it's nice—out in th' country—
Still, I can't hold back th' pang
That she might be gittin' sticky
On some feller in Th' Gang.
—William Herschell, in Indianapolis News.

The Crow.

With rakish eye and plenished crop,
Oblivious to the farmer's gun,
Upon the naked ash tree top
The Crow sits basking in the sun.

An old, ungodly rogue, I wot!
For peached in black against the blue,
His fathers, torn with beak and shot,
Let woeful tints of April through.

The year's new grass, and golden-eyed,
The daisies sparkle underneath,
And chestnut trees on either side
Have opened every ruddy sheath.

But doubtful still of frost and snow,
The ash alone stands stark and bare,
And on its topmost twig the Crow
Takes the glad morning's sun and air
—William Canton.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE-AWAKES.

Most of the Wideawakes are probably lovers of flowers and know many of them as they grow in the fields or the gardens. It is much more interesting to visit the fields, the woods or gardens if we know the names of the flowers and from what families they come. To know their habits and their history makes a bond between us and them as it does between people. It always adds an interest to the flowers if we know what their names mean and how they got them.

The dahlia, which is at its height just now, but doomed to go with the first hard frost, came from Spain and was named after Dr. Dahl, a pupil of Linnacus.

The daisy is known as the Marguerite of France. It means innocence. It was the favorite flower of Queen Margaret, the wife of Henry VI.

Narcissus means egotism because of the legend about it. Narcissus was the son of the river god Cephisus and the nymph Liriope. He had never seen his own image until one day he saw it reflected in a clear fountain. He fell in love with his own likeness and died of grief. When they came to take his body away a purple flower sprang up which they called narcissus.

Hyacinth—Hyacinthus was a youth accidentally killed by the god Apollo, who was playing with quiots. He grieved over the boy's death and changed him into a flower. The meaning is constancy.

Geranium—Mohammed was supposed to have laid his shirt upon a mallow plant to dry after washing it and when he had taken the shirt up the mallow had changed into a geranium.

The lily is the emblem of France and denotes purity.

The rose is England's national flower. The white rose denotes secrecy or silence. The red rose denotes love, and the yellow waning love or jealousy.

The chrysanthemum is Japan's national flower, especially the yellow one. Its floral meaning is dejection. The white means truth, the red love.

The peony derives its name from Paeon, a physician, who used it to cure Plato when he was wounded by Hercules. It was believed by the ancients to have magic powers.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES.

Vacation Days.

Dear Uncle Jed: During our summer vacation I had a lot of fun. Most of the time I was either fishing, swimming, golfing or playing ball. I went to New Bedford and while I was there I had a lot of fun. I went to a place called Acushnet park, where all the amusements are, and then I went to a good beach called Fort Phoenix. We dove down for shells, played catch, and swam under water to see how far we could go, and many a time I came up with a noseful or a mouthful.

One day I went down to my uncle's farm, which is six miles from the city, and I had a very good time there. First we played football and after that we went to pick blueberries and by the time we got through it was time for supper. After that I played with two Airedale puppies, one called Snip and the other called Nellie. We came back about Aug. 20th, but I was very sorry to leave. When I got home I spent the rest of the time in going for apples and berries.

One day I took my uncle's dog, Dot, for a walk in the woods. We scared partridges, and I killed a snake four feet four inches long.

FRED WHITEHEAD, Age 13.

The Seagull.

Dear Uncle Jed: The Seagull was a large, two-masted vessel. The masts were thin and long, the sails bright as snow. The deck was clean as a polished knifeblade, while the crew was the best and cleanest around that point.

She set to sea one day with a number of persons on board besides the crew. But, for all that, she traveled pretty fast and not many a sloop was there that could win out in a race.

The sky was overcast; black clouds traveled across the sky with great rapidity; waves dashed up against the side of the ship and made her rock heavily.

The captain knew what was coming. He ordered the sails to be brought about, but it was too late. The storm broke! Thunder cracked; lightning flared almost incessantly.

Suddenly a terrible flash of lightning came and, with a crash, down went the foremast. Passengers screamed; bells tolled, and the wind howled; and, to add to the confusion, up came the mate to say that a leak was sprung in the hold.

The limit was reached; persons jumped overboard in a mad effort to escape from drowning; others lowered lifeboats; but, alas! before half of the passengers got out the ship went down.

JOHN GORMAN, Age 13.

What I Learned About Russia.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write what I have just learned about Russia.

Russia is a country in Europe. It is very cold there.

They sleep on benches too. The children sleep on a piece of felt on the floor.

The children in the cities build ice hills. They cut pieces of ice and then they put these on the top of a hill and pour water on them.

There is a city in Russia called Moscow. There is a large bell in Moscow. It has never been rung because it cracked when it was built. There is another bell in this city and it hangs in a church. It rings so loud that it sounds like thunder.

Yours truly,
EMIL WILLIAMS, Age 12.
Moosup.

Tardy Jack.

Dear Uncle Jed: Long long ago, in a far off land there lived a lad named Jack. He was reproached by every neighbor for his tardiness, but this had no effect on him. Still there came a time when he regretted this trait. He was now of age to work and was looking all over for a position. A friend of his having heard of a place, fixed a certain time for him to apply for the situation.

The day came and a half hour before the appointed time found Jack just rising. Of course in his hurry everything went wrong and when he arrived at his destination he found the position already taken. From that time on Jack improved and always remembered the proverb, "The more haste, the less speed."

GERTRUDE BECK, Age 10.

Stella's Dress.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my older sister told me a story, which I will attempt to repeat. It was about the class in which she was to graduate. All the girls had to make up their dresses. There was one girl, Stella, who was very slow in the sewing class, and also sewed with her left hand, which did not work very fast. Yet, to the surprise of all, she took the dress home and did a little each day, until it was completed. The day arrived for the girls to get ready. There was a great rejoicing. The girls looked over each one's dress, and remarked that Stella's dress was the most beautiful and the best of all the dresses. The story shows that the slow and steady win.

A Day at Storrs.

Dear Uncle Jed: Wednesday, August first, which was during farmers' week, one of my sisters, my mother and I spent the day at Storrs.

During the day I saw many interesting things. Among them were the hothouses. In one were mostly tropical plants, consisting of different kinds of palms, rubber trees, ferns, and many other kinds I can not name.

Another interesting thing was the girls' dormitory. Besides the dormitory there were some living rooms, a cooking and sewing laboratory.

I also enjoyed looking at the collection in the museum. There were stuffed birds of many species, besides numerous stuffed animals. There were also different kinds of stones, and Indian relics.

In the afternoon we saw the live stock parade. The first in the parade were the dairy cattle, then the beef cattle, and oxen. Then came two coal black horses followed by teams of horses drawing wagons. Drawing one wagon were three dapple grays abreast with a black colt on each side. There was also a sheep and poultry float. In the back of the poultry float were four colored hens with the sign, "Our Own Creation, 1923."

VIVIAN BUSHNELL, Age 12.
North Franklin.

The Sparrows.

Dear Uncle Jed: Once a little girl named Helen found a baby sparrow in the street. It was raining hard; so Helen brought it home. She made a little cage out of a box and put the sparrow in it. The little bird would not stay in the box, but perched on the edge. Helen saw this; so she made a perch by laying a stick across the box. The sparrow chirped and chirped all day. The next day, which was Sunday, Helen awoke with the chirping of the sparrow. It had flown from the box to the window sill and was pecking at the pane. Helen put it on her finger and opened the window. The little sparrow began to chirp. Soon other sparrows came flocking about. One, Helen thought, was its mother, because it was larger than the others and began to entice the little one away. Suddenly the flock began to move, and with it flew the little sparrow. Helen sat looking wistfully after it, but, though she was sorry to lose her little playmate, she knew that it would feel happier with the other birds.

MARGARET MURPHY, Age 12.

Buttercup.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my cow Buttercup. Buttercup saved the barn from burning one day.

One night I went after our cows and Buttercup did not come home. I thought she would be at the barn gate in the morning.

She very sensibly preferred to spend the sultry summer night in the sweet, dewy grass, and under the open sky.

So Buttercup had her way, and under the open sky.

So Buttercup had her way, and some time in the early morning she sauntered leisurely homeward.

Glad I'm not in there, she thought. How hot and stifling it is!

It was even hotter than usual. Why it was like a furnace blast! And what were those little red tongues licking under the doors and the cracks? The next minute I heard a loud Moo-o-o! under my window and the whole neighborhood was roused just in time to save the barn. Lots of people say cows are stupid but not after this.

I hope the Wide-Awakes will like my story.

HELEN LEWITZ, Age 9.
Fitchville.

A Little Kitty.

Dear Uncle Jed: Two little girls, one named Laura and the other named Dorothy were just coming up on Laura's back porch when they heard a cat crying. They looked under the porch and there was a little gray kitty. They took it across the street to Dorothy's house and into the kitchen, and Dorothy asked her mama to give it something to eat. Dorothy's mama took the kitty, who was meowing pitifully, and found the poor little kitty had an injured leg. She gave it milk, which it drank greedily, and made a bed for it in a box. The little kitty got well, and often slept in the closet. One night it disappeared and we have never seen it since, but we often long for our little gray kitty.

DOROTHY NODINE, Age 10.

A Good Deed.

Dear Uncle Jed: Jack was a bright boy about 10 years of age. Although he was mischievous, he was kind to all dumb creatures.

One day Jack and his friends went to a picnic in the woods. Suddenly Dan, a friend of Jack's, came running toward the boys with something in his hands which proved to be a sparrow with a broken wing. Dan began to throw the bird up in the air and catch it again.

Jack said, "Dan, you just give that poor little creature to me."

"I will not," said Dan; "I found him and he belongs to me."

Jack grew very angry. If you don't give that bird to me I am going right home. Some girls were along also. One of them was Jack's sister, Grace. She was about a year older than Jack. Dan liked Grace and he would do anything for her.

"Don't mind what Jack says; give the bird to me," said Grace.

Of course, Dan couldn't refuse her and gave her the bird. When once she had the bird in her possession she gave it to Jack.

Jack took good care of the bird's broken wing and in a few weeks it was healed. The little creature was certainly happy to be free again. It showed its gratitude by perching on a limb of a tree and chirping. Every day it came for crumbs which Jack gave it.

HARRY ALTMAN, Age 13.

The Good Fairy.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day when Alice and Bessie were sitting on the lawn in front of their house they heard a queer noise. It came from a hole in the ground. Bess and Alice were just about to run away when up popped a little fairy.

"Do not be afraid, my children," said she. "I am a good fairy and I will let each one of you have a wish. Now," she said, turning to Bess, "What do you want?"

"I would like a little ring," and instantly it was on her finger.

"Now, what do you want?" she said to Alice.

"I would like a doll," and instantly it was in her arms.

At that moment they heard their mother calling and then they found it was only a dream. But their father when he came home that night had a little ring for Bess and a doll for Alice. And that made up for not having seen the good fairy.

RICHMOND ROBERTSON, Age 8.

A Doll's Life.

Dear Uncle Jed: In Helen Grey's nursery after everyone had gone to bed and the toys had power to talk, a doll said she would relate her life.

"I was made in a factory with many other dolls. I was made and dressed like another doll and sent to a shop in Paris.

"One day a rich little girl and her mother were passing and they looked into the window. The doll that was dressed like me was placed beside me in the window. The little girl said she would like us, so her mother bought us.

"When she got us home she said she would keep one and send the other to her cousin in America. She sent me and here I am.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT PICTURE FOR COLORING

"Here's a clothespin!" shouted Little Jack Rabbit.

"Wait a minute," announced Lady Love. "I must first get your pajamas out of the basket. I've only two front paws, although goodness knows, on wash day every lady bunny in Rabbitville could use four!"

"Never mind, mother, dear," laughed the bunny boy. "I'll lend you my front paws!"

"Dear, dear!" sighed Lady Love, "there's a hole in your undershirt—I declare, I must ask Grandmother Bunny over to tea to help me darn this week. How do you make so many holes in your clothes, I should like to know?"

"I don't make them," answered her little rabbit son. "They just come like all troubles!"

"Well, if one could mend troubles with needle and thread," laughed Lady Love, kissing the upturned face of her little rabbit boy bunny, "Old Man Trouble would make fewer calls on busy folks!"

Just then the little Black Cricket chirped loudly from the kitchen door. "The Lollypop stew is boiling over!"

"Gracious me!" cried Lady Love, dropping a clothespin and hopping up on the back porch and into the kitchen—but wasn't it lucky, only a tiny pink lollypop had bubbled over on to the nice clean little stove.

"Here, you can have it," said the little lady rabbit, handing it to her bunny boy before she set to work again pinning up the wash, "but don't get the clothespins sticky.—be careful, for I haven't time to wash the clothes over again—

"No, indeed,
'Twould never do
To wash them over
Tuesday, too!"

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

This is annual election and town meeting day. The polls will open in the town hall this morning at 8 o'clock, it being no longer necessary to insist that this means standard time, and they will remain open until 3 p. m. In that period many things can and will happen to the ambitions and aspirations of candidates on the various tickets. There are bound to be disappointments as well as realization.

At 3 o'clock the annual business meeting of the town will be held, and there is a long list of matters for the electors to pass upon. A large vote is anticipated today in view of the fact that there are three tickets in the field and there is more than ordinary interest in the candidates thereon.

Eddie M. John, 41 Mill street, Willimantic, was released from Brooklyn jail under bonds of $1,500, Sunday morning, after being held there from early Saturday afternoon following his arrest here in Danielson. John's car figured in a collision with a car owned by Frank J. Lynch of the Kimball hotel, Springfield, Mass., at the corner of Reynolds and Broad streets shortly after noon Saturday.

Following the crash, in which no one was injured, Mr. Lynch incensed over the occurrence in which his car had been damaged and the safety of the members of his party imperilled, swung a lusy right to John's jaw, and John promptly abandoned his car where it was locked with the Lynch car in the center of Broad street and ran off across the park. It was nearly an hour afterwards before he was apprehended and in the custody of State Officer Merrill Keith.

The Lynch car, with Mrs. Lynch driving, her husband at her side and their children in the tonneau, was coming down Reynolds street off the Providence route when John's car flashed across Reynolds at high speed, going north. There was a grinding of brakes and a desperate effort to avoid a collision, but the cars struck, the left front fender on the Lynch car crumpling up and it locked under the right rear fender of the Lynch car.

Search of John's car, by Officer Keith unearthed two soda bottles containing what appeared to be some home made brand of intoxicant. John now faces a particularly difficult situation in view of the fact that, for the second time, he will have to face charges of operating a motor vehicle while he was under the influence of liquor and of operating a car while his license to do so was suspended, this being a part of the penalty inflicted upon him when he was previously arrested and prescnted in court.

Ernest Harper, motorcyclist of Natic, R. I., was probably fatally injured Sunday morning on the state highway between Sterling and Moosup when the machine he was riding plunged at high speed head-on into an automobile owned by Bert Constantine of Moosup. Witnesses of the affair say that Harper was hurled twenty feet in the air when the collision occurred and that when he came down he struck on the top of the automobile and fell from there onto the hood of the car. His motorcycle was demolished. He was attended by Dr. W. W. Adams of Moosup and then rushed to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam in a car bearing a Massachusetts registration that happened along. Harper was en route from his home town to the motorcycle hill climbing contest at Willimantic when the accident occurred.

Saturday afternoon at 2.30, at the Jacob's home on Broad street, funeral services for Mrs. F. A. Jacobs were conducted by Rev. Walter Williams of the Westfield Congregational church, of which Mrs. Jacobs was a well known and active member for many years. Following the service, attended by relatives and friends, burial was in West field cemetery, the committal service conducted by Rev. Mr. Williams. The casket was covered with a mound of flowers. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The condition of threse injured in the collapse of a section of bleachers at the boxing exhibition in the town hall, Friday evening, reported Sunday, in the cases of those who had to be removed to hospitals for treatment, to be surprisingly satisfactory. Albert Cardinal of the West Side, Danielson, appears to be the worst hurt. He is at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam and has a badly injured leg. Albert Malboeuf, also of Danielson and at the hospital in Putnam, has an injured shoulder, but it is anticipated he will be discharged from the hospital this week. John Youngblood, the third Danielson man injured in the accident and at the Day Kimball hospital, is not seriously hurt.

Abner Barsume, patient at Backus hospital in Norwich, where Benjamin Mandell, also of that city is a patient and not seriously hurt, was reported as resting comfortably and with no apparent serious injury other than a wrenched back.

Promoter Frank Barber of the Casino Amusement company, visited the injured at the hospitals in Putnam and Norwich Saturday. Others of those who were hurt, but not in need of hospital attention, were all reported to be doing well. The majority of the injured suffered scalp wounds or cuts on the face.

A tribute to their courage is due the more than 500 men who were in the hall and did not figure in the collapse of the bleachers. A few words of admiration against the danger of getting panicky in such a dangerous situation kept them sitting as quietly in their seats during the height of the excitement as though they were watching an ordinary event. In the face of such a terrifying situation their restraint was remarkable and a testimonial to their courage. Once started into a stampede what has happened in theatres and halls th country over many times in the past would have been quickly duplicated.

In Justice Frank M. Bedard's court on the West Side, town of Brooklyn, Saturday afternoon Lee M. Ferrie of West Barrington, R. I. was fined $25 and costs, a total of $37.43, for reckless driving. Ferrino was speeding along at a rate of nearly 40 miles an hour in a big and powerful machine when he was apprehended by a state officer and ordered into court.

The engagement of Mrs. Florence Potter Jackson, of Columbia, Mo., to J. Kimball Hargraves, outside representative of the Danielson Trust company, was announced recently at a week end party given by Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Marler at Pleasant View. Mrs. Jackson and Mr. Hargraves being numbered among the guests. They received a number of beautiful gifts. Mrs. Jackson, who has been spending the summer here, is now in Missouri, but will return here at an early date.

Today (Monday) will be marked by a material reduction in the number of persons at the county jail in Brooklyn, for nearly a score of Putnam and Willimantic men and women who have been doing sentences of 15 days will complete that period today and be released.

Friday night's accident in the town hall will undoubtedly influence many as to how they will vote at the town meeting this afternoon on the matter of leasing the town hall hereafter for professional sports. It was pointed out, however, that bleachers collapsed once before in the town hall, at a basketball game, and that, under similar circumstances would collapse as they did Friday evening at a basketball game of Sunday evening gathering. It was all a matter of construction and materials and in no way related to the nature of the exhibition to be staged.

With the reversion Sunday to a uniform method of recording time in Eastern Connecticut there came a change in the trolley connection arrangement at Central Village. Sunday the cars leaving Danielson 20 minutes after even hours began to make connections at Central Village for Norwich. During the summer cars leaving Danielson 20 minutes after odd hours have been connecting.

The Murphy shows which have been holding a carnival off Dyer and Franklin streets during the past week moved out Sunday for Taftville, where they will spend a week before closing for the season at the final stand at the Stafford fair.

At the masses at St. James' church Sunday, Rev. John Roux, M. S., announced a three weeks' period of missions to be held at the church during the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Heneault, the former's father and his brother, John, of New London, have returned from a four weeks' motoring trip in Canada.

PUTNAM

John Youngblood, one of the three men injured in the accident at Danielson, Friday evening, when a row of bleachers fell during a sparring exhibition, who was brought to the Day Kimball hospital, was discharged Saturday. Albert Cardinal and Albert Malbboeuf are still patients there. Cardinal has a fractured leg and Malbboeur has a dislocated shoulder.

The Adams Manufacturing Company of North Scituate, R. I., over a year ago purchasers of the Nightingale Mill on Main street, has removed most of its machinery to Putnam and, according to Supt. Albert Owler, the plant will be in operation within a month. The plant is one of 264 looms and 10,000 spindles. The mill is equipped to take cotton in the bals and turn it out as finished product—buckram, crinolines and mosquito netting being the principal fabrics. Since its purchase, the Adams company has enlarged and remodeled the mill and erected an office building facing Main street and has about 40 tenement houses for the accommodation of employes.

Today (Monday) election day, a large vote is anticipated, because of the contest for tax collector. The republican nominee is Attorney Irving H. Miron, while the democratic candidate is Joseph L. Ryan. It is predicted that the republicans will carry the entire ticket as Putnam is normally a republican town by a safe margin. However, the contest for the office of tax collector assures a large vote being polled and much work being done until the polls close at 6 o'clock. At the republican caucus, one of the largest ever held in Putnam, Attorney Miron beat Tax Collector Attorney Ernest C. Morse for the nomination.

Dr. Charles E. Baker, doctor of hygiene and physical culture, known as the man who kept William Howard Taft physically fit during Mr. Taft's four years in the White House, will be in Putnam next Wednesday and, under the auspices of the Rotary club, will deliver three addresses. In the morning he will speak before the pupils of the high school on How to Make the Most of Life, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon he will speak to women in Odd Fellows' hall on A Mother's Responsibility to Her Daughter, and in the evening at 7.30 o'clock in the same hall he will speak to fathers and sons on A Father's Responsibility to His Son. These lectures are public.

During the four years that Chief Justice Taft was in the White House Dr. Baker was his health adviser, and under his direction for an hour each morning Mr. Taft followed a system of exercises that kept him in splendid physical condition. For the six years following the close of the Taft administration Dr. Baker devoted his winters to lecturing to the general public under the auspices of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. Dr. Baker first came to the attention of the Rotary clubs when he delivered a lecture, A Father's Responsibility to His Son, before the International Rotary convention at Salt Lake City in 1919. In 1920 he began devoting his entire time to Rotary clubs.

The drive for a quota of $1,000 for the Japanese sufferers was wound up most successfully Saturday in Putnam. Thompson, Woodstock and Pomfret had already exceeded their quota of the $1,000 total. Among local contributors were the S-A Amusement Corporation, $15 and Putnam Lodge of Elks, $25. The objective of Tag Day was a balance of $600 and, although the tabulation had not been completed up to late Saturday night, it is believed that the drive has gone over the top by a good margin.

Those who lent their support to Tag Day were: Mrs. George Twigg, Mrs. Walter Wheaton, Mrs. H. B. Wright, Mrs. Eugene Durocher, Miss Aline LeClair, Mrs. A. Newton Vaughan, Mrs. Edward Burt, Mrs. Frank D. Thayer, Mrs. Eugene Mignault, Mrs. Charles A. Thayer, Miss Emma Merriam, Mrs. Justin Greene, Mrs. Eben Holden, Miss Constance Russell, Mrs. Pierre Myers, Mrs. C. Russell Bowen, Miss Jennie Willis, Miss Gertrude Perry, Miss Clara Keller, Mrs. Walter Rich, Miss Lucy Farrows, Miss Mildred Bard, Miss Natalie Dion, Miss Abbie H. Keith, Mrs. Omer Milot, Mrs. George Bradley, Mrs. Jenevieve Letters, Miss Jenevieve Letters, Mrs. F. J. Matthieu, Miss Bernadette Cartier, Miss S. E. Clark, Miss Ellen Wheelock, Mrs. John E. Burnette, Miss Eva Eredette, Lillian Gosselin, Pauline Labossier, Mrs. Leo Delisle, Miss Elisabeth Hayward. Not only were tags sold on the streets in the business section but a thorough house-to-house canvass was made.

Within the next few days the last yard of cloth manufactured by the Nightingale-Morse Mills Incorporated will have been shipped from Putnam and the concern, in business in Putnam for the past half century, in one form or another, will have ceased to exist, as far as this city is concerned. The mills are closed down and the employes have been informed that their services are no longer required. A few men are at work boxing, baling and shipping the remainder of the cotton cloth taken from the looms and by Wednesday it is expected that the last employe will have left the plans.

The land and houses were sold last week to the L. A. W. Acheptance Corporation of this city and they are now being sold to individual purchasers. The mills, the Powhattan and the Morse mill, will be sold at public auction, unless disposed of at private sale.

When the property changed hands a little over a month ago, the purchasers, Edward Radding and B. Dexter Aldrich of Providence, announced that it was bought for resale and that unless sold in the entirety within thirty days would be parceled out as desired. After the thirty days elapsed 47 houses and over a hundred house lots were disposed of in one sale, leaving the two mills on the market. This does not include the valuable water privilege, which was not included in the sale.

It is intended to dispose of these mills to buyers who will operate them and that this may be accomplished is the desire of the business interests of Putnam who would deplore having the large factories remaining idle and the former employes out of work. Various interests have already examined the property and are interested, but as yet no deal involving the mills has been consummated. Unless the mills are sold to those who will operate them, it would seem that it will mean the removal from Putnam of a number of families who will be forced to seek employment elsewhere.

Fred Niblo's Production "Strangers of the Night" Now Showing at the Breed.

Fred Niblo has outdone all of his previous efforts in "Strangers of the Night," the screen version of Walter Hackett's stage success, "Captain Applejack," which opened at the Breed theatre last night. The man who directed "The Three Musketeers," "The Famous Mrs. Fair," and "Blood and Sand," has again turned out a great screen play. Working on the brilliant story of the timid Britisher who becomes a pirate and roams the Spanish Main, he has embellished it with beautiful photography, magnificent settings and a superb cast. The picture is presented by Louis B. Mayer, through Metro.

Spectators were thrilled by intense drama and swept into gales of laughter as Matt Moore, in the role of "Captain Applejack" fought through the mystery of the treasure hidden in his ancestral castle in Cornwall, and swaggered and swore aboard his pirate craft. Enid Bennett's blonde loveliness contrasted with Barbara La Marr's dark seductiveness as these two brilliant actresses portrayed the intrigue and romantic adventure of the demure English miss and the beautiful Russian spy. Robert McKim was at his best as the leader of the pirate mutiny, and others in the cast who stood out distinctively were Emily Fitzroy, Otto Hoffman, Thomas Ricketts and Mathilde Brundage.

Other picaures on the olll include the Pathe News and an Educational comedy.

Thomas Meighan's New Picture Heartily Received at the Broadway Theatre.

One of the finest photoplays of the current season is Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount starring vehicle, "Homeward Bound," which opened with great success at the Broadway theatre last evening. This is a picturization of the story, "The Light to Leeward," by Peter B. Kyne, produced under the direction of Ralph Ince.

Mr. Meighan, in the role of Jim Bedford, first mate of the Newport, brings his ship safely into port after the yellow-streaked captain has given the vessel up for lost during a severe storm at sea. In port, the captain takes all the credit and is rewarded by Rufus Brent, owner of the ship, with the captaincy of a new yacht that Brent has given his daughter, Mary, for a birthday present. Bedford, an old school chum of Mary's realizes the danger to the girl if she is to cruise under this fellow and so, threatening to expose the captain, assumes command of the yacht himself.

Matters do not progress far, however, before Bedford receives a wireless from Brent ordering him to return immediately and threatening to have him arrested on a charge of piracy. Consequently the proposed cruise comes to an abrupt end—but not so the picture, for Jim, continually chided about his career, by Mary, in taking an old hulk of a ship to Costa Rica encounters some real thrills. This would have been to Bedford's liking had not Mary seen fit to stow away on the schooner. The scenes following her discovery are most dramatic and include some of the most realistic water shots ever screened. Of course, old Brent is finally persuaded that Jim is good enough for his daughter but not until Bedford is forced to turn the tables upon him in a unique manner.

Mr. Meighan and Lila Lee share stellar honors in this creditable photoplay. Playing in support of the principals is an unusually capable supporting cast which includes Charles Abbe, William T. Carlton, Hugh Cameron, Weinberg, Maude Turner Gordon, Cyril Ring and Katherine Spencer. Jack Cunningham, who made Paramount's "The Covered Wagon," wrote the scenario in collaboration with Paul Sloante.

The short subject consisted of a Christie comedy and a News Weekly.

There will be four acts of B. F. Keith vaudeville at this theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Strand Treatre.

They told the story a long time ago about the farmer who, when he first saw a camel, declared "They ain't no such animal." Perhaps to say something of the same sort will be said about "Niobe," the water sprite, because this remarkable young woman, aside from being beautiful and talented otherwise, has been declared by scientific men to be the nearest approach to a human amphibian on record.

Fancy a girl going under and coming up talking and singing under the water so as to be distinctly heard by the audience. Yet that is merely one of the most remarkable performances of this genuine mermaid. Quite calmly she exclaims that it is merely a matter of some natural ability in the water and persistent training. She posses a chest expension of six and one-quarter inches, and at the World's fair, by official timing, remained under the water four minutes and twenty seconds.

This is the feature attraction at the Strand theatre for the first half of this week.

The three other Keith acts consist of the following: Will J. Kennedy and Will F. Petrie in the comedy, "Hoosick Falls, New York." Jean La Crosse is California's favorite soprano. Martin and Walters are comedians.

Director Gasnier, entrusted by the Schulberg Studios with the largest production ever attempted by that organization, "Daughters of the Rich," now being shown at the Strand theatre probably has as long a list of successful productions to his credit as any picture director. This French director formerly piloted Otis Skinner through his screen version of "Kismet" and is particularly qualified to handle large and elaborate productions.

The "already arrived" players who make up the big cast of the picture include: Gaston Glass, Ruth Clifford, Stuart Holmes, Miriam Cooper, Ethel Shannon, Truly Shattuck and, Vola Vale.

Lahn's Toggery Shoppe to Move to New Location.

Owing to increased business making necessary to secure additional space for stock, Harry Lahn's Toggery Shoppe has secured the store at 162 Main street, next door to the present location.

About October 15th Mr. Lahn intends to occupy his new location and will carry his regular lines of high grade men's toggery, adding many new standard lines for the benefit of his established trade.

TODAY'S ELECTION.

Faced by the desirability of continuing good government and the importance of putting into office those who will be able to meet in a satisfactory manner the many problems that arise in the course of a year, the voters of Norwich should go to the polls today convinced of the merits of the candidates who have been put forward on the republican ticket and see that they are elected.

As in all elections this is a time when the women as well as the men should respond to their duty, when they should contribute to casting a representative vote and when all voters should give due heed to the best interests of the community. It is likewise a time when due concern should be given to getting out the vote that there may be expressed the sentiment of a large proportion of the voters.

Norwich has profited handsomely from the excellent town management it has been receiving. It cannot afford to experience any change in policy. For the good of the townspeople in general it ought not to. If the voters are alert to their welfare it will not. They will demand by their votes the election of those who are committed to economy and efficiency, to a businesslike administration of town affairs and to service to the whole community rather than to any particular class. This will be obtained by the election of the republican candidates as presented above.

While at the polls it should not be forgotten that there is a constitutional amendment on which each and everyone should vote. This is a change that will contribute to better law making. It is a change that has long been needed and should be approved by a large vote.

Don't fail to go to the polls and vote, and vote right by pulling the republican lever.

WHERE CARE IS NEEDED.

When an auto driver crashes through a lowered crossing gate and puts his car in the path of a locomotive there is a loud cry to the effect that the only way to safeguard the highways is to remove the crossings.

That the removal of the crossings would make it impossible for such accidents to happen will be realized but that is by no means the only way they can be prevented. Of all the users of the highways it will be recognized that it is a very small proportion that has any trouble at the railroad crossings. In the rating of those who do it might not be so that they would be placed among the reckless. Many are reckless who have due respect for the dangers of the railroad crossing, but it will be noted that there are few instances where the auto is struck by the locomotive or the auto plunged into the engine that the driver of the car has been said to be exercising all possible care. This is particularly true of accidents which happen at crossings where there are flagmen, signals or gates.

All railroad crossings are disclosed to the highway users by signs and warnings a sufficient distance away to "stop, look and listen." At some crossings, tenders are on duty 24 hours, at others for varying hours, but during the greatest traffic periods, while powerful lights and bells are established to give warning of the approach of trains at others.

These are protective measures which if respected will prevent crossing accidents. It is the refusal to be guided by such that is responsible for too many of the fatalities. Care is what is needed at such places. It will be a long time befpre the crossings are all eliminated, if they ever are. In the meantime it is entirely possible to expect the users to display due care. If they do they will [illegible] men, disregard signs, bells or lights and they will not crash through gates.

THE SEAPLANE TROPHY.

Even though it was demonstrated in this country by the Wright brothers that heavier than air machines could fly attention has from time to time been directed to the fact that European countries have been making greater progress in the development of flying machines. They have put forth greater efforts and larger sums. The governments have authorized the expenditure of much more money. We furnished the idea and Europe has made the most of it.

Under a recognition of such facts it is a bit interesting to note that it was an American navy seaplane that won the Schnieder seaplane cup off the Isle of Wight, England, in an international contest. American seaplanes are built on different lines than those of European manufacture and not a little discouragement was offered for American success by the fact that the seaplane on which the greatest reliance had been placed met with an accident and was not able to enter the contest.

When, however, the race was won by the navy seaplane over a 200-mile course at a rate of better than 177 miles an hour, it establishes the supremacy of the American plane as to speed even though the British claim is that foreign machines are constructed to weather more severe conditions. Even with the favorite American plane out of commission the second as well as the first to finish was an American and trailing along ten minutes later was the British.

It is all an indication of the improvement that has been made by the American flying machines, all of which indicates that we have been mindful of the fact that on this side of the water that supremacy must not be allowed to stay on the other side. If the Schneider trophy remains here as long as the America's cup we are due for some interesting contests on this side of the Atlantic.

The polls will be open today in all districts from six o'clock in the morning until five o'clock in the afternoon.

THE LEAGUE AND ITALY.

Numerous supporters of the league of nations are now rushing to its defense and giving it the credit of adjusting the situation between Greece and Italy. They are calling attention to the fact that the council of ambassadors acted as the agent of the league and then insist that had the council not been available there would have been some other agency employed to do the job. That of course makes an interesting explanation. It looks as if there was no objection on the part of either country to league action, that it was in fact invited without opposition and that everything worked so smoothly that it could hardly be regarded as putting the league to any test.

It isn't to be forgotten, however, that such was not the case. Greece sought the services of the league, but Greece isn't a heavyweight as a nation. Italy in fact was even more strongly opposed to league action than Greece was for it and Mussolini let it be known that he would have nothing to do with the league, that Italy's honor had been attacked and it was none of the league's business. He insisted that the league was not competent and rather than accept any insistence that it was Italy would withdraw from the league.

It was then that the league fell back on the council of ambassadors. It offered a way out that permitted Italy to get just about what it demanded. There is satisfaction in the fact that no clash resulted but it cannot be regarded as being due to the work that the league of nations performed.

THE TEST IN GERMANY.

There are indications that the trouble in Germany is getting down to bedrock. Those who have been responsible for the conduct of that country are apparently now showing their hand in the outbreaks that are taking place. Their unwillingness to yield is as determined as ever, but that only brings the issue the more clearly before the people of that country.

For a long time it has been coming. Efforts to put it off have consisted in appeals and threats to other countries. As long as some progress was being made in getting responses thereto the break was postponed. When the stonewall of French resistance in the Ruhr was encountered there was a different story. Then the do or die policy was tried and found wanting and now it settles down to a test of strength between those who are beaten and will not admit it and those who know they are beaten and desire to shape their course accordingly.

This struggle between the German factions is unfortunate. It is time, nevertheless, for the government to manifest its strength and for the people to realize that there is no place there for communism or bolshevism. There can be no faltering on the part of those at the helm. Their duty lies straight ahead and the indications are that they are now charting a safe course, the wisdom of which should appeal to those in that country who really have the welfare of Germany at heart.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

The use of an electric fan will facilitate the drying of fruits and vegetables.

Silver which has been stained with egg or vegetables may be cleaned by wetting, dipping in fine salt and rubbing with a wet cloth.

Grease clogs the sink pipes. Let water from boiling hams or beef cool and remove the grease before pouring the water down the sink.

You will find it a great convenience to have a narrow shelf built above your sink in which to keep vegetable brushes, scouring soap and such accessories.

Left-over rice makes an excellent addition to vegetable salads. Combine it with celery, string beans, or apple.

Dried and left over bits of cheese should be grated and put in a covered glass jar. They can be used for macaroni, potatoes, etc.

Dried beans and peas should be soaked in cold water for eight or more hours, then rinsed in fresh water and put on to cook in cold water.

When making candy you will find that an agate or iron pan is less liable to burn than tin.

When baking bread regulate your oven so it will be hot for the first period, but gradually decrease the heat.

Be sure that the raisins and currants you use in your cakes and puddings are perfectly clean, then sprinkle with flour so they will not fall to the bottom of the dessert while cooking.

If you wish to varnish the wall paper behind your sink so you may wash it frequently, make a solution of an ounce of gum arabic, three ounces of glue and a bar of soap dissolved in a quart of water.

If water encountered on the camping trip seems to be questionable, add a pinch either of magnesia of prepared chalk to a glass full. Let the water settle and drink only two-thirds down. Vinegar, lime or lemon juice may be added to allail.

THE DISAPPEARING TABLE

The extra kitchen table is like the extra chair in the small living room—when it is needed it is needed badly, and when not in use it is abominably in the way. In the ideal kitchen, which is the one requiring the fewest steps, there simply isn't room for the emergency table. Yet there are times when we stand helplessly in the middle of the room with our hands full, wondering where in the world we are going to put down the soiled salad plates, the tray of glasses to be filled with fruit cocktail, or the after-dinner coffee cups. Oh, for another table!

The solution to the problem is a collapsible table, which clamps back against the wall when not wanted and comes forward at a touch to serve as an extra table on which to mix up biscuit, arrange the dessert glasses or hold the debris from the early courses of the dinner table.

While this disappearing table can, of course, be fastened to the wall in any available space, it is especially unnoticeable if it fills in the vacancy below a cupboard or beneath the cook-book shelf. Hinged to a cleat in the walls, or even to the bottom of the cabinet or to the shelf, it may be drawn forward and upward, its hinged support fans into place on the floor, and there you are. A wooden button should be screwed on underneath, to hold the wooden support in firm position.

This little vanishing table may be used by two persons as a breakfast table on occasion.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Always speak low but clearly in the presence of a sick person. Never talk in his sight, but out of hearing, as he will invariably imagine he himself is being talked about.

All sorts of bites and stings whether from wasps, bees or hornets, should be sucked to remove as much poison as possible. Then bind a slice of acid fruit, apple, tomato or grape, to the wound. If the pain is very severe wet a folded cloth in alcohol or vinegar and bind to the wound.

When giving castor oil try beating it up with the white of an egg; this renders it entirely tasteless and quite palatable.

For permanent improvement, scrub the elbows nightly as directed, then rub into them thoroughly either olive oil or flesh building cold cream or warm cocoa butter. Twice a week, if the skin seems loose and baggy, rub them with any good astringent—wet starch paste or the white of an egg will do, or even toilet water.

EASILY MADE VANITY TABLE

When a woman has learned the secret of remodeling and redecorating her furniture, she can revel in fixing up her home to her heart's content. The vogue for hand-painting a piece of furniture started by being a necessity, and has ended up by becoming a favorite pastime. Nowadays, many women are even making their own furniture. One of the daintiest dressing tables imaginable can be made out of a big, orginary packing box. Simply remove one side of the box, install a few shelves, glue some material over the whole thing and trim it with decorative ribbons. This may be done by crossing two six-inch bands of satin ribbon over the top, tying a bow on each corner and allowing streamers to hang to the floor. Edge the curtains gathered across the opening of the box with shirred ribbon. If contrasting colors are used, the effect will be still prettier. Violet and lemon yellow, for example, combine to make an exquisite boudoir color arrangement. Cover the wooden frame of an ordinary mirror with ribbon, suspend it over the disguised box with ribbon streamers and, behold! you have a vanity table fit for a princess.

All of the toilet accessories on the table can also be ribbon-trimmed. The most satisfactory way to put the material on the wooden box and the ribbon on the mirror and toilet articles is to use glue. The best quality of liquid glue is perfectly safe and is easier and quicker than sewing.

TO CLEAN CURRANTS

To clean dried currants quickly place them in an enameled colander with a teaspoonful of flour; put the colander on a plate or paper and rub the currants lightly. All stalks and soiled flour will pass through the holes of the colander, leaving them quite clean.

UNWASHED PANS

Leaving unwashed pots and pans around to dry or simmer on the stove is one way to invite disagreeable kitchen odors to your home. A little soda and hot water put into every pan as soon as it is emptied keeps it in good shape until you are ready to wash it.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Henna, green and Copen blue are favored colors in little girl's coats of soft pile fabrics with matching hats and leggings.

The waistline, which after all is approaching normal, is now likely to be outlined with a band of black. Some of the newer frocks have a waistband of black velvet with long ends.

Tartan plaid school dresses are exploited in a 5th ave. window display, modeled with straight lines and trimmed with heavy linen collars and cuffs.

Dresses of wool burlap are introduced in another 5th ave. window in acacia green, trimmed with bright blue and green grosgrain ribbon.

Infants' coats of broadcloth are trimmed with hand smocking. Unusual model is developed in box pleats, with hand embroidery design.

The tiny little toque is much seen. It is usually made of taffeta in some such changeable combination as silver and dawn, with one large flower of the material.

Side by side with the Chinese note, we have the Spanish. The latter is expressed in deep flounces, fringes and a vast deal of lace.

FOR SLIP COVERS THAT REMAIN

The advent of autumn, summer covers on chairs and couches are ordinarily removed by most housekeepers. If one wishes to keep them on through the winter, however, as is frequently the case where the furniture is a bit worn, a note of color and newness may be achieved by shortening the slips so that the legs of the sofa or chairs are visible and adding around the bottoms a box-pleated frill of six-inch ribbon. Cushions made of ribbon harmonize with these frills and placed in the chairs or sofas will do much toward making a long familiar room seem new.

If a long narrow table graces the room, the ribbon scheme may be furthered by adding a table runner made of alternate rows of linen and ribbon and edged all around with narrower ribbon shirred in the center.

FOR A BLACK GOWN

Renovate a black dress by rubbing it well with the water in which you have scalded a handful of young ivy leaves. Scald with about one quart of water, and let them stand until cold. Then take the article to be treated, place it on a table and with a piece of black rag rub the liquid well on. Then hang out to dry.

LAUNDRY HINTS

If there are many children to iron for, a small size skirt board and several sizes in sleeve boards will save time.

Wash new brown or black silk stockings in salt water before the suds touches them. The salt will keep the color fresh.

Voiles and dimities will appear much more like new material if rinsed in borax water instead of starch water.

Cover shirt and sleeve boards first with woolen cloth and then with removable muslin slips with tapes that allow them to be tied securely in place.

Except in the case of very soiled clothing, extended soaking is a hindrance rather than a help. An hour is enough to dissolve dirt and will not set in all through the garment.

COLOR IN DRAPERIES

Overdraperies may be of any color for a given room, and they may very well be of a different color in each room in the house. As for materials, there is an almost limitless choice, so that almost any purse and any personal preference ought to be suited. Cretonne is always gay and attractive, and so are many kinds of silk and gauze of the soft variety that does not crack. Indian head, which comes in many colors and shades all sunfast, is good, as is sateen, especially for making bands and borders of contrasting colors. Terry cloth is inexpensive and attractive and also makes splendid portieres, as it is alike on both sides and thus requires no lining.

Be sure to get good fixtures, if you hope to have any comfort and pride in the inside effect of your curtains. You will need double or triple rods, which you may obtain in one combination fixture. If you like a top valance as well as side drapes, you will need the triple rods—one for the glass curtain of net, one for the side curtains, and one for the top valance. The double or triple fixtures are just as easy to put up as a single rod, and the advantage is that they deface the woodwork no more than a single fixture would and that all the rods always stay parallel.

FOR A BRIDGE PRIZE

When offering a bridge prize becomes an event of regularity, selecting an appropriate one becomes a problem. A useful and inexpensive gift is a ribbon-covered needle case. Glue a piece of ribbon to the back of a leather or pasteboard needle case, using the best quality glue. Use narrow ribbon to match to tie the case together.

A pair of book ends, with ribbon glued on in a similar manner, also makes a very attractive and welcome bridge prize. Dark brocaded ribbon is rich-looking for book ends designed for the library table, while satin ribbon in soft, paste shades is more appropriate for the bedroom or boudoir.

Ribbon glued to a wooden dust shield for a telephone also makes a nice gift and can be easily made.

A SIMPLE POLISH

The best remedy for scratched furniture is a mixture of beeswax and turpentine, the former melted in the turpentine until it is as thick as sirup. Pour a little onto a piece of woolen cloth and rub it well into the scratched part. Then polish quickly with dry flannel, and the marks will almost disappear.

CONCERNING WOMEN

More than 100 women in Kansas are in active law practice.

Miss Margaret H. Kidd is Scotland's first woman lawyer.

Though she is only 19 years of age, Miss Lois McGaughy, a high school girl of Vernon, Texas, is a successful artist.

In 1822 Massachusetts admitted women to the bar and in 1904, 22 years later, the Massachusetts Association of Women Lawyers was organized with 40 members.

The famous ranch of Jack London, located in Mexico, is managed by a woman—Mrs. Eliza Shepard, who has sole control in the management of the ranch and the hundreds of men employed there.

SAFEGUARDING GLASS

Cover the shelf where expensive glassware is kept with a linen pad. Cut the line twice the shelf width, hem it all around, double it and lay a sheet of white wadding just the shelf size between.

TIRED BACKS

The housewife should practice doing most of her work with her back straight. Raise the sink or table to the point where the body need not bend or reach to the work.

Baked Chocolate Custard—Scald two cupfuls of milk with one stick of cinnamon an inch long. Melt one ounce of chocolate. Add three tablespoonfuls of sugar and one tablespoonful of boiling water. Stir until this is smooth, then add to the scalded milk. Beat two eggs slightly, add two tablespoonfuls of salt. Combine the mixtures, then strain into slightly buttered cups. Set the cups in a pan of hot water and bake in a slow oven until firm, which may be determined by running a silver knife through the custard. If the knife comes out clean the custard is done.

Garden Casserole of Beef.—A pound of roundsteak cut into squares; a piece of fresh suet, half a pound of young carrots three shallots (or two small red onions); half the foliage from a parsley plant, a parsley root peeled. Fry the fat from the suet in the saucepan, salt, pepper, cover and allow to brown on both sides. Add the carrots cut into rings, the parsley root and leaves fine, a level teaspoon of salt and enough boiling water to cover almost the meat and vegetables. Cook for an hour over a slow fire, or for an hour and a half in the fireless cooker. Thicken with a soupspoonful of flour mixed in cold water. Serve with a wreath of fresh parsley as a garnish.

The polls will be open today in all districts from six o'clock in the morning until five o'clock in the afternoon.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Samuel Gompers, who will preside over the American Federation of Labor convention opening at Portland, Ore., has been the president of the Federation since 1882, with the intermission of one year. He aided in founding the organization, he has guided its course for more than a generation, and often through stormy seas of radical attack from within and reactionary plotting from without. During the late war he held organized labor steady in its support of the nation and of the Wilson Administration during the inevitable adjustments which the condition of the times forced upon capital and labor alike. Mr. Gompers, though born in England, is of Dutch-Jewish stock. Learning the trade of cigar making in England, he came to the United States while still in his teens, and his first service in the cause to which his life was to be dedicated was in helping to organize the first union of his trade in the city of New York.

Knowing that John knew her name as well as her own she said jokingly: "Well, I know it is the custom to change your name every two or three years, but mine is still the same. It guess it has grown to be a habit with me."

John wrote her name with a flourish, then lifting his head, he said proudly, "My mother has the same habit, and it's a good one I'll tell the world."

FURTHER JAPANESE RELIEF PLANNED BY CATHOLICS

At the 7.30 mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday morning, the rector, Rev. M. H. May, read a circular letter from Bishop Milan requesting the parishioners to contribute as generously as their means will permit to a collection next Sunday for the Roman Catholic missions in stricken Japan. Bishop Nilan referred to the prompt and systematic first aid through the Red Cross, to which nearly every Catholic had contributed, urging now as generous donations, that the Japanese Catholic missions may be helped. Father May stated that it was the way of his people to give generously to help those in distress—Catholic or non-Catholic, Christian or infidel—expressing the conviction that each will make an effort to give next Sunday, that there may be in the hands of bishops, priests and nuns in Japan ready means of aiding all sufferers through the recent calamity. He expects to have a priest who has labored in Japan to preach at all the masses Sunday next.

It was the nineteenth Sunday after Pentecost, the epistle being Ephesians 4: 32-38, and the gospel Matthew 22: 2-14, the latter the parable of the marriage feast. Father May developed the thought that his people should be ready, not alone for this annual invitation to the marriage feast of the king's son, for which guests must be clothed in the wedding garment of grace and charity and mercy, but should be ready at all times.

The weekly confessions and communions at this church constantly increase, and Father May required the assistance of Rev. Myles P. Galvin in administering the holy eucharist.

MADE MONTREAL REPORT TO COUNTY A. O. H. AUXILIARY

A report made by County President Mrs. Julia Brock of this city on the national convention of the Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H., this summer at Montreal, made a feature for the biennial county convention when it was held here Sunday afternoon in A. O. H. hall in the Rockwell building on Main street.

Mrs. Brock presided and after the opening prayer by Rev. W. A. Keefe, the address of welcome was given by Mrs. Mary Sullivan, president of Division 18, of this city. The credentials committee reported the county officers and eight delegates from each of the two Norwich divisions, from New London and Taftville qualified to seats in the convention.

Mrs. Brock's report as county president showed a good membership gain and a satisfactory financial condition. She presented her report as follows:

"Fraternal Sisters: At the convention held two years ago I was elected as county president, and for that mark a recognition I considered myself obligated to do everything possible for the advancement of our order. In reviewing the work of each division as well as our united gatherings, they have been marked with much interest and enthusiasm. When possible I have given the order as much publicity as possible, as I believe it necessary to attract the attention of those eligible for membership, to know that the A. O. H. Auxiliary is a progressive organization working for a closer union of the women of our race and creed. Conditions which we are not responsible for in Ireland during the past two years have no doubt retarded the work of increased membership; but we earnestly hope for a satisfactory adjustment of differences there, and it will be for the A. O. H. to perpetuate Irish sentiment and patriotism amongst our people in this county, and certainly the traditions of dear old Ireland is worthy of it.

"Through your courtesy and generosity I was able to attend the national convention of our order in Montreal, Canada, last July and time will not permit me to elaborate on many of its details from the words of those who have been attending such gatherings for years, it was the largest and most representative convention in the order's history, and who would have thought a few years ago that this grand old Irish Catholic organization would establish itself permanently for a week in British soil, and there enact its laws and rules of government for the next two years, this in itself made the convelntion of extraordinary importance.

"The state convention held in New Haven, Conn., Aug. 21 and 22 was a grand success as regards to the number of delegates present, as well as a unanimous deside to continue the drive for membership for the ensuing term. In conclusion I desire to express to you officers of the divisions of this county, my sincere thanks for your co-operation with me to make my work a success, and also through you to the members of your respective divisions my appreciation for the hospitality extended to me when attending their meetings."

The county officers were re-elected as follows and were duly installed by Mrs. Annie Healey of New London: President, Mrs. Julia Brock, Norwich; vice president, Mrs. Susie Malone, Taftville; recording secretary, Miss May Nolan, Norwich; historian, Miss Nellie O'Neil, Norwich.

Eloquent remarks were made by Father Keefe and President Michael O'Connor of Division No. 1 spoke in an interesting way, while Christopher Barry roused enthusiasm with his remarks along the line of Hibernianism and invited all present to attend a program which he is to arrange for the anniversary of the Manchester martyrs. Vice President Cox of Division No. 2 also spoke. Solos were finely rendered by Mrs. Margaret Peterson, Miss Kitty McMilan, Miss Loretta Rowley, Mrs. Mary Sullivan and Mrs. Levitsky.

Refreshments were served under the direction of committees from the two Norwich divisions as follows:

Division 18—Mrs. Catherine Kilroy, chairman; Mrs. Mary Calahan, Mrs. William Sharkey, Mrs. Charles Mumford, Mrs. L. R. Bissonette, Mrs. Thomas Levitsky, Mrs. Jeremiah Shea and Mrs. Edward Sullivan.

WILLARD FRINK KILLED WHEN HIT BY AUTO ON FRANKLIN ROAD

Willard J. Frink, 67, a well known resident of Franklin, was instantly killed Sunday night about 7.30 o'clock when he was struck in the road not far from his home by an automobile driven by Henry A. Daniels of Baltic road, Franklin. Mr. Frink's skull was fractured, both legs were broken above the knees, and several ribs were fractured. The machine struck him in the back as he was walking in the road towards his home south of Smith's corners, on the Norwich-Willimantic road.

Coroner J. J. Desmond quickly was notified of the accident and he soon arrived there, followed shortly after by Medical Examiner C. C. Glidersleeve and two state policemen.

From what the officials learned, Daniels claims he saw no one in the road and hardly knew he had hit anything, although he said he felt a slight shock and thought he might have hit a dog. He claimed he was driving 15 miles an hour and that his lights were all right.

Just after his machine had hit Mr. Frink another automobile driven by a Mystic man came along and the driver saw something in the road that he thought was a blanket. He drove over it without touching it and then came to a stop as he saw Daniel's car halted ahead of him. Together they went back and found the body of Frink in the road.

Measurements taken by the officials showed that Daniel's car came to a stop 103 feet from where it hit Frink and the body was carried 16 feet by the car after it was hit, while the marks in the road showed that the application of the brakes had slid the wheels of the car for 16 feet.

The force of the blow bent back the right headlight of the machine, bent the radiator top and put a dent in the hood. Daniels was driving alone at the time of the accident in a Ford touring car.

After the arrival of the coroner he gave Undertaker Gager charge of the body. The coroner directed Constable Hoxie to take Daniels before Justice of the Peace Charles E. Davis at his home at Smith's corners and had him placed under $3,000 bonds for appearance later for a hearing. The bonds were furnished by a Baltic woman.

Mr. Frink, who had been a life long resident of Franklin and was known as an industrious worker, a good neighbor and a kind husband and father, is survived by his wife, two sons, Charles W. Frink of this city, John of Franklin, and a daughter, Mrs. Harry Lathrop of this city.

MOONSHINE CRAZED YOUTH LANDED AT BREWSTER'S NECK

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Sept. 30.—Albert Smigel is back in his home in Webster after an experience that should forever keep him from drinking moonshine. He came to Putnam from the Bay State town Wednesday evening, September 5th, and went on a rampage that caused the breaking of a large plate glass window in the Bugbee & Wulf store, the tearing of the clothes and slight injury of Captain William Jarvis, the confinement Smigel in the state hospital at Norwich and the payment of $293 and some odd cents.

Smigel first attracted attention by his actions on Front street. He was muttering to himself and trying to get into the store. Suddenly he drew his fist back and there was a crash of glass as the big window was shattered.

It took several men to get Smigel to the police station, where he was a raving maniac well into the next day, pounding on the sides of the cell with his fists and trying to tear down the bars. A doctor administered several doses of a sedative but they apparently had little effect and in the afternoon the man was removed to the Day Kimball hospital and put under guard and from there the next day was taken to the state hospital at Norwich for observation. He recovered when the effects of his debauch had worn off and was returned to Putnam.

Smigel said that he remembered most of the occurrences and explained his actions by saying that at the time he was sure that in the Bugbee store were men calling upon him and that while locked in the police station he was convinced that in the next cell were men with knives intent on murder.

Smigel is a quiet appearing young man and when normal is a peaceful citizen. He was consistent in declaring that he obtained the stuff he drank in Webster, although a Webster officer several times suggested to him that he procured it in Putnam. Officer Templeton of Webster was helpful to the Putnam officers and to Smigel and made several trips between Putnam and Webster and arranged for Smigel to get the money necessary to pay for the damage he had done, also the costs he had occasioned the city of Putnam, amounting to about $80.

WOMAN'S ARM BROKEN IN WESTERLY CRASH

Westerly, Sept. 30.—Carl Goss of 180 Main street, while driving his motorcycle down Liberty St., near Stillman avenue about 4.30 this afternoon collided with Mrs. Catherine Sullivan of 24 Liberty street, throwing her to the highway and fracturing her right arm. The ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps was called and took the aged woman to the Lawrence-Memorial hospital, New London. Returning from the hospital the ambulance arrived at the Wilcox curve, between Mystic and Stonington, in time to pick up the Westerly people who were injured in the collision between the machine driven by Edward Collett, father of the golf player, Glenna Collett, and the Ford car operated by Abram Leibovitz of Westerly. In the Leibovits car were Mr. and Mrs. Irving Makowsky of Attleboro, formerly of Westerly, Philip Leibovitz, Edward Leibovitz and Mrs. Abram Leibovitz.

After striking the Leibovits machine Collett's car slid 42 feet and damaged its front wheel. The Ford was turned completely over, the top being torn off and the people extricated themselves by getting out through the broken windshield. The occupants received cuts and bruises and the Leibovitz family was later taken to their homes in Westerly in the ambulance.

CHANGE TELEPHONE NUMBERS ON TWO-PARTY LINES

The telephone numbers of about 50 subscribers on "two-party lines" in this city will be changed Monday, October 1st, according to announcement Sunday by Exchange Manager J. N. Weymouth. This action by the telephone company will improve this class of service as, hereafter, only the telephone called on a two-party line will be rung.

In the change of numbers a letter will be substituted for the present call number. The letters W and J will be used to designate the different stations on the same two-party line. For instance, 123-2 may be changed to 234-J and 123-3 may be changed to 234-J. The W station will not ring when the J station is asked for by a person calling and vice versa.

Subscribers whose numbers are changed have been notified and other persons calling numbers that have been changed will be informed by the operator of the new number.

Manager Weymouth stated that subscribers who have frequent occasion to call two-party line subscribers will help the service if, upon being told by the operator of the new number, they will make note of it in the telephone book, erasing, of course, the discontinued number.

ANKLE BROKEN IN FIGHT AT HIS HOME

Following a fight with his brother-in-law, Joe Cote, Sunday morning about 10 o'clock, Peter La Point, 45, was found by the police with a broken ankle and a cut on his head at his home 276 North Main street. Cote has disappeared and La Point is in the Backus hospital.

The police were told that La Point started to beat his wife and was himself badly beaten by Cote who took his sister's part. Officers Casey and Smith brought La Point to police headquarters where Dr. Paul F. Gadle was called and he had La Pointe taken to the hospital.

Cote was arrested Sunday night about 10.30 o'clock at a Franklin St. rooming house.

PLAINFIELD MOTORCYCLE PARTY INJURED AT HAMPTON

Nicholas Zurich was taken to the Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, early Sunday evening, after he had been injured when the motorcycle with side car which he was driving overturned while he was making a sharp turn on the state highway, at Hampton. Also injured was his brother-in-law, Napoleon Derosier, and Zurich's son, George, aged 6, who was riding in Derosier's lap in the side car. Derosier and the boy were taken to the Zurich home, 197 New Village, Plainfield, where all the injured party live.

Zurick was returning from the motorcycle hill climb at Willimantic. He is known as a careful driver and was not making the turn over 30 miles an hour. State Officers A. W. Williams and Officer Stevens happened to be right at the corner, being there to investigate another accident. Zurick who was cut about the head and otherwise injured, was unconscious for a considerable period. Derosier was not badly injured but collapsed and fainted some time after the accident occurred. He had a bruised left eye and his left hand was badly scratched. The boy was scratched about the face and hands and had an injured left arm but did not appear to be seriously hurt.

A Nash touring car, which later proved to be a machine stolen in Manchester Saturday evening was wrecked Sunday afternoon when it struck a tree while rounding a short curve on the state highway at Hampton. Of the three persons in the car one was injured but all made a getaway in a Ford touring car that came along before it was discovered that the machine had been stolen. State police investigated the accident and took charge of the machine.

NOTHING KNOWN HERE OF ALLEGED FRENCH COUNT

After posing a year as a French count supposed to possess a fortune, Charles A. DeGrieville, 36, was buried today in a lot donated by Rev. Dr. Creighton R. Storey, says an Albany despatch of Sept. 29th in a Boston Sunday paper.

Just before he died of pneumonia, DeGrieville confessed to a society girl to whom he had been attentive for some time that he was not a count and that he had a wife and three children in Norwich, Conn. DeGrieville had been a guest at many society functions. He had $225 when he died.

As far as can be learned, neither the bogus count nor his family are known in this city. No such name appears in the city directory.

LIQUOR ARRESTS MADE AT MONROE ST. HOUSE

After a woman had pointed out the home of Edward Wilchek on Monroe street as the place where her husband was getting moonshine liquor and a quart had been bought there about 3 o'clock Sunday morning, Wilchek was arrested as was Arthur Prew, both charged with violation of the liquor law.

The complainant in the case was Mrs. Peter La Pointe of 276 North Main street to whose house the police were called Sunday morning about ten o'clock after a fight in which her husband had his ankle broken, and had to be taken to the Backus hospital.

GALE MEMORIAL ORGAN DEDICATED AT CHURCH

The Charles W. Gale Memorial Organ at the Central Baptist church, provided for by the gift of $15,000 by Mrs. Gertrude H. Gale in memory of her husband, the late Col. Charles W. Gale, was dedicated at the morning service at the church Sunday when it was used for the first time.

A congregation that filled the main auditorium of the church was present for the service at which special selections upon the new instrument were rendered by the organist, Miss Louise Fuller, which admirably displayed the fine tones, including the chimes with which it is provided.

At the close of his sermon upon Public Worship, from the text "God is a spirit and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and truth," the pastor, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., spoke brief words of dedication of the new organ and the prayer of dedication was given by Rev. W. T. C. Hann.

The dedication of the new organ marked the consummation of the generous plans of Mrs. Gale to provide a lasting, useful, and inspiring memorial in honor of her husband. While she had been considering this project for some time, the public was first acquainted with it last January, when at the annual meeting of the church she announced that she would give to the church a new organ in memory of Colonel Gale, to be known as the "Charles W. Gale Memorial Organ." Her proposition was enthusiastically and unanimously accepted by the church and a committee was forthwith appointed to negotiate for the purchase and installation of the new instrument.

Frank L. Arnold was appointed chairman of the committee of three, of which Shepard B. Palmer and Charles D. Noyes were the other members. The committee immediately began work and in collaboration with Mrs. Gale, soon after entered into a contract with the Austin Organ company for the organ just completed. While there have been some delays, the necessary changes in the building, after the old organ had been removed, and the setting up of the new instrument, have been carried through as expediously as possible under the direction of their committee.

To those who are acquainted with the history of the Central Baptist church and the part which Colonel Gale played in it, this beautiful memorial gift seems peculiarly appropriate. Colonel Gale served as charister for the church choir for thirty years and it was during the earlier years of his activities as such that he was instrumental in raising the money to pay for the old organ which is now supplanted by this beautiful modern instrument dedicated to his memory. Colonel Gale by his enthusiasm, ability and personality, endeared himself to all of his fellow members in the church in his time, and his name will continue to live in the coming years because of his unusual character and devotion to his church. This gift by Mr. Gale, being as it will, an instrument of continuing and beautiful service to the church and the community—service of the kind which Colonel Gale loved so well himself to render—is therefore a peculiarly fitting memorial and tribute to him.

The church, and the whole community, is fortunate in having this wonderful instrument, given as it has been, a most fitting token of Mrs. Gale's love and respect for her late husband, and of her devotion to the welfare and inspiration of her church and city.

The new organ ranks as one of the largest and most complete instruments in Connecticut. It is a three manual organ built by the Austin Organ company of Hartford, which has built many of the notable organs of the country, such as the noted Salt Lake City Tabernacle, City Hall, Portland, Me., and many others.

The universal air chest system is used exclusively by this company. This system has a number of advantages. It permits a person to enter the air chest while the organ is in use and from the inside of this chest all the mechanism is in plain sight and easily reached. Naturally a perfect wind supply is obtained on this system as all the pipes receive their pressure from this universal air chest and all action is immediately accessible. Electric action is used throughout, the connection to the console being a short cable of electric wires.

The wind is supplied by a direct connected electric blower placed in the basement. The organ contains not only the desirable and necessary stops for church service, but has also an excellent variety of solo stops, such as strings, reeds, flutes, chimes, etc.

A great improvement has been made in the lowering of the choir gallery and this change will be very noticeable in connection with the installation of the new organ.

The organ console is detached from the organ and is capable of being placed in the most desirable position in the choir gallery.

The console is provided with all modern improvements such as adjustable combination pistons which enable the organist at one touch to obtain any combination of tone desired.
